ARKANSAS COURT FORBIDS TENANT SUITS UNDER AAA

SHARECROPPER ONLY THIRD PARTY AGENT

Tribunal Refuses to Issue Injunction to Prevent Eviction in Poinsett County Case.

By the Associated Press.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 25.—In a decision affecting the protracted sharecropper-landlord controversy in Eastern Arkansas, the State Supreme Court held today that a tenant could not sue a landlord to enforce the 1934-35 cotton crop and acreage reduction contract entered into between the landlord and the United States Department of Agriculture.

The court refused to issue an injunction to prevent an alleged tenant eviction.

The injunction had been refused by the Chancery court of Poinsett County where Winburn West, a tenant, and others, sued H. Norcross, a plantation owner, charging evictions in violation of the acreage reduction contract.

The State Supreme Court, however, said that the reduction contract was a contract between the Federal Government's agencies and the plantation owner in which the tenant was a third party free agent without legal recourse for enforcement of the contract.

"Under Section 7 of the reduction contract," said the court, "no obligation is placed on the tenants to remain upon the farm and if they remain to cultivate the acreage, they are left free to stay or go as they choose. . . . No cause of action exists under the Agricultural Adjustment Act's acreage reduction contract in favor of the appelants (the tenants) and the trial court properly sustained the demurrer to the complaint."

Charges of evictions of tenants have figured largely in the Eastern Arkansas plantation disputes, leading to demonstrations in connection with a movement for organization of a tenants' union.

Union officials recently charged violent threats and warnings to leave the area, following a visit to the section by Norman Thomas, Socialist leader, in behalf of the unionization movement.

TWO MADRID PRISON GUARDS KILLED BY GUNMEN IN TAXI

Third and Passerby Wounded at Jail Where Political Prisoners Are Held.

MADRID, March 25.—Two guards of the Madrid model prison were killed, another was severely wounded, and a passerby was less seriously wounded today when unidentified assailants machine-gunned the entrance to the jail.

A burst of shots was fired from a taxicab as it drove slowly past the jail just as four guards were leaving it at the end of their night shift. One guard threw himself down and escaped injury.

The prison is where the political prisoners arrested during the recent revolt are being held for trial. Police said the attack apparently was connected with political vengeance because of the strictness of the officials with the political prisoners.

The taxicab driver said he had been hired in the Plaza Angel, which is a left extremist rendezvous, and that one of the five men who entered his cab pressed a pistol to his head and forced him to pass the prison. His passengers left the cab on the outskirts of the city.

The ground continued to sink until the hole was 16 feet deep and four feet wide. The cause of the sinking is unknown.

RELICS OF PROSPEROUS DAYS LEFT BY 'BABY DOE' TABOR

By the Associated Press.

DENVER, Colo., March 25.—Relics of the prosperous days of the late H. A. W. Tabor and his wife were found in the 17 iron trunks taken from the shack in Leadville, Colo., where "Baby Doe" Tabor, widow of the former millionaire died recently.

Among the articles found in the trunks were her $7000 white satin wedding dress, Senator Tabor's handsomely engraved cavalry sword which he wore when he was a general of the Colorado National Guard and the Senator's silver shaving mug as well as many pieces of silverware.

The widow died recently in a shanty near the Matchless Mine which her husband on his death bed urged her never to relinquish. When her body was found she had only two $1 bills in her purse. In the trunks were mementos which she could have sold for sufficient funds to ease her declining years.

Mixed with the silver and gold trinkets were baby clothes, worn by "Silver Dollar" Tabor, who was killed in a Chicago fire.

Hauptmann Contributions Halted.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, March 25. — Police halted contributions to a defense fund for Richard Bruno Hauptmann last night after his wife had appealed for money. About 200 of the audience of 900 who heard Mrs. Hauptmann remained at the Naval Armory to meet her. Police stepped in when some offered donations and explained that no permit to collect money had been obtained. The only funds raised came through the 75-cent admission fee. Mrs. Hauptmann spoke in German. Two Detroit attorneys translated into English.

ROOSEVELT GOES OVER PROGRAM OF CONGRESS

With Robinson Drafts Tentative Outline—To Leave on Vacation Tonight.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—President Roosevelt and Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, agreed today on a tentative six-point program for the remainder of the congressional session.

"The subjects to be considered," Robinson said afterward, "encompass: social security—both old age pensions and unemployment insurance; legislation pertaining to utility holding companies; an increase in the capitalization of Home Owners' Loan Corporation and banking legislation.

"The President has indicated that he wants transportation legislation combining aviation, railroads, shipping, busses and trucks that may be worked out. It cannot be determined now whether this is possible at this session.

"It is thought also that the Pure Food and Drug Act may be brought forward.

Roosevelt will leave late tonight for a 10-day fishing cruise off the Florida coast.

Roosevelt decided to leave after receiving assurance that Louis McHenry Howe, his secretary, was considerably improved in his illness. Five physicians at the White House indicated today that Howe had passed the immediate crisis.

Roosevelt will go by traoin to Jacksonville, where he will board the destroyer Farragut late tomorrow afternoon. He will keep within an hour's cruising distance of the Florida coast in event of a relapse in the condition of Howe.

By the Associated Press.

BURLINGTON, Ia., March 25.—Art Mills, veteran pilot for the Braniff Air Lines, was knocked out for several minutes by a duck that crashed through the front window of his airplane at midnight last night during a thunderstorm. He thought at first his plane had been struck by lightning.

He was still a bit groggy, he said, when he landed here for fuel. He resumed his trip from Chicago to Kansas City, where, he reported later, the duck was killed.

CURLEE TURNS OVER LETTERS AT NRA INQUIRY

SAYS WAGES HAVE RISEN UNDER CODE

St. Louisan Against "Regimentation" and for "Free Play of Economic Conditions."

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT, A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—Francis M. Curlee of St. Louis, counsel of the Industrial Recovery Association of Clothing Manufacturers, produced at the Senate Finance Committee today "every scrap of correspondence" he had had since March 7, 1933, relative to the National Recovery Administration. Curlee and the group of clothing manufacturers he represents have opposed the present set-up of the NRA, particularly the alleged domination of the Clothing Manufacturers' Association of the U. S. A., a rival organization, over the clothing code authority.

The correspondence was brought to the committee in response to a subpena duces tecum issued Friday after Curlee had given halting answers to questions by Senator La Follette regarding a telegram sent by a Kentucky clothing manufacturer to Senator Barkley, charging Barkley with favoritism toward Donald R. Richberg of the NRA at a previous committee meeting.

The committee is investigating the NRA and is also considering whether the National Industry Recovery Act shall be continued in a revised form after June 16.

Investigators Get Letters.

In presenting the correspondence to the committee, Curlee said that he had not attempted to select the correspondence relevant to the inquiry, preferring to let the committee, in its own discretion, make its own selection.

"A few of the letters," he said, "are purely professional, between myself and my clients. Others are purely personal. I merely request that the committee take note of the confidential letters and handle them as the committee sees fit."

Chairman Harrison directed that the correspondence be turned over to the committee's investigators, James A. Horton of the Federal Trade Commission; W. Jett Lauck, an economist, and Richard V. Whitely of the Trade Commission. It was learned after the committee meeting, that the letters would be turned over to Federal Trade Commission subordinates who will make a report to the committee, probably tomorrow, for the cross-questioning of Curlee. The Trade Commission, in its investigation of the privately owned utility companies, has developed a keen technique in sorting correspondence.

Wages Substantially Higher.

Curlee's testimony today was devoted to his criticism of the clothing code authority as now constituted. As the representative of a minority group in the industry he protested against what he called the secrecy of the code authority regarding wages and production costs throughout the industry. He admitted that the clothing code had caused a substantial increase of minimum wages in the industry, but declared that he personally was against the "regimentation of industry" as represented by minimum wages.

The Curlee Manufacturing Co., in St. Louis and Mayfield, Ky., he said, had been treated fairly and were a group of "loyal and enthusiastic workers," he said that he believed that the annual average wages paid by the Curlee Co. were higher than similar wages in the New York area.

In response to questions by Senators La Follette and Costigan he said that he personally believed "in the absolute free play of economic conditions."

"No matter what happens?" La Follette asked. "Do you believe that you can have a free play of economic conditions if it brings wages down to $3 and $4 for 54 hours work a week, as happened in Pennsylvania?" "It would take a pretty bold man to say that he was for anything regardless of what happens, but my own view is that, in many instances, the remedy is worse than the disease," Curlee replied.

Asks for Full Publicity on Costs.

When Curlee insisted that he wanted complete publicity of all production costs in the clothing industry, Costigan said: "This is indeed refreshing to some of us who have been trying to get complete publicity about business operations.

RELIEF 'STRIKERS', KEPT AWAKE, QUIT DALLAS CITY HALL

Texas Police Enforce Order Barring Campers in Public Building From Sleeping.

By the Associated Press.

DALLAS, Tex., March 25.—Weary from lack of sleep, the last of those on the relief rolls "striking" for restoration of full food grants left the city hall here today.

Police have refused to allow them to sleep or eat in the public building and finally the 25 men and women who remained of the hundreds who moved into city hall eight days ago gave up their attempt to remain there until their demands were met. Squads of policemen hammered shoe soles and punched ribs to keep those who dozed, awake.

Six were arrested last night charged with sleeping in a public place. The decision to prohibit sleeping in the hall was put into force when Police Chief C. W. Trammell discovered "street bums" were using the building. Last Saturday the eating of food in the hall was prohibited because city employes complained of the odor.

Several hundred persons camped in the city hall more than a week ago in protest against a 40 per cent reduction in food grants. This cut was necessitated by a shortage of relief funds.

NEW DUST STORM ON WAY; REACHES WESTERN MISSOURI

Farmers Abandoning Homes in Southeastern Colorado; Scattered Rain in Kansas.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 25.—A new dust storm swept eastward over the Plains States today. In Southeastern Colorado, where drouth-stricken farmers were abandoning homes and plans were being made to move one half-starved herds of cattle, dust still was blowing and the wind velocity increased.

The dust swept over Oklahoma from the northwest. Visibility at Oklahoma City was reduced to about a mile. Driving across Kansas, the copper-colored clouds reached Western Missouri by late morning. Conditions were not so severe, however, as in last Wednesday's storm.

Scattered rainfall in Kansas was insufficient to lay the loose soil and the Topeka Weather Bureau forecast a continuation tomorrow of the dust, which has been flying nearly two weeks.

At Lawrence, Kan., there was less than three-block visibility at midmorning.

Over Central Kansas a high northwest wind before dawn carried in almost as much dust as in recent storms. The air cleared for a while, but new dust blew in.

JOBLESS GET SPOILED MEAT

They Throw It Back at FERA Clerks at Tampa, Fla.

By the Associated Press.

TAMPA, Fla., March 25. — Five hundred jobless men and women on relief rolls protested today against the condition of meat handed them from the FERA commodity department in the Spanish section. The meat, which was thrown back at the FERA clerks by the unemployed, was later inspected by M. J. Mackler, assistant city health officer, and termed unfit for human consumption.

J. S. Bridges, executive officer of the FERA for Hillsborough County, admitted that some of the meat was bad. He said fresh meat would be distributed tomorrow.

HITLER AND SIR JOHN SIMON OF BRITAIN OPEN PARLEY IN BERLIN ON REARMAMENT

SIX KILLED, MANY HURT IN CHICAGO ROADHOUSE FIRE

Persons Trample Each Other in Panic as Crowd Rushes to Narrow Door Which Opened Inward.

16 OF INJURED IN SERIOUS CONDITION

Some of Customers Jump Through Window Glass When Blaze Sweeps Suburban Resort.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 25.—Six persons were killed and 16 were seriously injured early yesterday in a fire that swept the Club Rendezvous, a roadhouse in suburban Morton Grove. About 40 persons were treated for minor injuries.

A panic developed as the customers rushed to get out the single front door, which opened inward. Many persons were trampled in the crush.

The dead:

Miss Helen O. Johnson, 22, Milwaukee, Wis.

Robert Wolfe, 22, employe of an attorney.

Fire Starts in Ceiling.

Festivities were at their height at the roadhouse, a remodeled house, when fire broke out in the ceiling near a suspended gas heater. It was 2:30 a. m.

Drapes and streamers stretched from the walls and ceiling of the dance hall and dining room. The bar was packed. A crowd danced to the music of a three-piece orchestra. Every table in the dining room was filled. Many of the customers were Northwestern University students who had just come from a school musical comedy.

A girl called "Fire" and snatched her wrap and made for the narrow door on one side of the dance hall. This doorway led into an anteroom which led to the street.

Seizing a bottle of seltzer water, Mrs. Elmer Cowdrey, wife of the roadhouse owner, squirted its contents at the flame.

The screaming crowd rushed for the door. The foremost were pressed against the door and wall by the crowd behind.

Leaping to a chair, Cowdrey shouted directions to use the kitchen door. The cries of the crowd and the noise of the fire drowned his voice.

Forcing back the crowd, some persons finally succeeded in opening the door as flames engulfed the dance hall and ran along the drapes and streamers. Blazing cloth dropped on the crowd.

Stories of Survivors.

Mrs. Robin Anderson, whose husband, Arnold, was injured, gave a description of the fire.

"Almost the second I saw the flames," she said, "they caught the decorations and swept across the dining room.

"I rushed to the door with a warning to the others to follow, but before I could reach it the crowd was wedged against the small opening, screaming and kicking. One man fainted and women were trampled."

Several slipped out the door, she said, before it slammed shut. Rescuers broke it open momentarily and more reached the outside, Mrs. Anderson among the last.

Testifying at an inquest today Jack Durin of Cedar Rapids, Ia., said there was a spring-lock on the door which the checkroom girl had to open with a push-button in order to admit guests.

"I tried to open the door which

WHAT HITLER IS SAID TO DEMAND AS PRICE OF RETURNING TO LEAGUE

BERLIN, March 25.

As Reichsfuehrer Hitler and Sir John Simon of Great Britain began their conversations today it was reliably reported that Germany would demand the right to have a navy 30 per cent the size of Great Britain's.

While a fleet of this size was acknowledged to be comparatively small, it was said it would be of sufficient strength to give Germany security in the Baltic Sea, allaying whatever apprehensions might be entertained by Germany of the Soviet sea power. Germany does not desire a larger fleet, it was explained, until restoration of its Colonial empire is assured.

Along with its naval demands, Germany was expected to seek from the Powers of Europe sanction for its conscription program and its new military air fleet.

In return for these concessions, it was indicated Hitler might be willing to agree to Germany's return to the League of Nations and participation in 20-year non-aggression pacts.

MORE OF MIDDLECLASS JOINING THE BREAD LINE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 25. — Increases in the number of families on home relief in New York City, and an assertion that "middle class families" are being forced in growing numbers to join the bread line were reported to Mayor F. H. LaGuardia today by his Committee on Unemployment Relief.

The committee, headed by George Z. Medalie, said increases of families on home relief in the five boroughs in the six months ending Feb. 4 ranged from 33 to 107 per cent. The increase in all boroughs was 39 per cent.

The greatest increase was in Richmond borough, where the number of families on home relief jumped from 3048 to 6328.

The smallest increase was in Manhattan, where the number grew from 76,335 to 101,984.

More From Middle Class.

"Middle class families in the outlying sections of New York City, who have never appeared on private or public relief rolls but who have been reduced to destitution by continued unemployment, are appearing on the public relief rolls in increasing numbers month by month," the committee said.

Citing an increase in monthly relief costs from $4,142,000 in January, 1932, to $19,250,000 in February, 1935 the committee said, "The increased cost of relief is due to the steady mounting of the relief rolls rather than to any increase in generosity of relief standards."

The average cost per family in 1932, the report said, was $51.36 per month, and $42.15 in 1935.

Decrease in average cost was partly due, it was said, to decrease in proportion of families on work relief.

No Material Decrease.

The committee said the estimate of 1,000,000 unemployed wage earners early in 1934 had not been materially decreased, though factory employment had risen 3 per cent.

Among other observations made by the committee were these:

Unemployment affects 666,000 families, or 2,664,000 persons, or 37 per cent of the population.

Less than half the unemployed are on relief rolls.

More than 50 per cent of the unemployed are between 20 and 40 years old.

About 336,000 families not on relief, in which there are unemployed workers, constitute a reservoir from which a constantly increasing number will seek public aid.

In the last six years $418,464,000 has been spent for relief, $6,161,000 of it from private funds.

RFC Authorizations $5,468,450,426.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—The Reconstruction Finance Corporation today announced its total authorizations since its formation had reached $5,468,450,426 and that during February, it added $3,960,822 to bring the surplus from earnings, which now totals $68,351,926.

NO INTENTION OF ATTACKING RUSSIA, SAYS REICHSFUEHRER

LITHUANIA AMITY TERMS LAID DOWN

Outcome of Conversations Expected to Determine Whether Europe Turns Back Toward Peace or Goes On to War.

(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.)

BERLIN, March 25.—Reichsfuehrer Hitler of Germany and Sir John Simon, Foreign Minister of Great Britain, completed the first day of their conference tonight with an agreement on the following points:

1. Great Britain will no longer insist upon the clause in the proposed Eastern European security pact which would call for mutual assistance in the event of aggression, and Germany on her part gave a solemn assurance that she did not have the faintest intention of ever attacking Russia.

2. Germany is ready to enter into a treaty of amity and friendship with Lithuania provided that country strictly lives up to the terms of the Memel statute, which guarantees certain rights to German minorities.

Instead of going first into broad general questions on the League of Nations and German rearmament, both sides agreed to tackle first the problem in which Great Britain is least interested territorially, mainly the proposed "Eastern Locarno pact."

Hitler, after having given his views on this regional pact and his aversion to anything that might engage Germany militarily—even to the extent of involving it with Powers which do not touch on its borders—emphatically assured Sir John, in answer to the latter's question, that Germany has no design upon Soviet Russia.

Simon Meets Hitler.

Sir John gave Hitler a positive assurance that, while Great Britain was welcoming a pact of non-aggression between the Eastern Powers of Europe, he did not deem it necessary that the signatories pledged themselves to mutual assistance.

Sir John entered the chancellory accompanied by Capt. Anthony Eden, British Lord Privy Seal, Sir Eric Phipps, British Ambassador, and a group of secretaries.

Baron Konstantin von Neurath, German Foreign Minister, introduced Sir John.

Report on Conversation.

A brief communique, following the close of the first day's conversations, said that some topics of the Anglo-French communique of Feb 3, had been considered.

(The Anglo-French communique, issued at London, suggested a military aviation pact to be signed by Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy and Belgium in addition to other suggestions designed to assist in the security of Europe).

All today's communique said was: "Conversations took place this morning and afternoon on some points mentioned in the Anglo-French communique of Feb. 3. These conversations will be resumed tomorrow."

Hitler previously had met Eden, as the young British diplomat had negotiated an agreement with Hitler more than a year ago limiting Germany's army to 300,000 men. The agreement subsequently was turned down by Louis Barthou, French Foreign Minister who later was assassinated with King Alexander of Yugoslavia at Marseilles.

WITNESS FIGURES $600,000 SAVING WITH NATURAL GAS

Public Service Commission Engineer Gives Statistics at Hearing on Proposed Change in St. Louis.

INQUIRY UNDER WAY AT CAPITAL

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 25.—Testimony that substitution of straight natural gas for mixed gas in St. Louis would result in a saving of about 12½ per cent to consumers, without taking into consideration increased usage, was given today at a hearing by the State Public Service Commission.

The witness was Michael Drazen, an engineer on the commission's staff, who used the record of the Laclede Gas Light Co. for the year ending Sept. 30, 1933, as the basis of his calculations. He said use of straight natural gas would result in a saving of $800,000 a year in direct operating expenses, and would cause elimination of $8,237,320 from property valuation on which the company is entitled to earn a return. Calculating the return at 6½ per cent a year, Drazen estimated the saving on this item at about $600,000.

For 10 years, however, this $600,000 saving would be used up for amortization of the physical property to be retired on account of use of natural gas, so that the net saving to consumers would be $800,000 a year, or about 12½ per cent on present bills. Increased use of gas would change the situation.

Today's hearing marked the opening of an investigation ordered by the commission into the feasibility of supplying straight natural gas in St. Louis, the first inquiry of the kind instituted by the commission on its own motion.

The comission, in ordering the hearing, expressed the belief a substantial saving might be effected if straight natural gas was substituted for the mixed gas. Straight natural gas is sold only to a few industrial users in the St. Louis district.

Participating in the hearing were representatives of the City of St. Louis, the Laclede Gas Light Co. of St. Louis, the St. Louis County Gas Co., the Mississippi River Fuel Corporation, which operates a natural gas line from the Louisiana gas gas fields into St. Louis; the Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Co., operating a gas line from the Texas fields which passes 65 miles north of St. Louis, and the McKnabb Oil & Gas Co. of Winfield, Kan., which is seeking a gas franchise in St. Louis and authority to build a pipe line between St. Louis and Bowling Green, Mo., to connect with the Panhandle Eastern line at the latter point.

Terms of Present Contract.

The Mississippi River Fuel Corporation sells natural gas to the Laclede Gas Light Co. and St. Louis County Gas Co. for mixing purposes, but the contracts forbid resale of any of this natural gas for domestic purposes.

Among points to be covered in the hearing, under the commission order, are:

Present and maximum capacity of the Panhandle and the Mississippi River Fuel lines, and the present and potential gas supply in the fields which are the gas sources for the two lines.

Cost of natural gas delivered in St. Louis and the cost to the Laclede company of manufacturing and distributing mixed gas as compared to the cost of purchasing and distributing natural gas.

Feasibility of building a connecting line from the Panhandle Eastern line into St. Louis.

Amount of plant now used by the Laclede company which would be rendered non-useful and taken out of its rate-making base, if straight natural gas was substituted for mixed gas.

Determination of the same facts as to costs and plant for the St. Louis County Gas Co.

Engineers for the commission have been collecting considerable data in the last month, to supplement information the commission expects to receive from the gas distributing and pipe line companies.

H. C. Brockhoff, an engineer for the commission, who was the first witness, submitted several estimates on the daily capacity of the Panhandle Eastern pipe line, varying from 73,000,000 cubic feet a day up to 189,000,000 cubic feet, the estimates varying with several theoretical assumptions as to installation of additional compressor stations on the line. He estimated the capacity of the Mississippi River Fuel Corporation line at about 100,000,000 cubic feet a day, with the installation of additional compressors.

Brockhoff testified construction of a pipe line from St. Louis to connect with the Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Co., would cost about $2,700,000, if the connection was near Bowling Green, and about $2,825,000 if the connection was near Centralia, Mo.

He submitted an estimate that approximately $7,950,000 of the plant of the Laclede Gas Light Co. would be rendered non-useful, and be subject to removal from the rate base, if straight natural gas was substituted for mixed gas in St. Louis. The bulk of this estimate represented manufacturing equipment and land, he said. The present valuation of the company's gas property for ratemaking purposes, fixed by the commission last November, is $39,000,000.

HITLER AND SIMON OPEN CONFERENCE ON REARMAMENT

to the Chancellory's dining room for lunch. Lady Phipps was invited in for the luncheon.

It was officially stated that Gen. Joachim von Ribbentrop, Hitler's personal diplomatic agent, and Baron von Neurath were present throughout the parley.

The conversations were resumed at 3 p. m., and ended at 7 p. m., to be resumed tomorrow. The Britons were dinner guests of Von Neurath.

Hitler was reliably reported to have insisted that Germany needs an adequate army and a navy capable of controlling the Baltic, with a good-sized air fleet as well, in order to defend Western Europe from invasion by Russian bolshevism. Hitler was said to have declared that Nazi Germany had saved Europe from bolshevism.

Hitler talked, it was said as if Germany's regenerated army was an accomplished fact not to be changed by the present negotiations.

Lines of regular and secret police kept traffic moving in the street. Police also guarded the British Embassy and the Adlon Hotel where the British delegation is staying.

Hitler sprang a surprise by requesting the English visitors be brought to the Chancellory to meet him at once. Hitler had not been expected to confer with Sir John and Capt. Eden until tomorrow.

The Reported Demands.

As the parley got under way, it was reliably reported Germany would carry to the discussions a demand that it have the right to possess a navy 30 per cent the size of Great Britain's.

While a fleet of this size was acknowledged to be comparatively small, it was said it would be of sufficient strength to give the Reich security in the Baltic Sea, allaying whatever apprehensions might be entertained by Germany for the Soviet sea power. Germany does not desire a larger fleet, it was explained, until restoration of its Colonial empire is assured.

Along with its naval demands, the Reich was expected to seek from the Powers of Europe sanction for its conscription program and its new military air fleet.

In return for these concessions, it was indicated Hitler might be willing to agree to Germany's return to the League of Nations and participation in 20-year non-aggression pacts.

Another point which unquestionably will arise in the discussions, the Danubian and Eastern pacts, is not considered likely to evoke any great enthusiasm on Hitler's part. Hitler long has been opposed to such multi-lateral agreements, preferring in their stead separately negotiated bi-lateral arrangements.

Newspapers printed long and cheerful accounts of the British emissaries' arrival, their accomplishments and personalities. The press comment uniformly carried an undertone of confidence that the foreign Powers would be compelled to recognize Germany's demands.

A crowd of some 10,000 persons was on hand to greet Sir John and Eden when they stepped from their plane last night at Tempelhof Airdrome.

Baron von Neurath officially welcomed the visitors, grasping Sir John's hand with marked cordiality as Sir John alighted from the air liner which brought him and his colleague from Amsterdam.

"I am so glad to see you again," Sir John said to Von Neurath. "Fine of you to invite me to your home. How is your family?"

The group then left the field by automobile, the visitors going to dine quietly at the British Embassy.

While rumors were heard that Germany has accepted an invitation to join in a proposed peace conference among the Powers, a Foreign Office spokesman said: "Germany will participate if definite results are assured."

Polish Protest Rejected.

Poland received the same reply as the French and Italians after lodging a "friendly protest" against the Reich's military conscription plans, it was learned today.

Joseph Lipski, Polish Ambassador, verbally expressed his country's official "anxiety over the international situation caused by conscription." His visit to the Reich Foreign Office was made last Saturday, two days after the Government had refused to entertain the French and Italian protests.

Baron von Neurath, it was learned officially, replied to Lipski that since the other Powers had failed to disarm Germany must rearm.

The Polish step, the embassy said, was confined to the expression of "anxiety" and did not deal with the question of treaty violation as did the French and Italian.

MacDonald Tells Commons That Treaty Stands As a Whole.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 25.—Prime Minister MacDonald told the House of Commons today that the military clauses of the Versailles treaty were the only part of that pact affected by Germany's decision to institute compulsory military training, "so far as I am aware."

His statement, made in reply to a question by Gordon Ralph Hall-Caine, Conservative, was regarded as a repetition of the official view expressed last week that the discussion of the revision of these clauses of the treaty did not affect the treaty in general.

"The treaty does not provide for denunciation by the signatories," MacDonald said. "The member is under a misapprehension in supposing that any action taken unilaterally by Germany or any other Government could have the effect of denouncing the treaty in the usually accepted sense of the term.

"The German decision of March 16, relative to the introduction of conscription and the constitution of the German army, indicated no doubt an intention on the part of the German Government not to observe certain military clauses of the treaty. No other clauses of the treaty are, so far as I am aware, affected by the German action."

LIFE FOR MURDER OF WOMAN

CRIPPLE CREEK, Colo., March 25.—Charles Neal, an ex-convict, was convicted today of the murder of Miss Ida Hanson, 55 years old, a Nebraska milliner, near Florissant, Colo., in June, 1933. The jury, deliberating 41 hours, recommended life imprisonment.

The Court in instructions Saturday ruled evidence presented by the State had been circumstantial and under Colorado law this barred a death verdict. The defense asked for a 30-day stay pending filing of an appeal. Neal, who said he had purchased $10,000 worth of securities from the woman, insisted he was elsewhere when she was beaten to death, burned and her body tossed into a pit.

SILVER BLOC LOSES POINT IN JOB BILL FIGHT

Against Its Wishes, House Committee Proposes to Send Whole Measure to Conference.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—Silver inflationists today lost their first attempt to force the House to accept the Thomas silver amendment added by the Senate to the $4,880,000,000 works-relief bill. They had tried to obtain a prompt direct vote on that amendment, but at the insistence of Democratic leaders the Rules Committee adopted special procedure preventing that. The committee presented to the House a special resolution—which is to be taken up tomorrow—to reject all of the 31 Senate amendments and send the whole bill to conference for an adjustment of the differences.

This action was taken after Speaker Byrns and Chairman Buchanan of the Appropriations Committee conferred with President Roosevelt, bringing back to the Capitol with them an understanding that the chief executive wa sopposed to immediate acceptance of the Senate amendments.

Buchanan tried to get unanimous consent to the rejection of all the Senate amendments and to send the bill to conference today. This was blocked by objection by Johnson (Dem.), Texas. Administration leaders are anxious to have the bill finally disposed of by Saturday.

Off the floor, Buchanan described the bill as amended by the Senate as "all in conflict, a hodge-podge, a mess," and insisted the Senate amendments could not be enacted into a workable law.

"Why, many of the 31 amendments are far-reaching and extraneous to the subject of relief," he said. "The only way we can say definitely what we will do is for us to sit down and study those amendments individually and decide which should go out."

He and Byrns indicated the President opposed the Thomas silver amendment, which its author estimated would mean $375,000,000 currency expansion.

BURGLARS TRUCK DRESSES, COATS FROM EAST SIDE STORE

Electric Wires to Granite City Firm's Shop Are Cut, Disabling Alarm System.

Several hundred dresses and coats and a quantity of hosiery were stolen by burglars who gained entrance to Adler's Dress Shop, Nineteenth street and Edison avenue, Granite City, some time during the week-end by forcing a back door of the H. & R. Furniture Co. storage room on the second floor and breaking through a partition over a stairway.

J. L. Binder, 6625 San Bonita avenue, proprietor, who discovered the theft this morning, said the apparel was part of a consignment he had received Saturday.

He said electric wires had been cut to disable the burglar alarm system and five large ceiling fans had been removed and stolen. Police found impressions in the soft earth in the rear of the store apparently made by tires of a large truck. The merchandise was not insured.

Is that your request?" "Yes," Curlee replied. "This is an unusual answer, but we are confronted with an unusual situation."

Curlee objected to the present organization of the men's clothing code authority because his group had only a minority representation. Sidney Hillman, a member of the NRA Board, had testified before the committee that the Curlee group represented less than 10 per cent of the industry and that Curlee had been asked several times to become a member of the authority.

Asked why he had refused to become a member of the authority Curlee said that even if he had been selected by his own group to sit on the authority he would not accept the position, believing that he would be only one of an impotent minority.

"I don't believe in a system," he said, "where a code authority, depending on vague provisions of the law, sits as a chancery court with equity powers."

He explained this statement by saying that while there were rules of equity in the courts, the code authority was a new body without precedents and could make its own rules as it went along.

MELLON WITNESS QUOTES CARNEGIE ON STEEL GROWTH

Capitalist's 1908 Views on Expansion Given in Argument Over Value of Stock in 1913.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, March 25.—Andrew Carnegie in 1908 described wars as "too disgracefully inhuman" at the same time he envisioned consumption of coal and steel mounting to great heights, the Government brought out today at the Andrew W. Mellon income tax hearing.

Dr. William Otis Hotchkiss, president of the Michigan College of Mining and Technology, expert witness for Mellon, gave the testimony before the Board of Tax Appeals.

The witness had said on direct examination that Carnegie 27 years ago believed the demand for minerals would increase so rapidly that by 1937 more than a billion tons of coal would be used annually compared with approximately 300,000,000 tons being used then.

Robert H. Jackson, chief counsel for the Government, which is trying to collect an additional $3,089,000 on Mellon's 1931 income, took up the cross-examination to bring out further testimony bearing on the value of McClintic-Marshall Corporation, a steel fabricating concern. Attorneys for Mellon are trying to establish a much higher value than the Government claims on the bankers' 30 per cent interest in the corporation in 1913. Mellon's brother owned 30 per cent of the stock too, so that they controlled the corporation.

Determination of its value is sought to bring out the taxable basis of the stock.

Carnegie's War Prediction.

Jackson asked Dr. Hotchkiss:

"Carnegie also predicted the end of all wars didn't he?"

"I wouldn't say that," the witness replied.

"Didn't he say 'the world is soon to learn that war is not only too disgracefully inhuman in the main but too wasteful to be tolerated and this serious drain on our iron ores is to cease'?" continued the attorney.

"Yes, I believe he did."

"He also said no one could predict that all estimates of future consumption and destruction of coal are liable to error, didn't he?"

"Yes."

Warning or Prophecy.

"Wouldn't you say his entire speech was one of warning, rather than prophecy?"

"I would say that was the purpose of the whole conference," said the witness.

He referred to a conservation of natural resources conference held at the White House in 1908 which Carnegie attended.

To Jackson's question that the "trend line" on his charts showing consumption and production "meant absolutely nothing" so far as guiding a business man at any given time, Dr. Hotchkiss said he could not agree with any such conclusion.

KANSAS CITY MAN BEATS WIFE AND IS KILLED BY SON

Mother Corroborates Youth's Story of Cruelty Endured Over Period of Years.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 25.—Hartley Shepherd, 64 years old, was shot and killed in his home heare Saturday night and police held his 14-year-old son, George. The boy, a sophomore at Central High School, was quoted by Detective Ira Johnson of the Homicide Bureau as saying he shot his father when he found him choking his mother.

The killing, members of the family said, was the climax to beatings the father had given to the mother over a period of years. George said that when he returned home about 5:15 p. m., his father was in a bedroom striking his mother. He said he told his father to stop and then went outside and walked around to cool off a bit. When he returned, his father was beating his mother again and she was screaming, and he picked up a gun and fired, he said. The first bullet struck the father just above the left eye and the second penetrated his heart. Mrs. Grace Shepard, and a daughter, Ruth, 18, gave similar accounts of the husband's cruelty.

TRUCK, OUT OF CONTROL, BREAKS THROUGH VIADUCT

Held at Angle of 45 Degrees by Iron Railing After Accident on East Side.

A truck belonging to Swift & Co., loaded with 15,000 pounds of meat, got out of control of its driver on the Broadway viaduct in East St. Louis at noon today and broke through a board sidewalk. With its right wheels through the boards, the truck was held at an angle of about 45 degrees by an iron railing. The driver, Joe Hann, 1262 North Forty-seventh street, East St. Louis, escaped injury.

Hann said he lost control of the truck during a heavy rain when its wheels caught in a car track, preventing him from turning left with the viaduct as it descended to the west toward Eads Bridge. The structure is old and has been condemned by East St. Louis to make way for an automobile underpass below railroad tracks. Last week Mike Sullivan, a blind lawyer, was injured when he fell through the board walk about 25 feet into a creek.

SWITZ SAYS HE JOINED SPIES TO HELP FRANCE

American Testifies He Sought to Ferret Out Espionage Against Republic.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, March 25.—Robert Gordon Switz, the American accused of being a spy for Soviet Russia, testified in his own behalf today that he joined an international spy ring in order to serve France by ferreting out anti-French espionage.

He accused other members of the group of trading in French secrets, picturing his own participation as motivated only by a desire to aid the republic.

Questioning of the American took up most of the afternoon and when he left the stand his wife, the former Marjorie Tilley, was questioned. She repeated her confession made to police, implicating others.

Switz was wan and haggard after 15 months in prison when he came to court this morning, but Mrs. Switz was smiling. They and others are on trial as spies.

Two babies born in prison to women accused of membership in the spy ring attended the trial of their mothers in the arms of nursemaids.

They were the daughter of Chana Salman, 25 years old, Polish medical student, and the son of Madeleine Mermet, 23, French school teacher. Each child is only a few months old.

During the preliminary questioning, the trial will be public, but it will be made secret when the court comes to the point where detailed revelations are expected.

Mrs. Switz was in a wrinkled black dress with a white spot at the neck its only relief. Her face was covered with heavy makeup.

The 21 defendants were brought to court in taxicabs. There was only room for Switz and six others in the dock while Mrs. Switz and the remaining 13 sat on public benches with a guard at both sides of each prisoner.

The case is expected to continue four weeks with three sessions weekly.

Court officials forecast that the Americans, whose acquittal was regarded as virtually assured, would be deported.

HOW CIVIL SERVICE HAS BEEN JUNKED AT THE CITY HALL

Regulations of Charter of 1914, Observed for Two Years, Have Been Disregarded Ever Since.

80 PCT. TURNOVER UNDER DICKMANN

Discovery of Five Ex-Convicts on Payroll Only Another Development in Evasion of Law.

Discovery by Mayor Dickmann of five former convicts on the city payroll marked the most recent result of the progressive junking of the Civil Service regulations of the City Charter, adopted by the voters in 1914.

Designed to insure the city a high degree of efficiency in its employes, the Civil Service provisions were followed closely in 1915-16, during the Kiel administration, while Thomas H. Rogers was head of the Efficiency Board. Since then the tendency of the administration in power, both Republican and Democratic, has been either to evade or openly to disregard the Civil Service requirements.

Advent of Democrats in 1933.

When the Democrats came into power in 1933 after 24 years of Republican rule, the new administration was outspoken in saying that there would be a house cleaning, that Democrats would fill city jobs. This intention, since carried out to the extent of an 80 per cent turnover in employes in slightly more than two years, was in violation of section 12, article 18 of the charter, providing that no person in the classified service of the city should be appointed, reduced, suspended or discharged on the basis of political or religious opinion or affiliation.

When the new administration got control, even Mayor Dickmann facetiously remarked in public statements that he was glad Twelfth boulevard and Market street had been widened, so that there would be plenty of room for the Republicans who would get out of office.

To this end, a committee composed of leading Democrats was set up to prepare lists of "deserving members of the party" for appointment to city jobs. Among its members were William L. Igoe, president of the Board of Police Commissioners; Jimmy Miller, Democratic Committeeman from the Fourth Ward; John Nangle, lawyer and close friend of the Mayor; Judge Joseph Dickmann of the Court of Criminal Correction, the Mayor's brother; former Circuit Judge Jesse McDonald, and Dewey Godfrey, then chairman of the Democratic City Committee.

Efficiency Board List Scrapped.

To make room for the jobs committee to operate, the eligible list prepared by the Efficiency Board of candidates for city jobs, was ruled out. The list had been established by examination of candidates for jobs by a Republican board. The committee, usually meeting in the Majestic Hotel, then began to fill jobs from which Republicans were fired to make room for "deserving Democrats."

In the face of the ensuing turnover the new Efficiency Board could not hope to examine all of the applicants. To get around this condition, the new employes were appointed on a temporary basis. Under the charter an applicant may be appointed on a temporary basis for 90 days, pending examination to qualify himself. Many of the Democratic appointees have not taken examinations to this day.

The committee worked assiduously to fill as many of the 7100 municipal jobs as could be given to Democrats without hamstringing the municipal government in its functions. J. Wesley McAfee, since elected a Circuit Judge, acted as contact man between the jobs committee and the Mayor, and the Republicans went out by the hundreds.

What the Charter Provides.

Under the charter, the Efficiency Board, having held an examination, was required to certify the candidates with the three highest grades to the department head requiring their services. The department head was privileged to select his employe from the three, or if none was satisfactory, to ask the names of the next three from which to select. Under the Democratic plan, however, a man was selected by the Jobs Committee for a specific job, the choice was approved by the Mayor, and the successful candidate was then sent to the department head with a card introducing him as the party's choice.

This was not to the liking of many department heads, especially those in charge of hospitals, but their criticisms of the plan were made in private. After about three months, with most of its work done, the jobs committee ceased to function. Since then, appointments have been made on the recommendations of members of the Democratic City Committee and influential politicians.

Some examinations have been held by the Efficiency Board. Lists of eligibles for jobs, however, are being made up slowly, and there is none available for many classifications, including firemen. No examination has yet been held for the many stenographers appointed by the new administration. The examination for clerks was held only three months ago.

Mayor Dickmann's Experience.

Mayor Dickmann recently has been bitter in his criticism of political associates who indorsed former convicts for jobs. All of the employes with prison records answered in the negative to a question in their written applications asking if they were ever convicted of crimes. Once before in his administration there was a flareup over the job situation as a result of which two members of the Efficiency Board were fired. This was after an investigation of conduct of an examination for building inspectors. The examination was set aside because of irregularities and another was held.

Rogers, the first head of the Efficiency Board, came into conflict with the administration of Henry W. Kiel because of his insistence on following the Civil Service system to the letter. One of his acts which brought opposition from many Republicans was his refusal to pass the late "Hank" Weeke as qualified for a job as a superintendent of excavation. He refused approval of the board to many other Republicans and when his term expired he was not reappointed.

With the Republicans solidly in power, the Efficiency Board system went along with outward smoothness, at least, until the administration of Victor J. Miller, when Charles Hertenstein, then head of the Efficiency Board, resigned and exposed the Miller "dot system." One dot on a letter from the Mayor, he declared, meant that the candidate about whom it concerned, was not of particular interest to the administration. Two dots means he was all right for appointment, three dots that he must be appointed.

moved inward," he said, "and then shouted 'anybody in there?' Wolfe yelled 'yes, I am. Get me out. I'm burning.' They rushed the door and forced it part way open.

"There was Wolfe wedged behind the door, one arm clutching outside it. Because of the fire we couldn't reach him and he started screaming as the flames crept up to him. I saw flames come from behind, striking his body and then covering his face and head.

"Then he started to cry, 'Come and get me, I'm burning, help me.' We tried to get him, but he sank down behind the door."

Bartender Aids in Rescue.

Marshall and others, aided by a bartender, went through the back door and rescued Edward Healey of Oak Park, unconscious and seriously burned. Smoke and fire drove them out.

A motorist smashed his car against the building, trying to provide a means of escape, but it was futile. The room finally collapsed on the persons still trapped.

It was learned later that Anderson had made his way to safety and then re-entered to get his coat and was killed.

Chief of Police George Fredericks of Morton Grove said a draft of fresh air which swept across the floor when a man opened a window to escape revived several persons and they were able to escape.

Fredericks was passing the night club when the fire broke out. Climbing through a window he pulled two persons to safety and then collapsed, overcome by smoke. He was revived and continued the rescue work later.

Fire departments of five neighboring villages fought the blaze. The seriously injured were taken to hospitals in Evanston and other nearby suburbs by ambulances and motorists who chanced to pass.

Investigation Ordered.

An investigation was ordered by the State's Attorney. The origin of the fire was a matter of conjecture, one report saying it started from a cigarette thrown in the cloakroom and another suggesting faulty wiring. The owner, Cowdrey, was detained for questioning.

The Club Rendezvous was one of a group of night resorts in the little town of Morton Grove on Dempster street, several miles west of Evanston. The suburb was the scene of the kidnaping two years ago of John (Jake the Barber) Factor, who had been celebrating at The Dells, another roadhouse which had been a target of bombers and finally was burned a year ago.

SEDALIA, Mo., March 25.—Disregarding a divorce decree obtained by his wife in Juarez, Mexico, March 20, Harry J. McNamara, Sedalia druggist has filed a divorce suit in Circuit Court asking for custody of their 12-year-old son, Harry McNamara Jr.

The suit was filed a day after McNamara's return from El Paso, Tex., and Juarez, where he confronted Mrs. McNamara, 34, and Chester L. Hermansader Jr., 22, whom Mrs. McNamara announced she intended to wed.

JURY ACQUITS MAN IN KILLING OF DOVES

Maplewood Man Denies Guilt, but Offers to Pay Federal Penalty; Judge Refuses Plea

Albert J. Brock, Maplewood refrigerator dealer, was acquitted by a jury in Federal Judge Davis' court today of a charge of shooting two mourning doves out of season July 31, 1933, in violation of the migratory bird act. The trial was the first by a jury here in a migratory bird case in many years.

When the case was called Brock, who acted as his own attorney, told the Court that, although innocent, he would plead no contest and accept a fine to spare his friends in St. Charles County the trouble of coming to court. The Court refused to accept the plea under the circumstances.

Deputy State Game and Fish Warden Hilary Pieper testified that he knew Brock and saw the latter shoot the doves on the Miller farm, Maple Point Bottoms, St. Charles County. Pieper said he drove his automobile within 70 feet of Brock when the latter picked up the birds.

Federal Deputy Game Warden John P. Heller testified that he was on the runningboard of Pieper's car, peering over the hood when Brock shot the doves, tossed his hat on the ground and ran and picked up the birds. Heller said he also knew Brock, who, he said, fled through a corn field when the officers approached and arrested James Koehler of St. Charles.

Federal Game Protector Harry Barmeier testified that he visited the scene next day, saw dove feathers on the ground, and found a hunting bag containing shotgun shells.

Brock took the witness stand and testified that on the day in question he and John Hart, a department manager for the Lammert Furniture Co., were at Orchard Farms, St. Charles County, 12 miles distant from the Miller farm. He and Hart gave directions to John Schnaur, the farmer, relative to preparation of a duck shooting lake, Brock said. Next day, Brock continued, he and Hart and Mrs. Brock visited Schnaur and he told the farmer he had signed bail for Koehler on the dove shooting charge. Brock added that, when he signed the bond he met Barmier and the latter made no mention of connecting him with the case.

Testimony Corroborated.

Brock's testimony was corroborated by Hart, Schnaur and the latter's son. Hart admitted that 15 years ago he was convicted of violating the migratory bird act, but remarked angrily, "I was a jackass in that case."

Brock in an argument to the jury said only a master shot could have brought down the fast-flying doves in the manner described by the Government's witnesses. He said he had been active in migratory bird protection and did "not want anything like this on my record as a sportsman." The jury deliberated 15 minutes and returned the verdict.

Last June Koehler pleaded guilty of shooting doves out of season and was fined $10 and sentenced to six months in jail by Judge Davis, but was paroled from the jail term.

JAPAN DESIRES TO BUY OUT RUSSIAN INTEREST IN ISLAND

Concession in Oil Field of North Saghalien Expires Next Year.

TOKIO, March 25.—Japan "ardently desires" to purchase the northern half of the Pacific island of Saghalien from Soviet Russia because of its promising oil fields and forest areas, Foreign Minister Koki Hirota told the Diet yesterday. At the same session, Hirota outlined the negotiations which culminated yesterday, the purchase of another valuable Soviet possession, the Chinese Eastern Railway, for $40,000,000.

The island was entirely Russian until the Portsmouth treaty of 1905 ceded the southern half to Japan. After the Bolshevik revolution, the Japanese army held the northern half until Tokio recognized the Soviet Government and concluded the 1925 settlement.

During their occupation, the Japanese discovered rich oil potentialities, especially in the Oha region, and the 1925 settlement granted an 11-year concession to Japan for the purpose of drilling wells in certain areas. The supply is turned over to the Japanese navy.

Eight Men Required to Carry 375-Pound Youth on Stretcher to Ambulance.

Robert Wadlow, 17-year-old Alton giant, is at Barnes Hospital receiving treatment for an infected foot, believed to have resulted from a special cushion placed in his size 36 shoes. He was taken to the hospital yesterday, and it required eight men to carry him on a stretcher from his home to an ambulance.

Robert, a junior in Alton High School, is now 8 feet 1½ inches tall and weighs 375 pounds. The infection developed shortly after he returned from an advertising trip in Kentucky for a St. Louis firm.

PREACHER ACCUSED IN KILLING HOLDS SERVICE AT COURTHOUSE

By the Associated Press.

PASCAGOULA, Miss., March 25.—About 250 persons attended evangelistic services conducted on the Courthouse lawn yesterday by the Rev. Joe J. Payne, who with his wife is held in connection with the killing of Adelbert Ewing March 21. His wife and two daughters provided music for the services, during which an offering was taken, $11 being collected.

His text was "I Have Sinned," from the book of Samuel, third chapter.

Payne wore the uniform of a Texas Ranger and used an old-fashioned pistol, with which Mrs. Payne allegedly shot Ewing, as a baton. The stock bears 15 notches, the number of outlaws Payne says he killed while a Ranger.

Mrs. Payne testified at a preliminary hearing that she killed Ewing when she found him in a compromising position with a daughter by a previous marriage.

LIGHTNING RESTORES SIGHT OF WOMAN FOR FEW SECONDS

She Is Able to Distinguish Articles in Room When Bolt Passes Through House.

By the Associated Press.

BURLINGTON, Ia., March 25.—Mrs. Mary Richardson, 72 years old, a gold star mother, who has been totally blind for nine years, regained her sight for a few seconds last night when a bolt of lightning went through her home.

She saw her housekeeper, who was reading to her, saw the radio and identified other objects in the room. "Suddenly there was a great flash and a hissing sound," said Mrs. Richardson today, "and I could see. A metal tray on the dining room table was lifted into the air and pins, needles, and thread emptied on to the floor. It looked as though the table was in the midst of a big light." The home was not damaged by the lightning.

CLOSING ARGUMENT AT TRIAL OF 'BABY FACE' NELSON'S PAL

Prosecutor Attacks J. P. Chase's Statement He Did Not Know Men Killed Were U. S. Agents.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 25.—John Paul Chase, his left hand cupped to his ear to catch every word, listened today to the closing arguments in his trial for his part in the fight at Barrington in which "Baby Face" Nelson and Federal agents Samuel P. Cowley and Herman E. Hollis were killed.

District Attorney Dwight W. Green made the first argument before a jury in the court of Judge Philip L. Sullivan, where Chase is charged with having murdered Cowley.

"The Government has proved every one of its charges," Green said, "and its statements are corroborated by the facts." He pointed to the arsenal Chase and Nelson used.

"The defense witness has not told the truth," Green asserted, drawing sharp objection from Chase's counsel. Chase was the only defense witness. He contended he did not know the men killed were Federal agents.

Defense Attorney William B. Henry made a bitter attack on the tactics of the Federal agents in pursuing Nelson. "They hoped to sneak up on Nelson and shoot him in the back," said Henry. "The agents acted like hoodlums and they got what hoodlums get. The issue here is: 'Did the Government men identify themselves?' They did not."

NIGHT CLUB STABBER HAS POLICE RECORD

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, March 25.—The young woman booked by police as Marion King for the murder of John Irving Pierce, still declines to tell who she is. "What good would it do?" she asked. "My sins are my own."

The police called upon authorities of New York, Chicago and Detroit for assistance, sending them fingerprints after she told them she had worked in those cities as a newspaper woman.

Detroit police said that her fingerprints checked with the prints of a woman arrested there three times under three different names since August, 1930.

The police record, according to Detective John Orlikowski, shows that the woman was arrested Aug. 20, 1930, as a "police witness." She gave the name of Geraldine Harris. She was held overnight and released. Under the name of Geraldine Harrison, she was arrested on an intoxication charge, Sept. 16, 1930. The case was dismissed in court. The third arrest was Feb. 12, 1932, on a charge of disturbing the peace. She gave the name of Geraldine Rutherford, age 20, and "no home." She was released.

Prisoner in Texas.

It was reported from Dallas that under the name of Bonnie Hill, she was admitted to the Texas girls' training school at Gainesville on June 16, 1926, on a court order from Houston. According to the records she was sent to the training school at the age of 13 as an incorrigible and delinquent minor. In July, 1928, she was released to her mother on another court order, her mother being named as Mrs. Louisa Hill of Michigan. A short time after she was released, the school officials were notified that she had run away from her mother's home in Michigan.

Victim Buried at Jackson.

Pierce was buried at Jackson, where his body was sent on instructions of his widowed mother. The youth, a free-lance magazine writer, died in the "Nut Club" here Friday, a few minutes after the woman plunged a three-inch knife blade into his heart. The stabbing followed an argument during a night of drinking at various night clubs.

The girl has steadfastly insisted she did not intend to kill Pierce. Twice she viewed his body at a mortuary and each time she collapsed.

The girl disclosed that the quarrel grew out of Pierce's request that she disclose her identity.

"We had planned to leave for Florida Friday," she recounted. "He said he wanted to marry me and for that reason wanted to know my real name. He wanted to marry me although he knew my past. He knew the life I led, but I refused to reveal my family connections."

Police said the girl admitted she had been addicted to the use of narcotics.

MEETINGS IN PREPARATION FOR JEWISH WELFARE DRIVE

Edwin Goldwasser of New York Says Program Must Be a Continuous One.

Two meetings were held last night in preparation for the St. Louis Jewish Welfare Fund Campaign, which will be conducted from April 7 to 17. I. Edwin Goldwasser of New York, chairman of the national United Jewish Appeal, addressed a dinner meeting at the Congress Hotel.

At Temple Israel a meeting was held under the direction of the junior division of the campaign. Alfred Fairbank, a vice-president of the Boatmen's National Bank, and Carlos Israels, New York attorney, were the speakers.

Commenting on the campaign, Goldwasser stated that "the program must be a continuous one, not just an emergency relief setup, but one which will go over a long period of rehabilitation. The problem embraces the philanthropic activities of Jewry, both in this country and perhaps the more important activities abroad." The dinner meeting was sponsored by Aaron Waldheim, Morton J. May, Sydney M. Shoenberg aand David P. Wohl, campaign directors.

'REAL DANGER LONG WILL GET IN POWER,' RABBI SAYS

Dr. Edward L. Israel of Baltimore Urges Intelligent Social Legislation.

BALTIMORE, March 25.—Rabbi Edward L. Israel said yesterday "there is real danger" that Huey Long "will get into power."

Dr. Israel told his congregation that "the only answer to the threat of Huey Long is a counter offensive of an intelligent and progressive type."

"If our Congress in Washington can end its stalling, if our New Deal can really become the instrumentality of real social action, and if our state legislatures can begin to pass laws which will safeguard employment reserves and help the worthy aged, and actually give men work, Huey Long will disappear from the scene.

"We cannot get anywhere by listening to lectures and reading articles about him. Let American business realize that it is responsible for Huey Long and clean its doorsteps in a resolute advance toward a finer social order. That is the only answer."

TOO MANY TAX LEVIES, SAYS FATHER COUGHLIN

Asserts There Are 182,658 Agencies in Country With Power of Assessment.

DETROIT, March 25.—Co-ordination of overlapping taxing agencies was urged by the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin in his weekly radio address yesterday.

"In all, there are 182,658 governments or agencies or political divisions in the country—each with its own power to levy and assess taxes," he said. "The National Union for Social Justice, believing in the simplification of Government, prescribed that, at least in part, the burden of taxation should be lifted from the slender revenues of those farmers and laborers who pay the major portion of the bill.

"We suggest that thousands of our present taxing governments and agencies be co-ordinated.

"To encourage private ownership, we advocate that the first $5000 of real property wealth possessed by an individual should be exempt from taxation. The iniquitous sales tax whose burden rests upon the great mass of people living below the American standard of decency should be abolished.

"Those possessing between $5000 and $10,000 should be assessed 1 per cent for state and Federal purposes, 2 per cent for those in the $25,000 classification, 3 per cent for those in the $50,000 classification and upward by graduation until 10 per cent would be levied upon those whose capacity to pay is so limitless that this assessment in no way would injure their private fortunes."

On Utility Holding Firms.

He said that the National Union regarded the majority of utilities holding companies as objectionable.

"By their desire for greedy gain," he said, "oftentimes they marked up their values three, four or five times the value of their physical properties. On this false basis they sold their securities to an unsuspecting public.

"However, the National Union is not convinced that the operation of public utilities should be nationalized. These should be kept in private hands subject to governmental supervision. At all times we must avoid the Communistic tendency to Sovietize industry."

Of banking, he said: "We are in the banking business today, but we are playing the game according to the bankers' rules. The National Union prescribes the establishment of a Government-owned central bank to replace the Federal Reserve System. This principle is incorporated in the Nye-Sweeney central banking bill.

"The Reconstruction Finance Corporation has become the largest bank in the world. It has been doing 17 per cent of the total loan and discount business of this nation. Of the remaining 83 per cent of loans and discounts by the commercial banks of this nation, the Government of the United States is represented by its ownership of 23 per cent of their capital stock."

Remain Aloof From Europe.

Discussing the situation in Europe, Father Coughlin said: "Our duty, our necessity, is to remain aloof. Our policy is to warn France and Italy and England, who have already repudiated their just debts owing to us, that we will not sustain them with money, that we will not supply them with munitions, will not comfort them with moral support as they plan to marshal their millions of men to celebrate the suicide of civilization."

The priest denied by inference that he entertained any "anti-Jewish" sympathies in his criticisms of international bankers. He said his National Union for Social Justice would be "not worthy to exist" did it not embrace Catholic, Protestant, Jew and Gentile alike in its membership.

"Because I attack a Catholic," he said, "should I be called anti-Catholic? Or if I attack one Jew, should I be called anti-Jewish?"

HUEY LONG'S COMMENT ON HOOVER STATEMENT

Senator Says Ex-President and Roosevelt Are Like Owls of Different Species.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—The political speculation stirred by Herbert Hoover's call for action from the G. O. P. brought from Senator Huey P. Long a statement yesterday that the former President has "no right to complain because he has just been out-Hoovered by President Roosevelt."

The "Kingfish," just back from Louisiana, chuckled over the move to stimulate the Republican party.

"I can't understand for the life of me why Mr. Hoover is complaining, except he must be jealous of Mr. Roosevelt," Long said. "The truth of the matter is that Mr. Roosevelt has just out-Hoovered Hoover."

Parable of Two Owls.

Quickly shifting into a different mood, Long said:

"Hoover and Roosevelt are like two owls. Hoover is a hoot owl and Roosevelt is a 'scrootch' (screech) owl. I know about owls, because when I was a boy I used to sit out in the back yard at night with a shotgun and watch for owls at the hen roost.

"A hoot owl bangs into the roost and knocks the hen clean off and catches her while she's falling. But a 'scrootch' owl slips into the roost and 'scrootches' up to the hen and talks softly to her. And the hen just falls in love with him and the next thing you know there ain't no hen. I used to have trouble telling which was the hen and which was the 'scrootch' owl on the roost. I was afraid to shoot for fear I'd kill the hen instead of the owl.

"Mr. Roosevelt just adopted Mr. Hoover's policies. Hoover told them to plow up every fourth row of cotton. But Roosevelt went him one better and had 'em plow up every third row.

"The difference now is that under Roosevelt we have 6,000,000 more unemployed than under Hoover. Hoover made the national debt $19,000,000,000, while Roosevelt has made it $30,000,000,000, and pretty soon its going up $5,000,000,000 more.

On Passage of Works Bill.

Long claimed credit for the sudden passage Saturday by the Senate of the $4,880,000,000 relief bill which he fought. "Filibustering by remote control, I call it," Long said, when asked why he thought he was responsible for the sudden break on the measure which had been before the Senate eight weeks.

Long, in Columbia, S. C., delivering a speech, sent word to the Senate that he was coming by airplane to take part in the debate on the Thomas silver amendment. The Senate shortly thereafter passed the bill under pressure by Democratic leaders.

"No, I wasn't surprised to see them rush the relief bill through," Long laughed. "They had spent too much time on it anyway. I just wanted to hustle them along and see how many new things they would stick into it. I told them I was going to take an airplane from Columbia, because I wanted to scare them into action. They acted."

HOUSE PASSES BILL ON AIRMAIL RATES

Measure to Senate; Would Allow Up to 20 Pct. More to Carriers.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—The new permanent airmail bill putting rate-making under the Interstate Commerce Commission and permitting a possible 50 per cent increase in charges was passed by the House today and sent to the Senate.

The measure, by Chairman Mead of the Postoffice Committee, was drafted after White House conferences. The bill permits increasing the airmail system to 32,000 miles. Effective as of March 1, the bill would permit carriers, once receiving a contract by competitive bidding, to continue pending good performance, with 60-day termination privileges for both the I. C. C. and the contractor.

Debate was opened with a statement by Representative Randolph (Dem.), West Virginia, that insufficient payment was being made to airmail carriers. He said only $10,000,000 was being paid this year.

The turbulent developments of a year ago over cancellation of the old airmail contracts figured in debate. Mrs. Rogers (Rep.), Massachusetts, spoke in favor of the legislation, but complained against "this fiasco" of last year and asked that there be no more such "experiments."

The name of Elliott Roosevelt, son of the President, as vice-president of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce, was brought into the discussion by Representative Culkin (Rep.), New York. "I am wondering if his personality and family connections have any relation to the penitential attitude of Mr. Farley," Culkin said.

Representative Maas (Rep.), Minnesota, on questioning by Representative Taber (Rep.), New York, said he understood the Chamber was for the bill and that young Roosevelt was its representative in Washington.

Maas, in reply to a question as to whether Presidents' sons should bury themselves in a desert, asked: "Is there no other job besides lobbying in Washington?"

RIVER AND ICE SLABS POUR INTO WISCONSIN RAPIDS, WIS.

Superstructure on Dam Gives Way and Damage Estimated at $100,000 Is Done in City.

By the Associated Press.

WISCONSIN RAPIDS, Wis., March 25.—Carrying slabs of ice from 24 to 36 inches thick, which had been piling up for 48 hours, the rising waters of the Wisconsin River broke off a timber superstructure on the dam at Biron, two miles north of here, and surged into the city last night, causing an estimated $100,000 damage.

The splash boards which were torn away were eight feet high and as they gave way, a wave of almost equal height poured in. The water flushed into basements to depth of from four to eight feet, extinguished fires and damaged stocks of merchandise in storerooms.

At the Consolidated Water Power & Paper Co. mills, motors were grounded and other equipment soaked.

As the water receded snow plows were used to clear streets and roads along the outskirts of the masses of ice.

In the rural sections to the north, the water dammed back by the ice gorge forced the river to overflow its banks to a distance of 200 yards in some places on either side.

Many farm homes were isolated and families were forced to flee from others when fires were put out by the wave.

Figures in Fraud-Marriage Suit

ABOVE, HAZEL BETH McARTHUR and her daughter, 7-year-old HELENE, whose father, the mother charges, is GORDON WESTCOTT (below), stage and screen actor. Miss McArthur has filed suit at Los Angeles for $307,315 damages, charging he deceived her. She says she met Westcott in a tent show in 1926 and lived with him more than a year under the impression she was his wife. Before the baby was born, she alleges, he left her and married another woman in New York. Westcott denies the charges.

HOLDUP VICTIM TURNS ROBBER TO RECOUP $8

Man and Two Friends Who He Says Drove Him in Auto Are Held for Warrants.

A man who said his home was in Springfield, Ill., and a man and his wife living in the 2200 block of South Third street are held at Police Headquarters pending application for warrants charging robbery. The Springfield man, who said he was John W. Franklin, 25 years old, told police the three held up a restaurant at 3678 South Broadway last night, taking $8, because he had been robbed of $65 in East St. Louis earlier in the day.

They were arrested at the South Third street address by Detectives Eugene Scanlan and William Donohue, who had gone there earlier in the evening on a tip that occupants were behaving suspiciously. Finding no one at home they drove around the neighborhood and a few minutes later got a radio message telling of the restaurant holdup.

John J. Ottenad, proprietor, said a man with a pistol had held him up after asking for cigarettes. The detectives scouted in the vicinity, then returned to the Third street house where they found the two men and woman. The restaurant proprietor identified Franklin, who admitted the holdup, police said, and told them his companions had driven him away after the robbery.

He said he got into East St. Louis from Springfield earlier in the day, was robbed during a saloon holdup there and then went to the home of his friends on Third street. The three drove back to East St. Louis, he said, fired shots into the place and returned. The restaurant holdup was decided on to make up for the money he lost, he said.

MURDERER OF GRACE BUDD SENTENCED TO DIE APRIL 29

By the Associated Press.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., March 25.—Albert Fish was sentenced today to die in the electric chair during the week of April 29 for the killing of 10-year-old Grace Budd.

Obligatory review of Fish's trial here by the Court of Appeals will automatically postpone execution of the sentence until late in the fall. Meanwhile police plan to investigate his confessions of killing other children.

The death sentence was pronounced by Justice Frederick P. Close who presided at the two-week trial which ended with a verdict of guilty Friday night. The crime of which Fish was convicted occurred June 3, 1928, when the child was lured from her New York home and her body dismembered in a vacant house at East Irvington, near here. Fish was arrested Dec. 13, last.

December Air-Mail Record.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 25. — A new record for volume of air mail was announced yesterday by Postmaster-General Farley who reported that 931,425 pounds were carried in December. This was an increase of 41.72 per cent over the corresponding month in 1933.

DOROTHY GISH FILES SUIT FOR DIVORCE

Actress Seeks Decree Against James Rennie, Actor, at Bridgeport, Conn.

By the Associated Press.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., March 25.—Dorothy Gish, actress, has filed suit for divorce here against James Rennie, actor, to whom she has been married for more than 14 years. She filed her application as Mrs. Dorothy Elizabeth Rennie last Friday. She charged intolerable cruelty.

The papers do not go into detail on the cruelty charge. The petition, stating there are no children, does not ask for alimony.

Miss Gish, sister of Lillian Gish, also an actress, and Rennie were married Dec. 26, 1920, at Stamford, Conn.

The marriage took place at a double ceremony in which Constance Talmadge and John Pialoglou were the other principals. The four returned to New York together and the husbands resumed their bachelor quarters.

Miss Gish has been on the stage since she was 4 years old. She played Little Willie in "East Lynne." In the days of silent movies, she and her sister, Lillian, were among the leading stars. Their biggest success was "The Birth of a Nation." Miss Gish has appeared in several Broadway productions recently.

CHANGES MADE IN JURIES FOR 1934 PULITZER PRIZES

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 25.—A survey of the juries which will submit selections for the 1934 Pulitzer prizes in journalism and letters has disclosed changes in membership for the drama, biography and history group, the Herald Tribune says.

The nine juries will submit their selections shortly to the advisory board of the Columbia University School of journalism. Under the revised rules effective this year, their selections will be suggestions only.

The chief change is in the drama jury, resulting from the resignation last October of Clayton Hamilton, Walter Prichard Eaton and Austin Strong, whose 1933 selections of "Mary of Scotland" was overruled by the advisory board in favor of "Men in White."

The new drama jury includes William Lyon Phelps, professor emeritus of Yale University, and John Erskine of Columbia University, who also is president of the Juilliard School of Music.

On the jury for biography George McLean Harper, professor emeritus of English at Princeton University, has been replaced by Henry Seidel Canby, editor and author.

Guy Stanton Ford, professor of English and dean of the graduate school of the University of Minnesota, has taken the place of Mark Antony Dewolfe Howe, author and historian, on the history jury.

The advisory board's decisions on the winners will be given to the trustees of the university for their approval on May 6, and announcement made the next day.

Nearly 6000 Claiming Fortune Built on Snuff

Estate of Pennsylvania Couple Now $17,000,000—Litigation Over Two Wills Expected to Last for Years.

PHILADELPHIA, March 25.—An estate of nearly $17,000,000, built from snuff, is the stake in litigation which will enter another round of argument tomorrow.

Nearly 6000 persons from 21 countries have laid claim to a share of the fund left by Henrietta E. Garrett. The State of Pennsylvania is one of the claimants. Walter Garrett, her husband, predeceased her, leaving a fortune of which she bequeathed only a fractional part.

His will, not the widow's, is the point of current controversy and before the claimants will get an opportunity to prove relationship a legal interpretation of item 13 in the will is necessary. Months, perhaps years if there are appeals, will elapse before the books are finally closed.

Left Estate of $6,000,000.

Garrett died Feb. 17, 1895, leaving a will, made five years earlier, disposing of an estate which had grown from $3,000,000 to $6,000,000.

Item 13 reads in part:

"I give, devise and bequeath to my dear wife, Henrietta E. Garrett . . . all the rest, residue and remainder of my estate, real and personal whatsoever and wheresoever situate, for her own absolute use and disposal.

"And not having been blessed with any children, I desire that at my death she shall make a will disposing of all her property so that she may know to whom it shall descend."

The estate continued to grow, and when Mrs. Garrett died in 1930 it totaled $17,000,000. She left a note disposing of $62,000, but apparently failed to carry out her husband's instructions to name beneficiaries of the rest.

The army of claimants which sprang up is divided into two groups, between 50 and 60 asserting kinship on the husband's side and more than 5000 on the woman's side.

Claims of Garrett's Kin.

Garrett's reputed kin argue the widow died intestate with respect to the unbequeathed fortune, inasmuch as she did not fulfill her husband's instructions. They contend the money reverts to his estate, on which they make claim.

Claimants on Mrs. Garrett's side argue that his expressed "desire" was not mandatory, but gave her an absolute and not merely a life interest in the estate. That being the case, they say Mrs. Garrett was vested with the entire estate.

The commonwealth of Pennsylvania is a third party to the proceedings, contending that his will placed absolute control of the fortune in Mrs. Garrett's hands. It avers, too, that most, if not all, of the claimants on her side have no legal right to the estate and it escheated to the commonwealth.

On the interpretation of item 13 will rest the future course of the contest.

Several Family Branches in Bavaria Expecting to Benefit.

AUGSBURG, March 25.—Everybody in Southern Bavaria is asking how soon the big "Philadelphia melon"—the $17,000,000 estate of Mrs. Henrietta E. Garrett, nee Schaefer, who died in Philadelphia in 1930, without direct heirs, is to be cut.

This fortune is claimed by several branches of the Schaefer family, which is spread all over the Suabian region. An impo[illegible] Schaefer clan in Hesse and a[illegible] at Altofen, Hungary, also e[illegible] claims; in all, about 600 persons.

American lawyers have been pouring over 100-year-old documents, with the result that five Schaefer brothers, residing in Augsburg, Munich, Kaufbeuren, Schwabmuenchen and Langerringen, are considered to have the best chances of participating in the "golden rain," as it is called here.

The village priest of Bolstern, Wuerttenberg, has returned from Philadelphia, where he exhibited in quarters concerned the original entries in the Bolstern church registers showing the birth of one Christian Schaefer Aug. 8, 1808.

This Chritsian Schaefer is said to be Mrs. Garrett's grandfather, who emigrated to the United States with his wife, started a piano factory and prospered.

It is figured here that the Schaefers will eventually inherit only one-half of the estate; one-quarter going to Grandmother Schaefer's descendants and the rest for taxes and expenses.

TERMINAL AND CITY AGREE ON BRIDGE

Railroad Association to Build Approaches and Guarantee $500,000 a Year in Tolls

The city government and the Terminal Railroad Association reached an agreement, at a conference in the Mayor's office today, by which the Terminal will build the needed approaches for the Municipal Bridge within a year, and will then use the bridge, at a guaranteed return to the city of not less than $500,000 annual tolls.

Mayor Dickmann said after the conference that the plan would be presented by the Terminal probably next week, in the form of an application to the Board of Public Service for a construction permit. The application will contain the Terminal's guarantee of $500,000 a year tolls.

Use of Eads Bridge.

The Mayor said also that he hoped the city would be able, after the Terminal begins using Municipal Bridge, to exercise its privilege of acquiring the upper deck of Eads Bridge, as a municipally owned public highway. Under the 1930 ordinance, the city would be required to pay $140,000 a year rental for Eads Bridge. As the first few years' Municipal Bridge toll receipts will have to be remitted to the Terminal, until it is repaid for the cost of building the approaches, the city might have, at first, to use other municipal funds for this rental.

The Terminal has already expended $1,400,000 in approach construction, which the city is obligated to repay to the Terminal in remitted tolls. To this will be added about $750,000, which is the Terminal's estimate of the cost of the remaining work. This will make a total of $2,150,000, which it would take the city four years to repay, unless the Terminal tolls were much in excess of the $500,000 annual minimum.

Terminal Board Represented.

Officials of three large railroad systems, members of the Terminal, which will use the Municipal Bridge after completion of the approaches, accompanied Henry Miller, president of the Terminal, to the conference in the Mayor's office. They were L. W. Baldwin, trustee of the Missouri Pacific, H. E. Newcomet, Western vice-president of the Pennsylvania, and C. S. Millard, vice-president of the New York Central. They appeared as representing the Executive Committee of the Terminal Association board, to which the matter was referred after negotiations had reached a critical stage recently.

Under the accepted plan, the Terminal will do the work without Government or private financing. The work will employ work crews of the Terminal, and materials and supplies belonging to the Terminal will be used. The work will be under supervision of the Board of Public Service. Upon its completion, the time of which is specified as one year hence, the approaches shall be the property of the city, which, however, will have to pay for them in remitted tolls.

City Negotiated Loan.

The city recently negotiated a $1,103,000 loan from the PWA, with the backing of the RFC, for construction of the approaches. The Terminal raised legal objections to the form of guarantee required by the Government agencies. The matter was further discussed on the recent visit of Jesse H. Jones, head of the RFC, to St. Louis. Proposals for a private loan were also considered, but the Terminal's decision was that it would try to finance and peform the work itself.

Comptroller Nolte, President Brown of the Board of Public Service and Associate City Counselor Wayman, with the Mayor, represented the city in the conference today. Thomas M. Pierce was present as counsel of the Terminal, and downtown retailers and the Chamber of Commerce were represented by Walter Smith, Scott De Kins, David Eiseman and Frank Lawrence.

M. O. TRUITT GETS $10,000 RFC JOB

St. Louis Attorney Appointed Solicitor—Represented Federal Agency in Bankruptcy Cases.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—Max O'Rell Truitt, a St. Louis lawyer who has represented the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in the bankruptcies of the Missouri Pacific and Frisco railroads, today was appointed Solicitor of the RFC at $10,000 a year salary. He is a son-in-law of United States Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky.

At the same time Chairman Jesse Jones announced that James B. Alley, at present head of the banking division of the RFC, will take the place vacated by Stanley Reed as general counsel. Reed resigned to accept the post of Solicitor General last week.

Truitt's new position has not been filled since the resignation in July of 1933 of Francis Plimpton. Although Truitt is now in Washington, Jones said that he would not take his new office until he had wound up legal work he has been carrying on for the RFC in St. Louis. Truitt's firm, Green, Henry & Remmers, will take over the balance of this work, Jones said.

Alley has been with the RFC for several years and so have Harold W. Newman, Russell L. Snodgrass and James L. Dougherty, who were today given the title of Assistant General Counsel, which carries no increase in pay. Alley's salary will be increased to $12,000. He had an active part in taking over the Harley Clark holding company, included in collateral for the loan to the Central Republican Bank, which carried with it nominal control of the Laclede Gas Light Co. of St. Louis.

"These are all men who have worked night and day for this organization," Jones said. "We wanted to promote men within our own organization."

Truitt resides at Conway and Warson roads and has an office in the Boatmen's Bank Building.

ITALIANS CLASH WITH ETHIOPIAN BAND, KILLING ONE

Rome Communique Says Patrol Was Fired on by Armed Party Inside Boundary of Eritrea.

FIRST SKIRMISH ON THAT BORDER

Addis Ababa Announces Withdrawal of Soldiers From Frontiers, to Show Desire for Peace.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, March 25—A Government communique today announced a new fight between Italians and Ethiopians, during the night of March 23, in which one Ethiopian was killed.

The skirmish was fought on the frontier of the Italian colony of Eritrea.

It was the first clash on the Eritrean frontier since the tension between Italy and Ethiopia developed, the other incidents having occurred on the frontier of Italian Somaliland.

The communique said that while a frontier squadron of Eritreans under the command of an Italian Brigadier were patroling the border, it encountered a body of armed Ethiopians 300 yards inside the border near Omager.

The Ethiopians were said to have answered the Italian officer's notice to leave with rifle fire. They fled after a skirmish, leaving behind one dead man and some weapons.

The Government said the Italian Minister to Addis Ababa had been instructed to protest and to reserve the right to present an account for reparations.

Says Troops Have Withdrawn.

Ethiopian troops are no longer concentrated along the frontiers of Italy's East African colonies, according to an official communique from Addis Ababa, given out by Negradas Yesus, Ethiopian Charge d'Affaires, today.

"This attitude," the communique said, "has been assumed by the Ethiopian Government to give proof to the natives of the nation's strong wish for peace which today, as always, animates Ethiopia; and to demonstrate that even in the face of danger to her independence, owing to the vast military measures of Italy, Ethiopia wishes only to confine her just cause to the League of Nations."

The communique said that the Ethiopian Government expresses its gratitude to the world press for its "honest and impartial attitude."

Gratitude to Press.

It concluded by saying: "When God wishes to destroy man he confuses his brain. Thus has he confused the brain of those spreading accusations against us that we protect slavery and say Ethiopians throw slaves into the sea when they cannot flee from ships guarding these seas to repress commerce in slaves.

"However, Ethiopia does not possess one meter of coast line or even a rowboat."

RUSSIANS URGED TO WATCH FOR SPIES AMONG OFFICIALS

"Enemies Under Direction of Foreign Secret Service Departments" Reported Found.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, March 25.—A call for increased watchfulness against "enemies acting under the direction of foreign secret service departments" was published in Pravda today.

The paper said such agents had been penetrating into responsible Soviet positions and mentioned the recent arrest of 1074 former Czarist officials at Leningrad as evidence that "there are still political and criminal rascals in Russia who take advantage of every opening."

Pravda charged that an attitude of "stupid confidence, carelessness and indifference" on the part of many who should be on guard against such elements was responsible for their success.

Pravda said a spy recently had been found holding an important job at Zaratoff and had been executed. It said another posing as a candidate for the Central Executive Committee, became a member of the local Election Committee at Dagistan before he was found out.

Another case involved an "enemy of the Soviet" who obtained a job in Moscow in which State property was entrusted to his keeping. His identity was discovered and he was sent to prison.

New Archbishop of Westminster.

VATICAN CITY, March 25.—Pope Pius XI named Mgr. Arthur Hinsley Archbishop of Westminster, England, today, succeeding the late Francis Cardinal Bourne. Mgr. Hinsley has been titular Archbishop of Sardis and Canon of the Patriarchal Basilica of St. Peter's.

SECRET LETTERS BETWEEN KINGS IN 700 B. C. FOUND

Archeologists Report Discoveries at Ancient City of Lachish.

JERUSALEM, March 25. (By Jewish Telegraphic Agency) — The correspondence between two kings dating back to the time of Jeremiah, 700 B. C., has been discovered by the archeological expedition led by Prof. J. L. Starkey of Great Britain, it was learned yesterday.

The discovery was made at Tel Ad-Duweir, the ancient city of Lachish. It consists of 12 fragments which are taken to be an exchange of secret letters between the kingdom of Judea and the kingdom of Babylon or Egypt.

The fragments carry inscriptions with biblical spelling, all written in ink. The scripts are amazingly well preserved.

Details of the findings were made known to the Palestine Government, but were not given out to the press. Prof. Starkey expects to find more fragments in other sites shortly to be excavated. He will issue a statement on the exact significance of his findings.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, March 25.—The archeologists are on the trail of the world's first brewery. It may have been operating, they think, in Mesopotamia some 6000 years ago. A flat seal found in the ancient mound of Tepe Gawra shows two men stirring the contents of a vat with long poles.

RFC HEAD ON COMPULSORY ALLOCATION OF FREIGHT

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—Compulsory allocation of freight between railroads and truck lines was described by Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, today as offering a solution to the struggle for business between the two competing forms of transportation.

He said the freight division should be made by the Interstate Commerce Commission or some other regulatory agency, and that railroads should use busses to cut down short-haul passenger train losses.

Jones gave his opinions during a discussion with newspaper men of the railroad situation.

Asked about the bus and truck situation, Jones said railroads should not be discouraged in the "proper use of busses and trucks, but all should be regulated and do what it is best suited to do."

HEAD OF FARM BUREAU WANTS DOLLAR DEVALUED FURTHER

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—Further devaluation of the dollar was urged on Congress today by Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Testifying before the House Banking Committee on the omnibus banking bill, O'Neal said devaluation "to a normal level" would be "the most effective step" that could be taken to increase employment and purchasing power and consolidate recovery thus far attained.

O'Neal said that in general the economic picture was much brighter now than two years ago, but that farmers still were getting "little more than a subsistence income."

"Today's dollar," he said, "is too dear in terms of goods and services to permit normal business."

COMMUNIST NEWSPAPER SAYS IMPERIALISTS HOPED FOR WAR

Pravda Asserts Railway Sale Ends Chance of War That Would Benefit Outsiders.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, March 25.—The sale of the Chinese Eastern Railway to Manchoukuo and Japan is said by the Communist newspaper Pravda to blast the hopes of "some imperialistic Powers" who, it said, had relied on a war between Japan and Soviet Russia "to further adventuristic plans in Europe."

They hoped that this war would weaken both sides and that they would benefit by the situation, the paper adds.

The newspaper Izvestia says the rail negotiations were successful, "thanks to the Soviet's firm aim for peace and the conviction that for the protection of peace it is necessary to have a force which commands esteem."

"Flying Duchess" Safe in Algeria.

LONDON, March 25.—Anxiety regarding the whereabouts of England's "Flying Duchess," the 60-year-old wife of the Duke of Bedford, was relieved today when word was received that she had arrived safely at Oran, Algeria, Saturday. She reported she planned to fly across the Sahara Desert to Nigeria and then to Khartum. The Duchess, accompanied by her pilot, Flight Lieut. Preston, took off five days ago.

FILIPINOS NOISILY GREET APPROVAL OF CONSTITUTION

TORCHLIGHT PARADES HELD IN PROVINCES

Preparations Made for Plebiscite on Change to Commonwealth Status for Next 10 Years.

By the Associated Press.

MANILA, March 25.—The Philippines set out joyfully yesterday on the road to independence.

Throughout Saturday night the people celebrated as word flashed from village to village in the provinces that President Roosevelt had approved the proposed Constitution for a Commonwealth Government that is scheduled to be replaced by a republic 10 years hence.

The celebration was unexpectedly noisier in the outland than in Manila. Hundreds of torchlight parades were held in the provinces. Some of these even caused consternation because the more remote villages were not aware of the time of the signing and thought the bells and whistles heralded a fire.

Leaders in Manila expressed solemn satisfaction, believing the largest step in their future already had been taken.

There was an undercurrent talk of the possibility of making the Commonwealth Government permanent instead of replacing it by a wholly independent republic in another decade. However, no leader would speak publicly, especially in the absence of Manuel Quezon, President of the Insular Senate, who is in Washington. Quezon is to be President of the new Government.

The Insular Legislature will meet April 8 to pass a bill authorizing a plebiscite at which the people will either ratify or reject the Commonwealth Constitution.

Almost unanimous acceptance appeared certain, the only opposition arising thus far has been from Emilio Aguinaldo, leader of an insurrection in 1898 against American rule, and from the "Sakdal" — the Communist party.

Aguinaldo was disgruntled at recent harsh treatment from politicians concerning his private estates, some of which he was forced to relinquish.

The bill authorizing the plebiscite, already drawn, appropriates 150,000 pesos (roughly, $75,000) for the balloting expense. It extends the ballot to women who qualified and to residents in the non-Christian provinces, where special boards are to be provided.

Three million ballots are being printed. They quote in effect Article IV of the Tydings Act passed by the American Congress, as follows:

"A favorable vote on the Constitution will be considered an expression favorable to independence. An opposing vote means the present Government continues."

Politicians immediately went to work on plans for coalition of the major parties, which appeared assured. The Commonwealth Government will allow the Philippines to manage their own affairs, subject to a few important exceptions. The United States will be represented here by a high commissioner.

NORMAN THOMAS URGES YOUTH TO PREVENT WAR

"Say to Bloody Statesmen and Seekers After Gain You Will Not Be Dragooned."

By the Associated Press.

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 25.—Norman Thomas, Socialist leader, said in an address to the Young People's Federation of Buffalo last night that youth is challenged today as never before to "fight for ideals, future and lives."

"It will not be long before war may bring us again a false prosperity," Thomas said. "You young people have it in your power to make or mar your future.

"It is your challenge to be organized and courageous enough to say to the bloody statesmen, the seekers after gain and the self-exploiters that you will not be dragooned and bludgeoned into another war."

Charging false patriotism was used to bring nations into conflict in 1914, Thomas declared the same forces were again attempting to marshal "blind nationalism" for another great war.

NEW YORK SOCIALISTS GET 6 WEEKS TO OBEY

National Committee Threatens to Revoke Charter of Old Guard.

By the Associated Press.

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 25.—In an effort to avert a split in the Socialist party of America, the National Committee last night voted to give the New York State Committee, leader of the old guard group, six weeks to obey orders of national headquarters.

If the New Yory body does not comply, the National Committee made it plain it would revoke the State charter and reorganize the party.

The National Committee men, before adjourning, warned labor and farmers "against the danger of building a party around Huey Long and the Rev. Charles P. Coughlin, who would use the party for their personal advantage and probably destroy the labor movement."

The old guard has refused to support the party's declaration of principles, denouncing it as Communistic.

In extending the offer of peace the National Committee laid down requirements which it insisted must be fulfilled. The chief one was that all members of the party support the party's declaration of principles, something the old guard has refused to do in the past.

Before acting on the New York issue, the committee had adopted a resolution saying "advocacy of armed insurrection" was "incompatible with membership in the party."

SUCCESS LAID TO U. S. TRIP

Soviet Mining Chief Explains Advance in Gold Standing.

MOSCOW, March 25.—Knowledge acquired on an inspection trip in Alaska and the United States enabled him to put the Soviet gold industry over the top, A. Serebrovsky, head of the Government gold mining department, said yesterday in a published statement.

"To be honest we must say we learned from the United States," Serebrovsky explained in calling attention to an official announcement Russia had advanced to second place in world gold producing countries. His trip was made on orders of Joseph Stalin, who encouraged the adoption of American methods.

FRENCH NAVAL PROGRAM APPROVED BY DEPUTIES

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, March 25.—The Chamber of Deputies today voted 453 to 125 to build a 35,000-ton battleship and two destroyers as the French 1935 naval program.

Francois Pietri, Minister of Marine, pleaded for the big warship, calling a battleship "the center of battle—and all the rest are accessories." The bill, which now goes to the Senate, carries authority for the laying of the keel for a second 35,000-ton battleship when the Washington treaty expires at the end of 1936.

Dr. Lasker to Stay in Russia.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, March 25.—Dr. Emmanuel Lasker, former chess champion of the world, announced yesterday he would make his permanent home in Soviet Russia, where he will organize and direct an Academy of Chess. His decision to remain in this country was brought on by the conviction "there is a great depression in the science of chess abroad."

STRACHEY, BRITISH AUTHOR, PREDICTS VIOLENCE IN U. S.

But Says He Does Not Advocate Use of Force, in Debate at New York City.

NEW YORK, March 25.—Evelyn John St. Loe Strachey, British author, said last night that he did not advocate violence to cause a social change in America, but admitted that he "predicted" it.

Strachey met Dr. Everett Dean Martin, psychologist, liberal, and author, in debate at Mecca Temple. An overflow audience listened to the debate over direct wire to Carnegie Hall. The subject was "Resolved: That the present crisis can be solved only by Communism." Strachey took the affirmative.

'Any sane man would incomparably prefer that any social change be affected by the most peaceful, rational and constitutional means," Starchey declared, "but it is the people in control, the capitalist class, who have this question to decide."

Dr. Martin said he thought there was "very little chance of a revolution in the United States."

"Anybody who thinks the American farmer would stand for a proletarian dictatorship simply doesn't know this country," he said.

References to William Randolph Hearst and Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins were booed by the audience during the introduction of the speakers by Roger Baldwin, chairman of the debate.

THREE SUPREME JUSTICES CONFER WITH SENATE GROUP

Speaking for Court, They Say Legislation to Speed Test of Laws Is "Unnecessary."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—The Supreme Court feels that proposed legislation intended to speed tests of Federal laws in the high tribunal is "unnecessary." Chief Justice Hughes and Associate Justices Brandeis and Vandevanter, speaking for the entire court, presented this opinion today to the Senate Judiciary Committee.

They spent an hour with the committee in executive session in response to an invitation to testify on a bill by Senator Black (Dem.), Alabama, providing for an immediate appeal directly to the Supreme Court on any injunction or other court order restraining a Federal agency or employe from carrying out the provisions of any Federal law.

30-HOUR WEEK REPORT CALLS JOB BILL 'PALLIATIVE'

Senate Committee Says Black Measure Would Give Work to 5,000,000 Now on Relief.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—The Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, in its report urging compulsory reduction of the work week in industry generally to 30 hours, said emergency work relief measures were "mere palliatives." The committee recommended enactment of the Black bill, which would bar from interstate commerce products of establishments working more than 30 hours a week.

The report, written by Senator Neely (Dem.), West Virginia, said passage of the Black bill would transfer 5,000,000 persons from relief rolls to jobs in private industry.

"Hope for economic recovery lies in the 30-hour week," the report said. "Jobs on emergency public works are merely temporary palliatives. They afford neither permanent nor sufficient security for our vast army of unemployed."

"Traditional Method."

Declaring that private industry offers the "traditional American method of employing our people," the report said wage earners and others with small incomes comprised 90 per cent of the country's customers. This large mass of consumers, it said, must be employed before normal business can be restored.

"Innumerable idle American machines, mines, factories, farms, women and men present to the world a record which for suffering, inefficiency and waste surpasses every other similar record in the history of the world," the report continued.

"The enforced idleness of our plants, and more than 10,000,000 toilers, still completely paralyzes a large part of our productive system and deprives the people of the comforts which they are entitled to enjoy."

Effect of NRA Policies.

The report said the employment policies of NRA in shortening hours and establishing minimum wages had resulted in "the employment in industry of several million idle workers," but that "business has not pursued, and apparently never will voluntarily pursue" the full

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Tenant Farmers and Acreage Contracts.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IN a letter from Frank McClelland recently published by you, in a lengthy discussion of the influence of the economic theories of Veblen on the policies of the present national administration, the following passage occurs: "You may be sure the share-cropper does not benefit by the reduction of acreage." This is an example of the misinformation which is disseminated, on the one hand, by reactionaries who attempt to condemn the Government's program in the eyes of the people with such epithets as "regimentation" and, on the other hand, by certain radical groups which apparently can be satisfied with nothing less than the collectivist farms which are being so successfully operated in the Soviet Republics.

The Federal Agricultural Adjustment Act of May 12, 1933, as amended, provides that all tenant farmers, renting on shares, may become members of their local corn-hog association. (I use the corn-hog association for the sake of illustration—the same general principle applies to the other production associations). Having become members, the act further provides that the benefit payments under the reduction program shall be made to the landlord and to the tenant in the same proportion as their respective shares of the crop. Section 12 of Part III of the standard corn-hog contract, which all landlords and tenants claiming the benefits of the production program must sign, reads as follows: "The undersigned represent that all owners and operators of the land covered by this contract who are entitled to a share of the corn or hog payment are included herein, and represent and agree that no device has been or will be adopted to deprive tenants or croppers in 1935 from receiving that share of the payments hereunder which they would have been entitled to receive under lease, tenure or agreement under which the same farming unit was operated in 1934, or to defeat the purposes of this contract."

Paragraph 1, Section A, of Ruling III of the Secretary of Agriculture, relating to the corn-hog contracts, reads as follows: "If all the land covered by contract is rented in 1935 by the producer from one landlord on a crop-share lease, or if all of the farming unit is rented by the producer from one landlord on a crop-share lease which provides for cash rent for land in the farming unit for specific use as pasture or for the production of hay, the corn payment shall be divided between the landlord and the producer on the same percentage basis as the division of the corn crop or proceeds thereof between the producer or landlord under such 1935 lease. . . . provided, however, the landlord shall not receive a percentage of the corn payment greater than he would have ben entitled to receive under the 1934 lease or tenure for such land or farming unit. . . . and the county allotment committee shall not recommend for acceptance by the Secretary any contract where . . . changes have occurred, unless the committee is satisfied that the change was not for the purpose of depriving the tenant(s) of payments or any part thereof under the contract. If the land covered by a contract was rented for cash in 1934 or was not under lease in that year, the landlord shall not receive more than 50 per cent of the corn payment under the contract, except as otherwise approved by the county allotment committee in accordance with the above."

A study of the above by anyone who desires to be informed will disclose the error of Mr. McClelland's statement more clearly than could any polemic of mine. Eighty per cent of the corn acreage in my county, Chariton, is under contract. A large number of the producers occupying this acreage are tenants. They have all received their proportionate share of benefit payments made under rulings similar to those above, and after a year of widespread drouth, I imagine none of them would exchange the benefits which they have enjoyed for an entire set of Veblen, bound in red leather.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

NOW that President Roosevelt has completed two years of his term of office, it seems appropriate to take stock of the New Deal.

It certainly has not brought back prosperity. Almost 23,000,000 persons are now receiving relief; and if to this figure is added the total of persons employed by public money, the total unemployed in a normal way is truly appalling.

The NRA, which was to be our industrial Magna Carta, is now liquidating the small business man at the most rapid rate in our history. After all the enthusiastic talk about helping the underprivileged, redistributing the wealth, etc., the result to date is a steady destruction of the middle classes and the moderately well-to-do. He who possesses invested capital, even in a moderate amount, is a pariah.

I am not a politician. I am only a tax-paying citizen who is becoming rather anxious to know what road we are traveling and what the end of the journey will be.

OUR SHOCKING CRIME RECORD.

The United States leads the world in one unenviable field—the homicide rate. More than 11,000 persons are slain annually in this country, or 9.2 out of every 100,000 of population. In Europe, the lowest rate is that of the Netherlands; the highest, that of Italy. The American rate is 29 times the former and three times the latter. And this country's rate has been steadily increasing since 1900.

The facts about this significant topic are explored in an article by Dr. Louis I. Dublin, statistician, and Bessie Bunzel, in the current Survey Graphic. They disprove various contentions offered to explain this country's record. Is this lawlessness characteristic of a pioneer country? But our rate is five times that of Australia, 10 times that of New Zealand, five times that of neighboring Canada. Are sub-standard economic conditions responsible? "But certainly no country enjoys greater material advantages than does ours."

For one theory—the uncertainty and frequent miscarriage of justice in this country—ample support is found. Statistical study bears out this point:

> In 611 cases of homicide investigated by us, 86 persons had been killed by officers of the law while resisting arrest or while engaged in committing a crime, 54 assailants committed suicide and 13 died before arraignment. This left 458 assailants answerable to the law.
> Of these, 18 per cent had not been apprehended one year after the act, 108 were released for lack of evidence, eight were declared insane and 258, or 56 per cent, were actually brought to trial; one-quarter of these were acquitted and nine cases were pending 12 months after the slaying.
> Only 43 per cent of the 458 who should have been prosecuted were actually declared guilty, eight were sentenced to death and 170 to prison for terms of varying length and nine were released either with suspended sentences or upon payment of a fine. Not a very good showing!

This is only one contributing factor in a complex set of causes, which include extreme poverty, dependency and unemployment, squalid and insanitary homes, lack of proper recreational facilities and "the collapse in ethical ideals." These are fundamental factors, on whose remedy the whole economic and social future of the country rests.

In immediate consideration of the crime problem, the investigators say: "There is much room for improvement in the efficiency of our police departments and in our legal machinery." In this, they concur in the finding of the Wickersham commission in 1931, which also found varied causes, and asserted: "Another significant factor in the American criminal situation is the inefficiency in the enforcement of the criminal law."

One phase of the battle to make that law more efficient is seen in Missouri at present in the efforts to modernize the State's archaic criminal code and so take away some of the advantages that the criminal now enjoys in his war on society. State legislators bear a terrific responsibility when they seek to thwart this reform.

ST. LOUIS CONGRESSMEN ON THE BONUS.

The vote on the Patman bonus bill discloses that all three St. Louis Representatives—Messrs. Cochran, Hennings and Claiborne—were against it. Cochran and Hennings voted "nay" and Claiborne was paired against the measure. We commend these St. Louisans for refusing to join a stampede inspired by fear of the veterans' lobby. Only 90 votes out of 428 were counted against the Patman bill, which is designed to debase the currency in the interest of a minority, many of whom are in no need of help. Whatever political reprisal may be visited upon the three St. Louisans for opposing the Patman bill will be compensated, we daresay, by the support of thousands of citizens, ex-service men included, who are not in sympathy with this latest raid on the Treasury.

HOW PERMANENT REGISTRATION WORKS.

A recital of actual experience with permanent registration is the best way to answer objections to the method. For that reason, the article on Detroit's experience, published in the Post-Dispatch recently, should convince anyone who may have doubted the merit of the plan.

Detroit has found—

Greater convenience: Because only one registration is required as long as the voter remains a resident of the city, citizens are saved time and trouble. Greater accuracy: Voting lists are kept constantly up to date by reports from the Bureau of Vital Statistics on deaths; from the police, moving firms and utilities on removals; finally, by a mail carriers' check on the full list. More honesty: The essential signature requirement is an effective bar to fraudulent voting, and the closer check on registrants works against padding and colonization. Better citizenship: Detroit has had a larger turnout of voters since the plan went into effect, says Mayor Couzens. Economy: The cost per registrant has fallen from 39½ to 27¼ cents, a saving estimated at $65,000 for next year.

Detroit's experience thus meets the objections that have been made against permanent registration. All the objections, that is, save those of "practical politics." Hundreds of jobs at the polls, juicy plums for party workers, are abolished in favor of a mere handful of permanent Election Board clerks. And the opportunities for political machines to remain in power by trickery are greatly reduced.

Are the advantages found in Detroit, and elsewhere as well, insufficient to cause the Missouri Legislature to act favorably on the permanent registration measures now before that body? Or are the politicians' objections to prevail? The experience of other cities makes it possible to draft an ironclad measure for those of Missouri. Will the Legislature take favorable action, or face the inescapable accusation that the politicians' desires come before the people's needs?

It is not yet too late to act.

A LEGISLATIVE DUTY IN ILLINOIS.

One of the plainest duties of the Illinois Legislature is to reapportion the State for membership in the national House of Representatives. As we have pointed out on other occasions, there are great inequities which have resulted from unequal population changes in the generation since the last redistricting.

While it may be argued that Representative McClure's reapportionment plan would not distribute Congressmen wholly in accordance with population, it cannot be denied that this bill provides a good start toward that desirable goal. To oppose it because it would throw Congressman-at-large Brennan of Bloomington and Congressmen Lucas of Havana and Arends of Melvin into the same district, or because it would force Congressmen Buckbee of Rockford and Allen of Galena to oppose each other, is to raise a protest insufficient in itself. As for Illinois' two Congressmen-at-large, any arrangement would place them in districts with other Congressmen. Indeed, one of the primary purposes of redistricting is to eliminate their posts. In this connection, Illinois may well note that Missouri's last redistricting forced three Congressmen into one district and placed two together in another.

Criticism of the McClure bill should be constructive, that is, designed to bring about the best possible reapportionment by the present Legislature. The Horner administration will need to apply itself to this end if it is to keep one of its campaign pledges.

LAST CHANCE FOR LACLEDE.

The report of the aldermanic committee which has been investigating the gas situation in St. Louis plainly serves notice upon the Laclede Gas Light Co., which enjoys a gas monopoly in the city. Laclede can, if it will, give the people cheap gas. It can do so by becoming what it was before the Munroe and Clarke outfits exploited it—a corporation seeking a fair profit from public service.

The committee gives the following as the principal causes of the high cost of distributing gas in St. Louis:

> Over-capitalization of the Laclede company; intercorporate transactions affecting its purchase of coal, engineering and management, and various and sundry interfamily transactions; management of the company by a foreign utility holding company which seems to lack the proper understanding of local conditions and needs, and which seems unwilling to co-operate with the public in establishing rates which will tend to promote a greater volume of sales and thus enable the company to reduce the unit cost of production and distribution.

If Laclede is unwilling to take the steps necessary to give St. Louis cheap gas, the committee recommends a municipal system. There is nothing new about Laclede's opportunity. We have called attention to it time and again. We have said that if it would give the people cheap gas, it could continue to enjoy its monopoly without great objection on the part of anyone. We have shown how the company supplying San Francisco not only increased its business by lowering its rates but actually increased its profits.

The gas inquiry now passes on to the Public Service Commission, which begins a separate inquiry today in Jefferson City. When the evidence is all in, the situation will be crystal clear. We have an abundance of natural gas within easy reach of the city, and St. Louis cannot avail itself of it because Laclede is not free to serve either the community interest or its own.

The aldermanic committee does not wish to hurt the coal industry. It is not deceiving itself as to the relief which natural gas can give to a community tortured by smoke. It wants to help the people, to restore the value of property and conserve public health. Its warning to Laclede is perfectly fair and just. Certainly if anything can induce this mismanaged corporation to break away from obstruction and give the people a measure of relief, the report of the aldermanic committee should do so.

Mene, mene, tekel, upharsin, said the handwriting on the wall. It is written for Laclede in plain letters of soot.

A WAR SCARE EBBS.

At one end of the Eurasian continent, a war scare rages; at the other, a war scare subsides. For several years, the Russo-Japanese wrangle over rights in Manchuria appeared to the prophets of doom to be insoluble by peaceful means. Compromise and settlement were dim, idealistic hopes in those days. Now, by transfer of the Chinese Eastern Railway from Russia to Japan's puppet state, Manchoukuo, the crisis, for the time being at least, is ended. The negotiations over the sale of Russia's share were long-drawn, quarrelsome, frequently interrupted by one party or the other saying an avowedly permanent farewell to the conferences. But at last terms were arranged, and an ancient quarrel gives way to formal declarations of conciliation.

Here is a pointed object lesson for those who now despair of peace because another crisis, likewise amenable to negotiation, has precipitated itself at the other end of the continent.

NOW COMES THE HESS BILL.

Following the passage by the Senate of the Wisdom horse racing bill, the House has passed the Hess bill, to permit betting both on horse and dog races. We have previously paid our respects to the Wisdom bill. It is a thoroughly bad measure. It is written in the interests of promoters and operators instead of for the protection of the public. But the Hess bill, fostered by Representative David Hess of St. Louis, is so much worse as to make the Wisdom bill look almost good by comparison.

Whereas the Wisdom bill would permit operators to deduct 11¼ cents of each dollar wagered as their "take," the Hess bill would permit them to deduct 13¼ per cent. Both these figures include 1¼ per cent for "breakage," or the odd pennies left over in computing winning wagers. The Wisdom bill, in addition, would deduct 2 cents more for State purposes, making a total of 13¼ cents. In other words, under the Wisdom bill, only 86¾ cents would remain of the bettor's original dollar before the horses ever started to run. The Hess bill would deduct 5 cents for State purposes, so that, under it, only 81¾ cents would remain of the bettor's dollar before the horses or dogs began to run.

Who in St. Louis would care to hazard his money under either of these two pieces of legislation when he could visit the Fairmount track at Collinsville, Ill., where only 6½ cents are deducted from each dollar by the operators and bets are paid off to the even penny?

The Hess bill's most serious threat is that it would legalize dog racing, a form of sport thoroughly discredited in these parts. It had a brief life in St. Louis County before the law stepped in. It had a longer life on the East Side of the river, where it was finally put out of business by the determined action of Judge Bernreuter. Almost everywhere it is found, dog racing is sponsored by unsavory characters, out to pick pennies from the pockets of the poor.

Gov. Park is said to have expressed the desire to sign a racing measure, but he would disappoint all expectations if he should place his signature to either the Wisdom or the Hess bill. If we are to have racing in Missouri, let it be on so high a plane and with such safeguards against corruption as to prevent the scandals that drove racing out of Missouri a generation ago.

JUICY PLUM.

TODAY AND TOMORROW

By Walter Lippmann

America's Interest in the European Crisis

THE European situation is not merely a drama of which we are the interested but detached spectators. It is already having an important effect over here, and it may at any time touch the vital interests of America. Although the whole position is obscure, complicated and explosive, it is not too early to begin to define the issues as they affect American interests. I realize that any such attempt is likely to give an over-simplified picture. Yet in examining any problem, if one is to think about it at all, there must be a working hypothesis, however tentative.

There are, it seems to me, two concurrent but interrelated crises in Europe today, which can be identified roughly as the crisis of deflation and the crisis of militarism. They accentuate each other in more ways than it is possible to describe.

For our present purposes, it will be sufficient to note that the latest figures show that in December, world trade was in value at its low point for the whole depression. The effect of this is to intensify the competition among nations for their share of a shrinking volume of trade and to intensify the competition of classes within the nations for their share of a greatly reduced national income. In some measure, most of the great Powers have succeeded by developing their home markets and, by expenditures on public works and armaments, in finding some compensation for the world trade they have lost.

But in all nations, this is wholly inadequate, and in all nations, therefore, the internal pressure which threatens radical reform or revolution and the external pressure which threatens war have been increasing. In the three great Powers where the pressure is most severe, in Japan, Italy and Germany, it has already produced the Manchurian adventure, the Abyssinian adventure and the Nazi rearmament, with its guns pointed toward Eastern Europe.

It may be said, I think, that America is affected at the following points: First, since we are attached to an international gold price level, the world deflation now in progress, and the greater one which is threatened, must tend to deflate us. Second, the crisis of militarism in Europe may produce a war in which neutrality will be as difficult as it was in the last war unless we are far better prepared to preserve it than we were in 1917. Third, the rearmament of Germany means that Russia and Great Britain must now concentrate all their energies in Europe, and therefore, as respects Japan, we are alone.

These would appear to be the three most immediately important consequences of the crisis as it affects the United States. They call for the formulation of three major policies dealing with international monetary matters, with preparation for neutrality and with Japanese-American relations.

A monetary policy which would produce stabilization and thus end the deflation is a matter of reaching an understanding with Great Britain. The strength of the British position in rejecting stabilization at this time rests upon the size and the power of the sterling bloc, the experience of London in international finance and the political dependence of France upon Britain, owing to the menace of Germany.

The weakness of the American position lies in the fact that, though we have great assets, they are at the moment politically unrealizable. But if Congress would consent, we could offer Great Britain and France enormous advantages in return for a currency agreement. We have a stabilization fund which could be used in cooperation with the British fund to support and maintain the agreement. We could settle the war debts. By settling the war debts, the embargo on the American capital market would be lifted, and in certain eventualities, that might prove to be a matter of life and death to Britain and France.

From our point of view and from theirs, it is costly and dangerous to have the world deflation continue. From our point of view, it would be absurd to let deflation continue in order to collect debts that cannot be collected as they stand. From their point of view, it is lunacy not to make a substantial investment by paying a respectable sum to lift the financial blockade.

A neutrality policy has two main requirements: One is to possess sufficient military strength to make it impossible for belligerents to ignore the neutral; the other is to recognize clearly the difficulties of neutrality, to have appropriate legislation enacted or at least drafted, to have plans drawn carefully for all developments that can be foreseen.

Experience has shown that the maintenance of neutrality is not a mere matter of doing nothing. American commerce and American citizens range the world, and their interests would be threatened in all the zones of war. A successful neutrality policy requires clear decisions as to which of these many interests are to be defended and by what means.

As to Japanese-American relations, it is necessary to be frank as well as firm. To be firm is to stand on the proposition that the American navy must be superior to the Japanese in the ratio of 5 to 3. The Japanese face one ocean. We face two oceans, and in a heavily armed world that does not give us the power to attack Japan in the sphere of her influence, even if we had any such purpose.

To be frank is to recognize that the weakness of China and the enforced withdrawal of Russia and Great Britain from an active position in China and Eastern Asia make it impossible for us to assume the burden of solitary opposition to Japanese imperialism in the Asiatic mainland. Our traditional policy has been based upon the idea of collective action in the Far East. There is no prospect of collective action in the Far East today, and we have to adapt our policy to the altered facts.

It may not be inappropriate to suggest that the successful formulation and execution of these three policies require the best energies of the Government at Washington and something like unified patriotic support from the people. All these rows which occupy so much of our attention—Huey Long and Father Coughlin and Gen. Johnson, the A. F. of L. and Mr. Richberg, the American Legion and the taxpayers, the electric utilities and the progressives—are, as compared with these great matters affecting our most vital interests, just chicken feed.

If all of these quarrels have to be fought out now, if none of them can be postponed, then let us at least recognize that, relative to the deepest interests of American recovery and American security, they are trifling matters. And having recognized that, let us seek to compose them, let us forego the excitement of tearing ourselves to pieces over them and diverting attention from great issues and wasting energies and brain power that we must have if we are to do justice to the American interest at this fateful hour.

Signs of Spring

From the Pulaski (Ill.) Enterprise.

SIGNS of spring do not all come at once. They come creeping up on a feller like the whooping cough until, the first thing you know, it is here. Neither does spring come bursting up like dawn in charming poetry. It gradually comes on, and no calendar date is worth one whoop to tell whether or not it is spring.

Down in the country, one of the first signs of spring is the 49,000,000 "peepers" in the old swampy lot next to the creek. These young bull frogs, just emerging from their winter's nap down in the mud, come to the top and set up a hullabaloo the first warm night after January that would deafen a boilermaker.

Up in the city, the signs are most noticeable among young people who go walking in the park or riding in some roadster and yelling at all their friends they pass. They rather sort themselves according to pairs, too. It is just a little more noticeable this time of year than any other.

The next sign that is usually sure in the country is the making of garden, where beds are spaded and plowed and raked and then planted in rows. Potatoes, peas, radishes, onions and all such garden truck are a sign of spring, and sometimes it comes the first of March and sometimes along toward the last.

Up in the city, the ball parks begin to show life and the tennis courts have their lines of lime. The college folk are all strutting around in new duds and people are beginning to get out on the porch.

But all these are mere signs. The sign of signs that never fails is a group of boys trudging along a country lane, each bringing home a string of fish. When you see that, spring has come.

LIMIT THE ALIBI.

From the Kansas City Journal-Post.

ALL honest citizens, interested in swift and sure justice in criminal cases, will hail the news that there is to be reform in criminal procedure involving the alibi. Heretofore, the alibi has been the last stand taken by many a culprit against whom the evidence is strong, although circumstantial. Often known underworld characters, through their attorneys, withhold the alibi until the trial is well on, and then spring it in an effort to confuse the issue, the evidence and the jury.

All fair people want to see justice done, but sometimes, with enough evidence to convict, and with a bad record of crimes already on the books against the accused, the prosecution authorities find themselves thwarted by an alibi about which they had no warning and on which there is no opportunity to check up.

A proposed Missouri law, which has passed the House of Representatives by a healthy majority, provides that if it is to be used in defense in a criminal case, an alibi must be filed with the prosecution 10 days in advance of trial. This is so simple a means of checking the misuse of the age-old defense that it is strange it has not been in the law long before this. It will be a great step forward in trying criminal cases.

Fireworks.

FOR one hour Richberg waved his finger under his nose, "you, as general counsel of the NRA, are responsible for the fireworks."

"Labor helped write the NRA and put it on the statute books," he thundered, "but what has labor got out of it? Nothing!"

"You, Mr. Richberg, are responsible for the administration of Section 7a."

Richberg flushed, but kept his temper. Quietly he denied the charge.

"Oh, yes you did," the miner retorted. "You issued the presidential order placing the majority rule interpretation on Section 7a. Then, three days later, you issued another interpretation, giving the majority rule and encouraging the spread of company unions, effective shop councils, and the rest of that kind of stuff."

"I blame you for the administration of Section 7a."

"Modern Miracles" Are Changing the Faces and the Trend of Everything in Our Lives, Former NRA Head Writes.

By Gen. Hugh S. Johnson.

TULSA, Ok., March 25.

WITHOUT getting even so dramatic as "breathes there a man with soul so dead?", there is some elemental kick to coming back under the tent of the particular sky where you were born and spent your boyhood.

When I first saw this country, Sapulpa was a box car on a siding, Tulsa was a little snuggle of huts and Okmulgee was a slightly larger one, only 50 miles away. But that was a day's journey if you went on horseback and traveled hard.

I flew down here Saturday—Chicago to Tulsa—in four hours in a regular transport plane with every seat occupied—over 200 miles an hour on regular schedule. It would have been faster except that for the first time in many tens of thousands of miles of flying I felt an altitude of 12,000 feet and had to ask the pilot to fly lower.

People do not recognize what is happening to them in these near miracles which are literally making over both the faces and the trend of our national life. A day's hard riding to get from one huddle of territorial huts to another 50 miles away, four hours of comfortable floating to get from one great metropolis to another more than 600 miles away. For Tulsa is a metropolis.

Business Is Better.

I know of no more modern city and although it doesn't think so—I know of few that are better off in a business way just now. They are doing a good deal of new residential building. It is not at all easy to rent a house. The stores are full of people and they are well dressed and not long-faced. Spring is in the air, full fledged in flowers and greenness.

If the rest of the country were as well off, there wouldn't be any depression. For in this spotty way we shall pull out of this mess. Every district that gets some better makes every other district a little better, and that is the great blessing of having 125,000,000 people in one country within one tariff wall.

This afternoon I got here my favorite nephew, Tommy, age 13, had just won the all-city high school oratorical prize. I persuaded him to repeat his speech, which he did very earnestly—complete with gestures and dramatic emphasis. It was a beautiful, harmonized medley of Father Coughlin and Huey Long entitled "The New Social Order." The only difference was that there was some sense to Tommy's discourse. But don't let anybody tell you that both of those tom-tom beaters haven't made an impression with the schmuss they are ladling out to this country.

I got all kinds of news queries as to whether I am down here for the Senate. It would be a great honor, but I came down here to see my mother. That leads me to another modern miracle that just couldn't have happened 10 years ago or even five years ago. During the war when I was trying to raise our army, I had to complain to Surgeon-General Gorgas about the incompetent supervision of medical examination of men for the draft. He said he would send me a good doctor. In a day or two a fat old fellow in a converted private's uniform came in and said, "Lieut. Billings reports for duty, sir." His cap did not fit. His leggins were on backwards. His hair was too long. I just groaned inwardly and said, "All right, doctor, your office is across the hall." After he went and while I was cussing about it, I happened to look at the assignment card, and got a shock. It was Dr. Frank Billings of Chicago, one of the greatest diagnosticians the medical profession ever produced. He became one of my closest friends.

Of course, it was a crime to send him on that job—like using a 16-inch gun to kill a mosquito. We kicked about it until he was made a Brigadier-General in charge of all hospitalization.

The Sequel.

The sequel is this: Last winter my mother was desperately ill. No two local doctors agreed. I went to Okmulgee to bring her to New York. She couldn't be moved. Bernie Baruch offered to fly down and bring two of the best doctors in the East. Just then I heard that one of Frank Billings' boys, Dr. Goodman, was making a local reputation as a diagnostician in Tulsa. He came and gave my mother one of those head-to-heel examinations which are the triumphs of modern medicine. After the days needed for that kind of a going over, he said: "This is a common condition of old age miscalled pernicious anemia, and it is nothing else. The treatment is very direct, simple and certain. I am going to startle you. We will have her worst symptoms out of the way in two weeks, and she will be normal for her age in two months."

I stayed a few days to see this treatment working exactly on schedule. It is now more than two months, and that is why I came to Tulsa. A man like Frank Billings is not gone from the earth merely because we do not see him any more.

There has been as much progress in medicine and surgery as there has in air traffic, the outlook of little high school orators, and in the change of Sapulpa from a box car, Tulsa to a great industrial city and Oklahoma from the wild and wooly territory I knew as a boy to one of the 12 or 14 great states on any yardstick you want to use to measure it. I wish I could say the same of the statesmanship from Abraham Lincoln to Huey Long.

PROF. FATIO ARRIVES FOR TALKS ON PEACE

Carnegie Endowment Speaker Says League Is "Brake on Swashbuckling Nationalism."

Prof. Guillaume Fatio of Geneva, Switzerland, member of the Comite of the Centre European of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, is in St. Louis to make four addresses at Washington University in the interests of world peace.

Discussing the League of Nations on his arrival yesterday, he said it was "a brake on swashbuckling nationalism, bringing arguments into the open instead of permitting them to fester into infections which only a sword will slice out." The United States, he said, was virtually a silent partner in the League, pointing out that the League was not concerned only with political questions, but had 14 departments concerned with social and economic questions.

Prof. Fatio praised the Senate's munitions inquiry as a powerful influence for world peace, and expressed the opinion that while the United States might enter a foreign war "for economic reasons," this appeared unlikely. He was complacent over Germany's plans for a larger army. He said the announcement brought a "dangerous secret" into the open and put armaments on a more equal basis so that "everybody can take a fresh start and begin trimming down together."

His schedule of addresses follows: Tomorrow at 4 p. m., January Hall, Washington University, "Geneva, the Capital of the League of Nations"; Wednesday at 10:30 a. m., Graham Memorial Chapel, "The League of Nations and Prevention of War"; Friday at 4:45 p. m., Wilson Hall, "Geneva, the Center of International Co-operation"; Saturday, 9 a. m., January Hall, "Education for International Understanding."

A tea will be given for him this afternoon at the home of Chancellor Throop, 6510 Ellenwod avenue. A Carnegie professor, he is a well-known author and lecturer and an active participant in the work of the League of Nations and the Disarmament Conference.

When the decision was made to establish the league at Geneva, Prof. Fatio helped the first league officials set up their new organization. In 1932 he was appointed by the Conseil d'Etat of Geneva to make plans for the Disarmanent Conference.

CHAMBER MUSIC SOCIETY CLOSES ITS FIRST SEASON

Gives Well-Balanced Program and Announces Plans to Continue Next Year.

The St. Louis Chamber Music Society closed its first season yesterday evening at the Woman's Club, with a program of unusual novelty played to an audience that was larger than at either of its two previous concerts. With the close of this series it seems assured that St. Louis can boast a chamber music instrument of consistently high standards—musicianly, well-balanced and, above all, gifted with the elusive faculty of congenial ensemble.

Aside from the opening piece, Haydn's String Quartet No. 3 in G Minor, the music on last night's program was all distinctly original and unusual in manner. It might have been divided into three sections, with the Roussel Serenade for flute, viola and cello, and the Joaquin Turina "Oracion del Torero" (Toreador's Prayer) comprising the second. Joseph Suk's Quartet Opus 11 ended the concert.

Rich in the traditions of eighteenth-century small ensemble music, the Haydn quartet expresses melodiously and concisely the refined beauties of classical style. The musicians led by Scipione Guidi, first violin, distinguished themselves by performing its four movements accurately and delicately. Possibly there was a trifle too much of the latter quality in the finale, but with that exception the interpretation must be conceded to have approached a ripe perfection difficult to conceive of as having originated in a newly organized group. Playing with remarkable finesse, the artists were never lacking in sprightliness and enthusiasm for the work and the reading had all the earmarks of high musical scholarship without loss of vitality.

The remainder of the music was of less substantial kind. Roussel's Serenade begins with a section that is somewhat clouded and diffuse, but the last two movements have, for this modern Frenchman, surprising compactness and great charm. The trio, featuring the playing of Laurent Torno, the flutist, were unable to clarify the first movement for this hearer, but read the last two with a precise winsomeness. The Czecho-Slovakian quartet which followed the intermission was all blood and fire in the small. Its vivacious, almost pictorial, character was exploited with warmth and gave a good approximation of the native flavor. Suk's composition plumbs no depths, but its sentimentality is full-flavored and far from vacuous.

The string quartet last night consisted of Scipione Guidi and Felix Slatkin, violins; Martin Teicholz, cello; Herbert van den Burg, viola. Plans for a second season were announced.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen

WASHINGTON, March 25.

ONE of the most dramatic battles of the year took place the other day between Donald Richberg and the labor leaders who, before the New Deal, he so ardently championed.

But it took place behind closed doors.

The issue was the extension of the National Industrial Recovery Act, which desperately needs Labor support if it is to get by Congress. Without such support the act seems doomed to be shot to bits by Senate Progressives.

Out of this dire necessity caused the bald-browed "Assistant President" to bare his breast before those who had been branding him "traitor" and "Judas" to the cause of labor throughout the land.

Facing him behind the locked doors of the NRA Labor Advisory Board were:

Fireworks.

FOR one hour Richberg told his story, gave his justification for the NRA and its labor policy. Then the pugnacious Lewis started the fireworks:

"Labor helped write the NIRA and put it on the statute books," he thundered, "but what has it got out of it?" Nothing!

"You, Mr. Richberg," and he waved his finger under Richberg's nose, "you, as general counsel of the NRA, are responsible for the undermining of the effectiveness of Section 7a."

Richberg flushed, but kept his temper. Quietly he denied Lewis' charge.

"Oh, yes you did," the burly miner retorted. "You drafted the Presidential order placing a majority rule interpretation on Section 7a. Then, three days later, put out another interpretation nullifying majority rule and encouraging the spread of company unions, ineffective shop councils and all the rest of that kind of stuff.

"I blame you for the breakdown of Section 7a."

Secret Bill.

RICHBERG pleaded and argued, finally concluded with an expression of hope that the labor leaders would support the administration's "bill."

"What bill?" demanded Lewis quick as a shot. "We have seen no bill. Is this that secret bill you are reported to have drafted and be preparing to spring at the last minute?"

"No, we have no bill as yet," Richberg said.

"We'll support no bill we know nothing about," Lewis declared. "When you have your bill in shape you submit it to us, and after we have studied it carefully we will tell you what we think about it."

Note.—Report of a secret administration bill prolonging the NRA is one thing which has aroused anti-NRA Senators.

Hughes' Mail.

WITH the exception of the White House and Huey Long, Chief Justice Hughes gets about as much fan mail as anyone in Washington.

And he is most meticulous in answering it. Every morning his messenger makes a special trip to collect and deliver it to the Chief Justice's home. Much of it, even crank letters, Mr. Hughes answers personally.

One of his prize letters bore no name or address, simply a sketch of the Chief Justice drawn on the envelope and marked "Washington, D. C." It was a perfect likeness, down to the last whisker, and was delivered immediately to the "addressee."

Good Cause.

REPRESENTATIVE "JOE" CANNON of Missouri was making a vigorous plea for repeal of the "pink slip."

"From the warmth you are displaying," remarked Minnesota's Farmer-Laborite Paul Kvale, "I take it that you are speaking from personal experience."

"I certainly am," said the Missourian. "This publicity feature was a law on another occasion and I remember quite distinctly when I got home every member of the family said, 'Why, Dad, you had a great year last year, didn't you?'"

SLOAN OPPOSED TO BLANKET TRANSPORTATION REGULATION

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, March 25.—Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president of General Motors Corporation, sharply challenges proposals to place regulation of all forms of transportation under a Federal commission in the corporation's twenty-sixth annual report just made public.

Pointing to the growth of highway freight traffic, Sloan said that "competition again exists in the field of transportation. Let us restore the principle of free enterprise and encourage initiative. This is the road to progress."

Sloan said 50,000 communities, entirely without rail service, were being served by motor vehicles, and that farmers used one out of four motor trucks to transport produce to market.

The current wage scale in the corporation is the highest in history, stockholders were told, payrolls in 1934 having totaled $263,204,225, an increase of 58.8 per cent over 1933.

"In accordance with the suggestion of the President of the United States, said Sloan, "an increase in wages of 10 per cent was put into effect in April, making a total increase of Approximately 35 per cent within a period of a year."

ABOUT 200,000 GERMANS STERILIZED

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, March 25.—Estimates that 189,677 Germans have been deprived of reproductive powers through operations decreed by Nazis were at hand yesterday concurrently with the opening of a large exhibition showing the wonders of life.

The exposition itself, which brought to thousands graphic displays, charts and models designed to encourage the Hitlerite ideal of better individual health and sound offspring, formed a climax to the Nazi eugenics and racial welfare drive. The entire show glorified the ideal of flaxen-haired Germans as the best mates.

A lawyers' weekly publication, which estimated the number of sterilizations already performed in Germany at not more than 200,000, said feeble-mindedness, split personality and epilepsy accounted for 93.1 per cent of the reasons the Nazi sterilization courts assigned for carrying out the operations. An uncounted number of persons, however, have been called to appear before the tribunals.

Sterilization is but one aspect of Nazi theories of racial welfare. Others include increasing the birth rate of farmers and others of "genuinely Nordic physiques," cataloging Germans on physical bases, and demonstrating the values of these precepts to the population. All this and more the "Wonder of Life" exposition sought to advance.

Dr. Fritz Lens of Berlin, speaking before the Kaiser Wilhelm Institute for the Advancement of Science, declared that in former years an average of about 20,000 feebleminded children were born each year, but that this, thanks to Nazi measures, has been reduced to about 10,000.

"PRINCE" BEHIND IN RENT

Harry Gerguson Arrested Trying to Enter His Room.

NEW YORK, March 24.—"Prince" Mike Romanoff (Harry Gerguson of Hillsboro, Ill.), who recently was charged as a conpirator in the Gould domestic relations suit, was arrested yesterday on a disorderly conduct charge. He attempted to force entrance to his hotel room, which was padlocked by the management for non-payment of rent.

Taken to court, the pseudo prince said he had promised the hotel's credit manager he would pay his bill tomorrow. The case was put over until Thursday; the former Hillsboro pants presser being allowed to go free on his own recognizance.

course outlined under the recovery program.

"Shorter hours, better wages and better working conditions never have been achieved without the vigorous opposition of business," the report said.

"Fundamentally, the opposition to the pending bill is that of the privileged groups who object to the enjoyment of a fair share of our wealth by those who produce it."

The report outlined as the potential results of passage of the Black bill more jobs and purchasing power without decreasing wages; increased production; reduced costs of production, and better living standards for "the average American family."

EXPLORER GREELY TO RECEIVE MEDAL ON HIS 91ST BIRTHDAY

Secretary Dern Will Make Presentation Wednesday at Military Ceremony.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—The Congressional Medal of Honor will be presented to Major-General Adolphus W. Greely, retired, noted Arctic explorer, on his ninety-first birthday Wednesday.

Secretary of War Dern will pin the decoration on Greely at the explorer's home here, in the presence of Senators, Representatives and Army officers. Among those who will attend is Brigadier-General David L. Brainard, retired, the only other surviving member of the Greely Arctic expedition.

The Third Cavalry and its band will be drawn up before the Greely home during the ceremony.

Congress voted the medal "for his life of splendid public service" and his service in the American Army from 1861 to 1906.

The expedition, led by the General in the usual course of his army duty, was primarily for scientific observation in the Arctic. It went farther north in 1882 than anyone else had been, determined previously unknown magnetic variations and made extensive explorations in Grinnell Land. For nine months the expedition awaited relief at Cape Sabine and 18 men perished from starvation and cold.

MISSOURI FLYER LAYS CLAIM TO WAR HONORS

Former West Plains Man Says He Was First American to Shoot Down German Plane.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Building.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—Senator Bennett Clark of Missouri has asked the War Department to verify the records of Stephen W. Thompson, former Missourian, who says he is the first person wearing an American uniform to bring down a German plane during the World War.

According to Thompson's claim, he shot down a German airplane on a day bombing raid over Saarbrucken, Feb. 5, 1918. Because the plane fell far behind the German lines, there were no official witnesses and the victory was therefore not credited to him, Thompson asserts. The second airplane destroyed in the World War by an American—he says was shot down behind the American lines more than two months later, and now stands as the first officially credited victory in the War Department records.

Thompson, who formerly lived at West Plains, Mo., and now resides at Dayton, O., has been very active in pressing his claim, appealing to the University of Missouri, which he attended, to aid him in establishing it. At the last session of Congress a bill was introduced to give Thompson credit for shooting down the first plane but it was disapproved by the War Department and therefore was not passed.

The War Department is opposed to establishing such "firsts," according to Clark, but he is hopeful that new evidence presented by Thompson will persuade officials to make an exception in this instance. Thompson has obtained from Maj. Otto Wagner of the historical section of the Germany Army War College, verification of the fact that a Lieut. Vetter was shot down and his Albatross plane destroyed on Feb. 5, 1918, at Saarbrucken. This was obtained from the war diary of Combat Squadron No. 3 on file in the German archives at Potsdam. The entry for the date in question tells of the ascent of the squadron to meet a French air attack.

EARLY SPRING BRINGS OUT MAGNOLIA TREE BLOSSOMS

Most of Those in Bloom in the Parks are of the Soulangea Variety.

Early spring has brought out the blossoms of magnolia trees in Forest and Tower Grove parks, and on Lindell boulevard and other residence streets. Many motorists admired the blooms yesterday, and persons on foot were able to smell the sweet-scented pale rose-hued flowering.

The magnolia trees in St. Louis are mostly of a type imported from Holland, but known as the Chinese magnolia. Those now in bloom are the Soulangeas, except for a few in Forest Park, with white blooms, which are the starry, or magnolia stellata. Other varieties grown here, which are later flowering, have red petals.

HEAD OF MADISON COUNTY SANITARIUM QUITS IN ROW

Dr. D. D. Monroe Objects to Dismissal of 11 Employes by Board of Trustees.

Dr. D. D. Monroe, superintendent of the Madison County Tuberculosis Sanitarium, near Edwardsville, submitted his resignation today, effective April 10, following a dispute over the discharge of 11 employes of the institution by the board of trustees.

Dr. Monroe stated the dismissals were made without his advice, and while the sanitarium was in stringent financial circumstances, he believed he should have been consulted as to which employes were to be discharged and the arrangements to be made. He said there had been dissension between himself and the board for two years.

The sanitarium, controlled by a board of three members, is largely supported by the county. Dr. Monroe has been superintendent since the building of the institution in April, 1926.

FEDERAL CONTROL OF UNIONS URGED AT SENATE HEARING

Counsel for League for Industrial Rights Comments on Wagner Bill.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—Federal regulation of trade unions was urged today by Walter Gordon Merritt, counsel for the League for Industrial Rights.

If the Wagner labor disputes bill is passed, he told the Senate Labor Committee, unions will be so clothed with the public interest that they should be regulated to make them "conform to certain standards of decency and democracy in their affairs."

The bill as it stands, he said, makes "no attempt to correct their well-known abuses."

GIRL POISONED BY MISTAKE

Wanda Rankin, 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Rankin, 4323 Manchester avenue, is in serious condition at City Hospital, suffering from the effects of poison administered by mistake for a headache yesterday by a woman attendant at the House of Detention.

The attendant said she reached into the wrong bottle for a headache tablet. The girl had been at the House of Detention since Saturday, when she was detained after leaving her home, police said.

FUNERAL TOMORROW FOR DR. G. W. CALE JR.

Chief Surgeon for Cotton Belt Railroad Died Yesterday Following Operation.

Funeral services for Dr. George W. Cale Jr., chief surgeon for the Cotton Belt Railroad, who died yesterday at St. Luke's Hospital, will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Spring avenue and Lindell boulevard.

Dr. Cale, who was 68 years old, submitted to an operation for gastric ulcers a month ago. Death resulted from complications which followed the operation.

Since 1929, when he became chief surgeon for the Cotton Belt, Dr. Cale had divided his time between St. Louis and Texarkana, Tex., where the railroad maintains its principal hospital. His home in St. Louis was at 12 Westmoreland place.

Surviving are his wife, a daughter, Mrs. James K. Tully, and four sons, George W. Cale III, B. F. Hobart Cale, Julian Dutro Cale and Dutro C. Cale II. Two brothers and four sisters also survive.

A native of St. Louis, Dr. Cale was graduated from the Washington University Medical School and did post graduate work at the universities of Heidelburg and Berlin. At various times he taught at the medical schools of Washington and St. Louis Universities.

For 23 years he was chief surgeon for the Frisco Railroad, whose hospitals here and at Springfield, Mo., were constructed under his supervision. From 1918 to 1928 he was chief of the surgical section at St. Luke's Hospital. In the Spanish-American War he served as Major and chief surgeon for the First Missouri Infantry.

Dr. Cale was a fellow of the American College of Surgeons and of the Royal College of Surgeons of England. He was a member of the St. Louis, Missouri and American medical associations, and a past vice-president of the Mississippi Valley Medical Association.

PEACE RALLY TO BE HELD AT THIRD BAPTIST CHURCH

Bishop Oldham of Albany, N. Y., and Dr. A. W. Palmer of Chicago to Speak Tonight.

Bishop G. Ashton Oldham of Albany, N. Y., and the Rev. Dr. Albert W. Palmer, president of the Chicago Theological Seminary of the Congregational Church, will speak tonight at 8 o'clock at a peace rally at the Third Baptist Church, Grand and Washington boulevards.

Bishop Oldham's topic will be "The Christian Church and War." Dr. Palmer will speak of "Peace or War, the Supreme Dilemma of Our Age."

Before the meeting there will be a dinner at the Union Methodist Church, 3610 Delmar boulevard, for the group of about 40 St. Louisans who are sponsoring the rally, with the co-operation of the St. Louis Council of Organizations Promoting Peace. Bishop Oldham and Dr. Palmer will speak briefly at the dinner.

The St. Louis Ministerial Alliance, which met this morning at the Downtown Y. M. C. A., devoted its session to the peace movement. Speakers were the Rev. J. W. Meredith of the Maple Avenue Methodist Church; the Rev. E. B. Willingham of the Delmar Baptist Church, and the Rev. H. A. Woolfall of St. Peter's Episcopal Church.

CHURCH TO VOTE ON BAPTISM AS ADMISSION REQUIREMENT

The Rev. Dr. Jay T. Stocking Tells Board of Deacons That Some Adults Object to Rule.

Members of Pilgrim Congregational Church, Union boulevard and Kensington avenue, will vote Wednesday night on a proposal to eliminate the requirement of baptism for admission to church membership. This requirement has existed since the church was organized in 1866.

If a proposed change in the by-laws is adopted, the practice of infant baptism will be continued, and such older persons as desire baptism will receive it, but it will no longer be a necessary condition of church membership. It has been found that some adults demur at the requirement of baptism. This situation was presented to the board of deacons of the church by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Jay T. Stocking, and the deacons decided to recommend modification of the by-laws. Notice was given in the church bulletin yesterday of this and other proposed changes to be voted upon Wednesday night.

THREE KILLED IN AIRPLANES

One Death in Ohio and Two in Kansas in Crashes.

By the Associated Press.

OTTAWA, O., March 25.—Irvin Tierman, 30 years old, was killed near here yesterday when his airplane crashed on a farm from an altitude of 500 feet. Two witnesses said a wing apparently buckled and the plane went into a nose-dive. The craft was a two-seater biplane and Tierman was flying alone.

By the Associated Press.

TOPEKA, Kan., March 25.—Pilot Laverne Norris, 25 years old, and Joe Seaman, 34, were killed yesterday by the nose-dive of an eight-year-old plane they had borrowed for a pleasure trip. Witnesses said the motor stalled at an altitude of 1000 feet.

PASTOR STARTS FIGHT ON RACING BILLS

Takes Vote of Congregation and Says He Expects to Go to Jefferson City.

The Rev. Dr. C Oscar Johnson, pastor of Third Baptist Church, Grand and Washington boulevards, who is chairman of a Church Federation Committee against race track gambling, took a vote of his congregation of 1500 last night on the racing measures which have passed the State Senate and House. The congregation was unanimous in disapproving the bills.

Dr. Johnson said today that he and the committee probably would go to Jefferson City when the two measures, the Wisdom bill passed by the Senate, and the Hess bill adopted by the House, come before a conference committee. The Wisdom bill would legalize pari-mutuel or certificate betting on horse racing. The Hess bill would permit also dog race betting in the St. Louis area. Both bills provide for revenue for the State, to be allotted to agriculture and education.

In a pulpit talk last night, Dr. Johnson said he had lately visited Rhode Island, and had inquired as to the effect of similar legislation there. "Business men in Providence," he said, 'told me their business was almost at a standstill while the race track was operating. Their customers were spending too much of their money at the tracks, and were not buying clothing, shoes and furniture, and this effect continued for some time after the racing season ended.

"Hotels, saloons, rooming houses and restaurants were the only lines of business which were benefited. The promises of the race track promoters that employment would be increased, many visitors attracted, and large revenue provided, were only partly fulfilled.

"The moral side is more important than the economic. It is a moral loss to the community to have its people inveigled into the betting ring."

EAST ST. LOUIS BAIL BOND INQUIRY BY GRAND JURY

Judge in Instructions Says Justices of Peace Are Responsible in Such Cases.

The East St. Louis grand jury met in City Judge Cook's court today to consider the bail bond situation there which was brought to light by investigation following the murder of William C. Moss, street car motorman, in a holdup last Feb. 22.

Judge Cook charged the grand jury to not be prejudiced by assertions of a political faction that the police are responsible for the bond situation, since the fixing of bail is the sole responsibility of the Justices of the Peace. He then expounded the law on the signing of bail bonds, and the grand jury began calling witnesses.

Informations were issued Saturday charging Justice of the Peace Walter W. Hindehberger with malfeasance in office and naming four Negor bondsmen, Jesse Crigler, Mose Allen, Minor McDonald and Joe Nelson, with violating the professional bondsmen's act, passed by the Illinois Legislature in 1931.

Van Buren Dedmon Jr., John Krul and Edward Balling are under indictment awaiting trial, charged with the murder of Moss. Dedmon and Krul had been released on bond after confessing a series of robberies and burglaries six weeks before the Moss murder, and Balling was identified as a robber, but was released by a deputy sheriff.

DOG TRACK PROSECUTOR FILES SUIT FOR $25,000

C. C. Ellison Seeks Amount for Salaries and Expenses of Himself and Assistant.

Suit for $25,000 against Madison County was filed at Edwardsville today by C. C. Ellison, Alton lawyer, for salaries for himself as special prosecutor and for an assistant, together with their expenses, from Sept. 2, 1931, to July 17, 1934.

Ellison was appointed special prosecutor by Circuit Judges Bernreuter and Millier in their crusade against dog tracks, which resulted in the closing of the Madison Kennel Club track on Collinsville road. Ellison had two assistants at the time, Harry Faulkner of Granite City and Henry Eaton of Edwardsville.

SUES EX-HUSBAND FOR $3125

Former Wife of Henry B. Graham III Cites Separation Agreement.

Suit for $3125 alleged to be due under a separation agreement was filed in Circuit Court today by Miss Virginia Mills of Boonville, Mo., against her former husband, Henry B. Graham III. The petition states that Graham agreed to pay her $125 a month under an agreement signed in November, 1931, but ceased payment in February, 1933.

Graham's father, Henry B. Graham, was shot and killed in 1921 by his Negro chauffeur, whom he had rebuked. His estate, valued at $500,000, went to his three children.

Report of Woman's Body in River.

Following a report by a fisherman that the nude body of a woman was floating in the river at the foot of North Market street last night, firemen searched in the vicinity. They planned today to move several barges, moored nearby, on the theory that the body may be lodged there.

4 BLASTS IN STRIKE AREA

Police Questioning Four Men on Dynamite Thefts.

By the Associated Press.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., March 25.—Four week-end dynamitings in the Luzerne County mine strike area sent State and local police on new investigations today.

At the same time inquiries were in progress on the finding of dynamite in three places, and police were questioning four young men concerning the reported theft of five cases of the explosive from a station of the State Highway Department. The last dynamiting of the week-end was at the duplex home shared by Martin Holland and Martin McNulty, employes of the Pittston company, early today. Previously, the home of John Steligo, at Kingston, was damaged by an explosion; a charge of dynamite went off after being hurled at the Newport Township home of John Dolinski, a Glen Alden coal company employe, and the home of Paul Miskin at Larksville also was the target of a blast.

POLAND TO FREE WOMAN SPY WHO AIDED GERMANY

Proposal Also Made That Her Husband, Now Under Life Sentence, Be Sent Back to Silesia.

EXCHANGE FOR POLISH CAPTAIN

By the Associated Press.

WARSAW, March 25.—A German woman spy found her hope of happiness bound up today with the fate of Baron George Sosnowski, the Polish Captain whose espionage career caused the beheading of two German noblewomen.

Theodora Ogurek and possibly the man she married in prison will be returned to Germany in exchange for Sosnowski, who was condemned to life imprisonment in the Reich. The newlyweds, now in separate prisons, would be reunited.

Miss Ogurek was born in Polish Silesia when that province was part of Germany. Her family, Polish in origin, was Germanized for generations, and her father was an officer in the German army.

Volunteered as Spy.

So keenly did she resent the fact that eastern provinces were sliced from Germany under the Versailles Treaty that she volunteered to spy for the country she regards as her fatherland.

Greater than her love for Germany was her love for Ernst Drazga, who came from a part of Silesia that remained German and is therefore a German citizen. They joined in a dangerous espionage career.

They were arrested more than a year ago and taken January, 1934, before a Warsaw emergency court. Drazga, because of his German citizenship, faced life imprisonment, but the girl seemed doomed to death.

Meanwhile Leon Sliwinski, a Warsaw attorney, engaged to defend her, was greatly impressed by the pluck and patriotism of the woman who stood her hardships unflinchingly.

Permission for Marriage.

He suggested to Drazga that he marry Theodora in order to obtain German citizenship for her. Polish authorities, who appreciated that Miss Ogurek spied not for money but because of patriotism, granted permission for the marriage. A dispensation "in articuli martis" was given by the church. This obviated the necessity of publishing banns three weeks in advance.

Both permits came the night before the trial. It was late, but the prison chaplain consented to perform the ceremony in the prison chapel.

Sliwinski and one of his colleagues were the two official witnesses, but the little chapel was filled with guards. They even stood between the bride and bridegroom to prevent them from exchanging a single word.

The next morning the trial of the man and wife started. Life imprisonment was decreed for both..

ST. LOUIS C. OF C. BOARD OPPOSES AAA AMENDMENTS

Thinks All Growers and Processors Would be Subject to Will of Agricultural Secretary.

The board of directors of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce announced today that it is opposed to the proposed amendment to the Agricultural Adjustment Act. The board says that all growers, processors and purveyors of agricultural products would be subject to absolute powers of regulation by the Secretary of Agriculture.

The board is opposed to measures which would permit payment of rentals and benefits in kind; which would authorize the Secretary of Agriculture to acquire commodities pledged as security for loans; which would allow the majority of large producers to force quotas on smaller producers; and which would give the Secretary of Agriculture the power to license processors of agricultural products.

Wichita Street Car Strike Ends.

By the Associated Press.

WICHITA, Kan., March 25.—Street car and bus service here, crippled by a strike of operators for an increase in pay from 45 to 65 cents an hour, returned to normal yesterday with the wage issue deferred. A. J. Cleary, superintendent of the Wichita Transportation Co., said operators were asked to continue at the present scale six months to allow for a study of the 5-cent fare recently put into effect.

LABOR ROW HINDERS WORK ON HIGHWAYS

Union Men Refuse to Handle Materials Produced by Non-Union Plants.

Refusal of the hoisting engineers' and building laborers' unions to handle gravel, sand and stone produced by non-union plants resulted in cessation of work at a number of construction jobs in St. Louis and St. Louis County today. The shutdown was not complete, although some work was hampered or temporarily halted by the rain.

The controversy arose several months ago when a union hoisting engineer at the proposed Hampton avenue viaduct over Manchester avenue refused to handle non-union materials.

Members of the Municipal Contractors' Association asserted that the two unions had violated an agreement with the association not to stop work, but to submit disputes to arbitration. At the hoisting engineers' union office and the Building Trades Council it was said a strike had not been called. Spokesmen of the laborers' union could not be reached.

Contractors thought as many as 4000 men might be affected by the shutdown, which interfered with the work of other trades and even stopped some grading work because the contractors did not want to proceed until assured of materials.

Among jobs stopped because of the material-handling controversy were the Kingshighway underpass for the express highway, near Chouteau avenue, and the Page avenue viaduct over the Wabash Railway, both State Highway Department undertakings. About 125 men quit working or were laid off on these contracts. Some ready-mixed concrete plants were closed, but others were able to continue.

85 PCT. OF ELIGIBLE VOTED IN 46 AUTOMOBILE PLANTS

69 Pct. of Those Casting Ballots Were Unaffiliated With Labor Organizations.

DETROIT, March 25.—The Automobile Labor Board announced yesterday that 69.5 per cent of the automobile workers voting for collective bargaining representatives in nominating elections conducted by the board throughout the industry have been unaffiliated with any labor organization.

The figures disclosed by the board included the results of elections through March 22, in which workers of 46 automobile plants cast aa total of 146,948 ballots. The returns represented 85 per cent of the eligible voters in those plants, the board said.

Of the voters participating, the board announced, 13.75 per cent expressed affiliations with various factory employe associations; 7 per cent favored American Federation of Labor unions; 4 per cent the Mechanics Educational Society of America. There were scattering votes for 10 other organizations. Of the ballots, 2.75 per cent were blank and 2.5 per cent were void for various reasons.

The board said the totals included the votes in the Chevrolet and Fisher Body Co. plants in Kansas City.

STANDARD TESTS FOR BABY INTELLIGENCE

Parents of 240 Children Take Infants Every Two Months to Iowa U. Laboratory.

By the Associated Press.

IOWA CITY, Ia., March 25.—Since 1929 an "infant laboratory" directed by Dr. Harold Skeels has been working out standardized tests for child intelligence at the University of Iowa. Parents of 240 children now are bringing them in at two-month intervals for inspection under the psychological microscope.

Here are the "behavior patterns" your infant heir should measure up to, the experts say:

Six months—Able to sit momentarily without support, hold a block in each hand momentarily, pound on table with spoon or rod, reach for seen objects within a short distance, turn head toward sharp sounds, look on floor when object he plays with falls, push vigorously with knees when lying on stomach, play with toes, transfer object from hand to hand, smile, recognize people.

Twelve months—Walks with help of adult, stands alone momentarily, lowers self from standing to sitting position, holds cup to drink from, sits alone, pulls self up to standing position by chair or crib, says two or more words, imitates movements, recognizes familiar persons.

Eighteen months—Scribbles vigorously with pencil, turns pages of a book, climbs stairs and walks alone, recognizes objects in pictures, drinks from glass, uses spoon and fork in feeding self, says from two to five words, points to one or more parts of body with question.

Twenty-four months—Walks and runs with ease, piles blocks and builds towers, talks about pictures and identifies objects in pictures, obeys simple commonds given verbally without gestures, unwraps paper from candy or block, uses words in combinations, tells experiences.

BOND SALESMAN MENTIONED IN FASCIST INQUIRY DIES

Gen. Butler Testified Gerald C. MacGuire Proposed March on Washington.

NEW YORK, March 25.—Gerald C. MacGuire, New York brokerage house employe who figured in testimony given before a congressional committee by Gen. Smedley D. Butler concerning an alleged Fascist plot to seize the Government, died last night in Grace Hospital in New Haven, Conn., from pneumonia and complications.

CLEAN YOUR TEETH

100% Cleansing Properties
Twice that of tooth paste

Contains No Grit or Pumice Cannot possibly scratch the softest enamel

Outlasts Tooth Paste 2 to 1

THERE is nothing known that will clean and polish teeth so quickly and leave them so gleaming white—as POWDER.

That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know—always uses powder.

As it is only the powder part of any dentifrice that cleans, a dentifrice that is ALL POWDER just naturally cleans best.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is ALL POWDER—100% cleansing properties. This is more than twice the cleansing properties of tooth pastes. Dentists everywhere recommend Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder because—teeth simply cannot remain dull and film coated when it is used.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder cleans off all stains and polishes the teeth in a harmless and practical way that leaves them sparkling—many shades whiter.

Free from all grit or pumice, Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder cannot possibly scratch, or injure the softest enamel.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder keeps your teeth REALLY CLEAN and clean teeth mean—firm, healthy gums and the least possible tooth decay. Powder leaves your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed, and your breath so sweet and pure.

Once you use powder you will never go back to tooth paste. People by the thousands are changing daily.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is not only doubly efficient, but it costs only half as much to use. Even a small package lasts twice as long as a tube of tooth paste.

DR. LYON'S TOOTH POWDER

A steer made up only of porterhouse steaks and rib roasts would be as much of an oddity as a ten-legged horse or a tree that produced not apples, but apple pies.

It is because so little of a steer can be cut into rib roasts and porterhouse steaks (an average of 26%), and they are liked so much, that they cost considerably more than the less demanded cuts.

Only about 55 per cent of the average live steer sent to market is meat. Only about 26 per cent of the dressed carcass consists of the rib and loin — the parts most in demand. Less than half of this loin is made up of porterhouse and club steaks — the choicest parts of all.

The choice cuts of beef are always in greater demand, while some others move slowly. In order to get rid of all cuts of beef equally well, retailers necessarily maintain a wide range of prices on the various cuts and sell them at prices which will dispose of them promptly. Thus, porterhouse steaks may be selling for several times the price per pound of the less demanded portions, which must be priced at a great deal less.

Fresh beef is highly perishable, and must be disposed of at once. Consumer buying habits do not permit any other course and, therefore, fresh beef can not be held for "a price".

Swift's average net profit is only a fraction of a cent per pound from all sources. Such has been true over a long period of years. This profit is so small as to have no appreciable effect upon meat or livestock prices.

AIMS OF ZIONIST REVISIONISTS EXPLAINED IN ST. LOUIS TALK

Vladimir Jabotinsky, Leader of Movement, Speaks at the Y. M. H. A.

The aims of Zionist Revisionists for the development of Palestine were explained by Vladimir Jabotinsky, a world leader of the movement, in a lecture last night at the Y. M. H. A., Union boulevard and Enright avenue.

Revisionists, Jabotinsky said, seek a majority Jewish society in Palestine, instead of a minority colony. Creation of a majority Jewish state in Palestine, he added, would be but a step toward the ultimate objective of providing a refuge there for millions of Jews scattered throughout the world.

Jabotinsky urged "mass action" to arouse public opinion in England, which holds a mandate over Palestine, in favor of the reforms sought by the Revisionists.

G. P. DORRIS NAMED RECEIVER FOR MOON MOTOR CAR CO.

Succeeds Seneca C. Taylor, Who Has Been Ill for Several Months.

George P. Dorris was appointed receiver of the Moon Motor Car Co. by Circuit Judge Baron today to succeed Seneca C. Taylor, who has been ill at his home for several months. Taylor had written the Court that his illness prevented him from attending to his duties as receiver for the Moon company and the Carthage Marble & Lime Co. Judge Baron said he would appoint a successor receiver for the Carthage company during the day.

The Moon Motor Car Co., 4900 North Main street, has confined its business to selling parts for Moon automobiles since it went into receivership in December, 1930. The Carthage Marble & Lime Co. has been in receivership four years.

SECURITIES COMMISSION TO LIST STOCK SWINDLERS

Will Set Up Seven Regional Offices to Aid in Keeping of Records.

WASHINGTON, March 25. — The Securities and Exchange Commission expects to have a record in Washington soon of every known stock swindler in the United States.

"By a system of cross-filing and by working with state commissions," Joseph P. Kennedy, chairman of the commission, said yesterday, "we hope to have complete data on every known gyp operator and to learn about new ones as quickly as they spring up.

"Through newspapers and radio in regions covered by our offices, we shall inform the public of stock fraud devices being used, and how to watch out for particular schemes and individuals."

The commission is setting up seven regional offices.

"Their job," said Kennedy, "is to watch the stock markets in their regions for signs of manipulation; to check on securities that should be but are not registered with the commission, to investigate complaints, and to look around for fraud on their own hook."

C. OF C. BOARD GIVES VIEWS ON MISSOURI BILLS

Urges Defeat of Measure for Appointment of Public Administrator in All Will Contests.

SIX OF 14 OTHER PROPOSALS APPROVED

They Include Four Affecting Handling of Estates —Restriction of Prison Goods Indorsed.

Passage of the Frost-Quinn bill, now pending in the State Senate and providing for mandatory appointment of Public Administrators to handle estates involved in will contests, is opposed by the board of directors of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, it was announced today.

The recommendation for defeat of the bill was included in a report stating the chamber's stand on 15 measures before the Legislature. The bills were studied and recommendations made by the Legislation and Tax Committee of the chamber. Eight bills were approved and seven disapproved.

Regarding the Frost-Quinn measure, known as Senate bill 137, the report pointed out that the "present law provides that if the validity of a will is contested, the Probate Court shall grant letters of administration to the executor named in the will if he have no beneficial interest in the estate save commissions allowed by law."

Redrafting Suggested.

The report suggested that the bill might be redrafted to provide that the Public Administrator be appointed administrator pendente lite if the court found that the executor had an interest in the will adverse to any contestant. The report also objected to the portion of the bill relating to administration of personal property belonging to nonresidents of the State.

Senate bills 134, 135, 136 and 138, relating also to administration of estates, were approved by the board's report, which said they were designed to strengthen the laws relating to administration of estates of deceased and incapacitated persons. They are, respectively, a bill making it a felony for a person with power of attorney to remove property from a safe deposit vault when he knows the holder is dead or insane, and requiring banks holding such property to notify authorities when learning of the death or incapacity of the holder; a bill authorizing the Probate Court to appoint a guardian for the estate of a person adjudged insane; a bill applying the same provision to trust companies that bill 134 does to banks, and a bill prohibiting the premium on the bond of a public or private administrator being charged to the cost of administration.

Bill on Prison-Made Goods.

The board also approved House bill 471, which would prohibit sale of prison-made goods in the open market, limiting their use to public institutions. Other bills approved: House bill 510, to tighten the law relating to operation of trucks; House bill 433, providing that restrictions on bank loans to businesses shall not apply if the Federal Reserve Bank or RFC has agreed to discount all or part of the loan, and House bill 316, providing for deposit of Government bonds as security for deposits in state depositories.

Senate bill 95, requiring credit rating bureaus to file $50,000 bond, was disapproved by the report, which held the measure would "probably put bureaus out of business," and also would legislate Better Business Bureaus out of existence.

Also disapproved was House bill 392, which would prohibit repossession of goods under a chattel mortgage without refunding to the mortgagee all money paid in, less a reasonable amount for use of the goods. The report said passage would "virtually prevent installment sales in Missouri."

Opposes Amendment.

Senate joint and concurrent resolution No. 9, proposing an amendment to the Constitution, empowering the Legislature to classify property for purposes of taxation and to exempt from taxation any class of property was disapproved by the board. "Under this bill," it said, "voters could exempt from taxation all homesteads and thus make factories stand the entire burden."

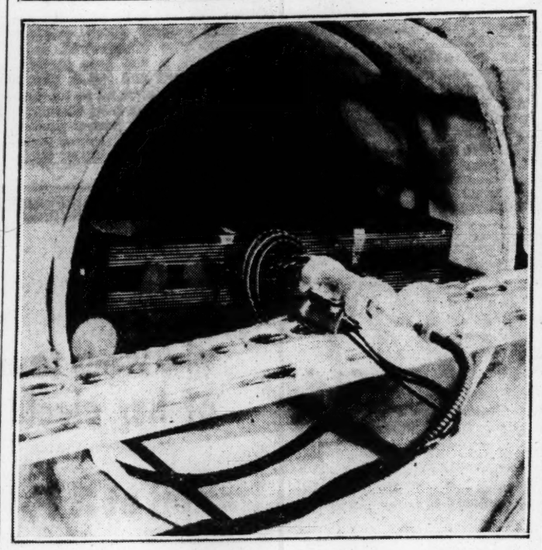

Other bills disapproved were Senate bill 144, providing that gifts made within two years of death shall be deemed to have been made in contemplation of death; Senate bill 127, relating to settlement of damage suits, and House bill 517, relating to deposits of funds for which surety companies are responsible.

AMERICAN YACHT AGROUND ON COAST OF COLOMBIA

Aid Sent to New Yorker and Wife Stranded in Remote Spot for Two Weeks.

By the Associated Press.

BOGOTA, Colombia, March 25.—Belated dispatches from Istmina, capital of the Intendency of the Choco, said today that Mr. and Mrs. William T. Murnam, who sailed out of New York on their yacht "Seven Seas," were marooned on the coast of Colombia. They have been there about two weeks.

The "Seven Seas" ran aground on the Usaraga beach near Pizarro, several miles away on Cape Corrientes, when motor damage forced the Murnams to seek a safe anchorage in the Usaraga inlet. They stranded on the rocks.

Natives swam out to the yacht, were unable to understand the Americans, and finally found a Jamaica Negro who served as interpreter and returned to the mainland to inform the Mayor of Istmina of the Americans' difficulties. The Mayor, in turn, reported to the port captain of Buenaventura who ordered the Government tug, Andagoya, to start for Usagara in an effort to get the "Seven Seas" afloat. The tug is expected to reach there about April 5.

FILLING STATION HELD UP; RESTAURANT MAN ROBBED

Boy Caught Stealing Chickens Names Companion; Stolen Machines Recovered.

When Mrs. Kathleen Young, a policewoman, stopped at a filling station at 5100 Natural Bridge avenue last night for gasoline the attendant, James Terry, informed her that he had just been held up by an armed man who had run out the rear door. Terry got in Mrs. Young's car and they searched the neighborhood for the robber, who had escaped with $15.

John J. Ottenad, proprietor of a restaurant at 3678 South Broadway, was robbed of $8 and forced to lie on the floor last night by a man armed with a revolver.

August Armbrecht, 5300 Nagel avenue, found two youths stealing his chickens last night and captured one, a 15-year-old boy. The prisoner named his companion, who is 17 years old. Police arrested the youth named and searched his home, on Rutger street, recovering a moving picture machine and a radio, which, they said the boys admitted stealing from Madison School March 8. The boys told the officers they sold a second radio taken from the school.

TWO MEN, ONCE IN GERMAN PRISON CAMP TOGETHER, MEET

St. Louis Physician Finds War-Time Friend Among Judges at Dog Show.

Once fellow inmates of a German prison camp, Dr. A. A. Mitten of Philadelphia and Dr. Arthur H. Sewing, 2349A St. Louis avenue, met yesterday at the dog show for the first time since the World War.

Reading that Dr. Mitten, an outstanding dog fancier, was one of the judges at the show, Dr. Sewing went to the Arena and found his war-time friend. They exchanged anecdotes.

The two physicians were in a camp at Villingen for about four months after being captured at Fismes.

FRAUD VICTIM IMPRESSED BY INTERVIEW WITH GOVERNOR

R. C. Fillingham Gets Two Years For Scheme in Which Gov. Park Played Unwitting Part.

Richard C. Fillingham, 24 years old, pleaded guilty today of using the mails to defraud Charles R. Buschart of $2000 by promising him a State printing contract, and was sentenced to two years in the Federal reformatory at Chillicothe, O.

Assistant United States District Attorney Robinson told Judge Davis that Buschart, who is in the printing business at 1427 Locust street, had paid the $2000 after Fillingham had taken him to Jefferson City where they called on Gov. Park. In the brief meeting with the Governor, he said, there was no discussion of a printing contract, but Buschart was impressed with what he took to be Fillingham's influence at the Capitol. Later Fillingham wrote him that the scheme had "blown up."

Fillingham was not represented by counsel. An older brother asked the Court to be lenient because of the youth of the defendant. Judge Davis said he doubted he would consider a parole, but had no objection to the probation officer looking into the case.

City of St. Louis, Missouri

April 2, 1935

(Submitted pursuant to Ordinance 40460)

Shall the City of St. Louis be authorized to borrow money and issue bonds in the sum of Three Million Six Hundred Thousand Dollars ($3,600,000) for the purpose of providing for the support, maintenance and care of children and sick, aged and insane, poor persons and paupers, and for poor relief and of providing and maintaining charitable facilities and services.

For increase of debt.....YES

(If you are in favor of the bond issue, strike out the word "NO". If you are opposed to the bond issue, strike out the word "YES".)

INSTRUCTIONS TO VOTERS

On receipt of his ballot, the voter shall forthwith, and without leaving the enclosed space, retire alone to one of the voting booths so provided, and shall prepare his ballot for voting in the following manner: Should the voter desire to vote a "straight" party ticket he shall place a cross (X) mark in the circle immediately below the party name. If the voter desires to vote for one or more candidates on more than one party ticket, by voting what is commonly called a "split ticket" he may place a cross (X) mark in the circle immediately below one party name and mark cross (X) marks in the squares at the left of the names of candidates on other tickets for whom he wishes to vote. If the voter desires to vote for one or more candidates whose name or names do not appear on the printed ballot he may do so by drawing a line through the printed name of candidate for such office, and writing below such canceled name the name of the person for whom he desires to vote, and placing a cross mark in the square at the left of such name. The squares so marked shall take precedence over the cross (X) marked in the circle. Where there are two or more candidates for like office in a group a cross (X) mark in the square to the left of a candidate's name, automatically votes against the candidate whose name appears within the same horizontal lines in the column under the circle in which appears the cross (X) mark unless the voter indicates another candidate to be voted against by drawing a line through such candidate name. All candidates of the party whose circle is marked shall be counted as voted for excepting where squares are crossed preceding the names of the candidates in other columns if two or more candidates for the same office are thus designated, neither shall be counted. If the cross (X) is not placed in the circle immediately below the party name at the head of the column, but does appear in the squares opposite the various candidates' names, then only these names shall be counted for, and none other. A cross (X) mark in any line crossing any other line at any angle within the voting space, and no ballot shall be declared void because a cross (X) mark therein is irregular in form. It shall not be lawful to deface or tear a ballot in any manner nor to erase any printed name "except as provided above in this section," figures, word or letter therefrom, nor to erase any mark made thereon by such voter, nor inclose in the folded ballot any other paper or any article. If the voter deface or tear a ballot, or wrongly mark the name or make an erasure therein, he may obtain one additional ballot on returning to the ballot clerk the one so defaced or wrongly marked. A ballot placed in the ballot box without any mark shall not be counted. Ballots shall be counted only for the person for whom the marks thereon are applicable; when a voter shall place a mark against two or more names for the same office, and only one candidate is to be chosen for the office none of the candidates shall be deemed to have been voted for and the ballots shall not be counted for either such candidate. Before leaving the booth the voter shall fold his ballot in such a manner as to conceal his marks thereon. He shall mark his ballot without undue delay. He shall then hand the ballot to the judge of election selected to take ballots, who shall number the ballot and deposit it in the ballot box. The voter shall quit and leave the voting booth as soon as possible.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the undersigned, composing the Board of Election Commissioners for the City of St. Louis, Missouri, have caused this notice to be signed and the official seal of the office affixed at office this 23rd day of March, 1935.

CHICAGO GUNMEN IN AUTO SHOOT AT STATE'S ATTORNEY

Prosecutor Courtney Cut by Flying Glass in Attack on Way Home in Early Morning.

ASSAILANTS' CAR OUTDISTANCES HIS

Official, Active in Prosecution of Gangsters and Racketeers, 'Has Idea' Who Did It.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 25.—Eight bullets were fired at State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney early yesterday by several gunmen whose small automobile drew abreast of his car as he was returning home from a political meeting. None of the bullets struck him, but he was cut by broken glass.

Courtney was accompanied by Alderman Harry E. Perry and Detectives John Cronin and James Kelleher. As the gunmen overtook his car, one of them leaned out and opened fire with a revolver. Perry and Courtney, who were in the back seat, crouched low. Splinters of glass from a shattered window showered on them as the attackers' car sped on.

Examination disclosed that a quarter-inch strip of metal in his car had deflected one bullet fired near his face.

In his two years and four months in office, Courtney has conducted an active campaign against gangsters and racketeers. He obtained the conviction of members of the Touhy gang for the kidnaping of John (Jake the Barber) Factor. Recently he has been trying to break up bootleg organizations seeking to control labor unions.

"I do not wish to say at this time who I suspect," Courtney said. "Of course I have an idea, but I'll let my actions speak for me. There's going to be 'heat' and lots of it."

Courtney, a Democrat, was elected State's Attorney of Cook County in 1932. He is a navy ex-service man and former minority leader of the Illinois State Senate.

Eight Shells Found.

Eight shells from the automatic gun emptied at the prosecutor were recovered and turned over to ballistics experts. Chief of Detectives John L. Sullivan said he believed they would prove important in solving the case.

Seven of the shells were found within a hundred yards of where the shooting took place. The other was found a block east and a block south.

"This indicates that the men kept their pistols and ejected the remaining shell in the chamber after eluding Courtney," said Chief Sullivan. "I indicated, too, that the men broke off their pursuers by doubling their course.

In an official statement the Prosecutor declared:

"This attempt on my life had nothing to do with gambling. It was the work of minor leaguers' and will be captured. I don't think we were followed very far. They broke up our trail at a cafe at Michigan street and Normal boulevard.

EYWOOD BROUN URGES GUILD TO AFFILIATE WITH A. F. OF L.

Asks Newspaper Men and Labor Union Members at New York Meeting.

NEW YORK, March 25.—Heywood Broun, president of the American Newspaper Guild, urged at a meeting yesterday that the guild affiliate with the American Federation of Labor. A. F. of L. members and representatives of the newspaper Guild of New York were at the meeting.

"There must be a part of the labor movement or nothing at all," he said.

"The NRA has failed us. I will question the assertion that the NRA has fallen far short of its promises."

Francis J. Gorman, vice-president of the United Textile Workers of America, said textile workers in the South have been deprived of their rights and relief because they have been denied the right to organize, guaranteed by section 7-A," and that newspaper publishers have failed to prevent the organization of workers in the newspaper industry.

Champion of Dog Show and Owner

English Setter Wins Title As Best Dog in Arena Show

Robin Hood of Marional Exhibited This Year for First Time — Owner A. L. Jones, Dayton, O.

Plumed tail waving in triumph, Robin Hood of Marional, a sportsman's dream of an English setter, won the coveted title last night of the best dog in the twenty-third annual show of the Mississippi Valley Kennel Club.

Setter Catches Crowds' Fancy.

But the setter, with his beautiful outline and graceful carriage, captivated the crowd banked five deep around The Arena judging ring, as soon as he appeared with other dogs of the sporting group to be appraised by Dr. A. A. Mitten, wealthy Philadelphian, one of the principal dog fanciers in the country.

Later, when he repaid Dr. Mitten's judgment by winning the championship under the appraising eye of Dr. Henry Jarrett of Chestnut Hill, Pa., a judge at leading shows for many years, Dr. Mitten shouted as exultantly as sportsmen around the ringside who had pulled for the alert setter from the first.

In winning, the setter, a two-year-old, repeated a triumph at the Cincinnati show last week, and fulfilled a championship future indicated last month when he was declared the best of his class in the 2400-dog Westminster show at New York in his first appearance in competition.

But the championship of more than 700 entrants in the St. Louis show, said by several of the judges to be "the best show west of Buffalo," wasn't attained without the smartest sort of handling and the issue was in doubt until Judge Jarrett motioned Gerald B. O'Reilly, president of the club, to hand the big winner's cup to the setter's beaming owner.

End of the Show.

No sooner had the applause died away than the crowd scattered, the lights were dimmed, the show was over. In the exercising room, terriers who had been manicured, powdered and marcelled, destroyed hours of primping with gleeful rolls in the sawdust.

Some dogs were put in boxes, ready to be shipped to the Omaha show. A sextet of Sealyhams was housed in a trailer, each dog in a padded box with his name on the door, ready for a daylight run today to the next show on the circuit. Most of the St. Louis dogs made for home, safe in the arms of their masters.

A special event in the afternoon, supervised by a group of debutantes, consisted of a competition for children in which the youngsters were judged for the way they handled their pets in the ring, without regard to the merits of the dogs.

Raith, 5-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Ritzheimer, 914 Eastgate avenue, University City, showing Mahlon B. Wallace's wire-haired fox terrrier, Temptation of Audlon, was adjudged the best handler among boys up to 8 years old.

In the corresponding girls' class, the award went to Mildred Worgin, 7-year-old daughter of Mrs. Estelle Worgin, 5545 Pershing avenue. She exhibited a Russian wolfhound, larger than herself, owned by Mrs. Maybelle E. Lundberg, 5545 Pershing avenue.

In the competition for boys from 8 to 12 years, the ribbon was given to Lon F. Israel, 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lon F. Israel, Kirkwood, who handled his own pointer. The girls' class was won by 8-year-old Grace Niedringhaus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Niedringhaus, Ladue Village. She showed her own wire-haired fox terrier.

Trick Contest.

MISSOURI BILL MAY BAR HIS SERMONS, RECTOR SAYS

The Rev. Stephen F. Bayne Comments on Plan to Keep Communist Party Off Ballot.

The bill now pending in the State Senate, to bar from the ballot political parties advocating the overthrow of the Government by violence, was mentioned by the Rev. Stephen F. Bayne in his sermon at Trinity Episcopal Church yesterday. He said the bill, if enacted, might make it "a penal offense to preach sermons like this." He had previously commented on economic and labor tendencies of the time.

Sending "a few parsons to jail to keep the Communists company," might be a good thing for the church, the minister said. He said the church needed reminders "that man is made in the image of God, not of a machine, and that man is more important than keeping a profit machine going."

Gen. McKinley to Become Banker.

WASHINGTON, March 25. — Major-General James F. McKinley, army Adjutant-General, will retire about June 1 to accept the presidency of the National Bank of Fort Sam Houston at San Antonio, Tex. He entered the army as a private of the Ohio infantry during the Spanish-American War.

REPUBLICANS SEE NO HOPE OF CITY ELECTION VICTORY

Leaders Think There Is No Chance of Defeating Democrats So Won't Make General Campaign.

SOME SPEECHES ON RADIO ARRANGED

No Assessment of Municipal Employes This Time —G. O. P. Chiefs Say They Have Little Money.

Although control of the legislative and fiscal agencies of the city will be at stake in the municipal election a week from tomorrow, no general campaign has been undertaken, and there will be none.

Republican leaders have conceded privately that they had no hope of defeating the Democrats, who have become strongly entrenched politically in a movement which began here in 1932.

The President of the Board of Aldermen and 14 Aldermen from the even-numbered wards will be elected. If the Republicans could elect all of these officials, they would control the Board of Aldermen and the Board of Estimate and Apportionment by one vote each. Election of the Democrats would give them two of the three members of the Board of Estimate and all of the members of the Board of Aldermen. The Board of Estimate consists of Mayor Dickmann (Dem.), Comptroller Nolte (Rep.) and theaaldermanic President, now Walter J. G. Neun (Rep.)

Probably a Precedent.

This would be the first time in a great many years—possibly in the city's history—that the Democrats would have the entire membership of the law-making body. If the Republicans lose, the only elective Republican officials left in St. Louis would be Comptroller Nolte, six Circuit Judges, seven members of the Board of Education, one Justice of the Peace and one Constable.

Success for the Democrats in this election would give them a somewhat stronger position in the local government than in the time of Mayor Wells, 1901-09.

Both major parties have issued platforms in general terms. Neither has called or intends to call general meetings. Ward meetings have been held, particularly by the Democrats, and more will be conducted this week. Republicans have not had official gatherings in some wards.

Speeches on the Radio.

Use of the radio by the Democrats will begin tonight, when William L. Mason, nominee for aldermanic president, will speak over WIL. There may be some Republican radio talks.

City employes were called to ward gatherings yesterday for directions on getting out the Democratic vote. They will meet again next Sunday for final word in the same purpose.

There will be no assessment of city employes for this election, but some city officials have made small contributions to the campaign fund, according to Harry J. Cantwell, treasurer of the Democratic City Committee. He said Mason had been assessed $500 and each of the 14 nominees for Aldermen $250, making a fund of $4000. The Democratic campaign would cost $3500 to $5000, including the expense of a headquarters at the Majestic Hotel, Cantwell estimated. Republican leaders admitted scarcely any money was available for campaigning.

The situation as to the comparative political and financial strength of the two parties has become the reverse of what it was five years ago and earlier. Lacking patronage, the Republicans have suffered the loss of a ready force of campaign workers. The inclination among the Democrats has been to "coast," with the feeling that a quiet campaign would help them.

Light Vote Expected.

A light vote was anticipated by both parties. There has been comparatively little interest among politicians, according to Democratic and Republican leaders, in the election of two Republicans and two Democrats to the Board of Education under a new bipartisan law.

Publication today of the official ballot disclosed nominations for the Board of Aldermen made by the City Committees of the Socialist and Socialist-Labor parties. George E. Duemler headed the Socialist ticket as nominee for aldermanic president. He ran for membership in the Supreme Court of Missouri last year and for Mayor in 1933. William W. Cox, who headed the Socialist-Labor ticket, was the national candidate of his party for President in 1920, the nominee for United States Senator in 1926, 1928 and 1934, for Governor in 1924 and 1932, for State Senator in 1930, and for Mayor in 1929. Neither ticket was full, there being 10 Socialist candidates for Aldermen, including two women, and five of the other group.

The ballot will include an administration proposition for a $3,600,000 relief bond issue, to meet the need created by exhaustion of a $4,600,000 issue of 1932. This will require a two-thirds vote for passage.

MRS. J. O. COSGRAVE SAYS WAR IS INEVITABLE IN EUROPE

New York Writer and Educator Addresses Junior League in St. Louis.

Another major European war is inevitable, and can only be stopped by the unseen appearance of a great religious leader or the revival of some spiritual movement, Mrs. John O'Hara Cosgrave, New York writer and educator, stated today in a lecture before the Junior League at its headquarters, 4914 Maryland avenue.

The conflict will have its origin in either Germany, Italy or Japan, she said, as these countries have growing populations with small natural resources to support them. The survival of these nations, she added, demands a definite program of expansion.

The best method for the United States to remain out of the next conflict, she commented, is for the Government to define its neutrality, and to set forth such insults and injuries which would lead to a declaration of war. She said the definition of neutrality should be placed before the public so it may sensibly react in its relations to the warring nations.

Mrs. Cosgrave, who writes under the name of Jessica G. Cosgrave, founded and directs the Finch Preparatory School. She listed the depression as the second major problem of the day, saying the solution was more difficult as the country had reached the end of its expansion. Economic recovery, she thought, lay in the marketing of the surplus from mass production.

WHALE DAMAGES THREE BOATS IN FIGHT TO SAVE ITS BABY

Finally Disappears and Hunters Off Florida Return to Port With Prize.

By the Associated Press.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., March 25.—In a six-hour fight which carried the combatants 12 miles down the coast, Capt. Frank Merritt succeeded yesterday in separating a 32-foot eight-ton whale from its 75-foot mother and carried it into port.

The larger whale smashed in the sides of three boats, which managed, however, to last out the fight and return under their own power. Seven harpoons and 200 rounds of rifle bullets were used.

Merritt sighted the whales and went after them with his two cabin cruiser. He chose the smaller and sank his harpoon about 9:30 a. m. The whale dived and headed southward, towing the 22-foot craft. The larger whale attacked the boat and stayed in three ribs in the bow.

Merritt's second boat also was rammed. Capt. Jack Weygant joined in the chase and his was the third craft damaged in attempting to keep the mother off.

A coast guard picket boat and three others joined in the chase. The hunt ended at 4 p. m., off Hollywood, when the baby whale finally rolled up, streaming blood, and the exhausted mother disappeared.

MRS. ROOSEVELT DENIES GETTING $500 FOR SPEECH

Says Only Pay She Gets Is for Writing and Radio Talks, and That Goes to Charity.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt today told her press conference she gets no pay whatever for the speeches she makes. She said the only things she does for money are her writing and radio speeches, but the proceeds of the latter never pass through her hands, being given directly to charity.

These statements were made in response to a question as to the truth of a story that has been going the rounds of capital dinner tables. This rumor was that Mrs. Roosevelt, having accepted an invitation to talk at a charity affair, later asked, and received, $500 for her services.

Mrs. Roosevelt said she had taken no fee for any speech since she had been in the White House and had accepted no expense money for traveling necessitated by speeches. If possible, she said, she avoided speaking where admission was charged.

GEN. JOHNSON BECOMES SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER

By the Associated Press.

TULSA, Ok., March 25.—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, former Administrator of NRA, became a Sunday school teacher yesterday, addressing his brother's class at the Boston Avenue Methodist Church. He took for a topic the trial and condemnation of Jesus Christ.

"It was a disgraceful frame-up, a judicial murder," he said, "with almost nothing to relieve its hard-boiled atrocity."

Johnson declared that in the time of Christ the country was full of "rackets and abuses among the rich, the powerful and the priests" and that "chiselers were using their priestly robes to promote their political and money-making rackets." He laid all the blame for the Crucifixion at the doors of the Romans, not the Jews.

The class, normally numbering 200, had an attendance of 1000, the word having been circulated that Johnson would substitute for his brother, Alex Johnston, the regular teacher.

CUBANS AT LOSS TO CLASSIFY NEW SETUP

Present Government Neither Democracy Nor Dictatorship, They Find.

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, March 25.—Cuba, the island of quick-changing governments, is trying a brand-new system. Political scientists may be able to classify it, but few Cubans have been able to name it.

"It's not a democracy," leading legal lights of the island admit, "yet it's not a dictatorship." A state of "social decomposition" is what Manuel Despaigne, pessimistic Secretary of the Treasury, called it today.

To the neutral observer it appears to be something halfway between a military dictatorship and a civilian dictatorship backed by the military. Ordinarily Cuba is a democracy, but democracy has been foreign to the country for many years.

Gerardo Machado was the last President elected by the voters. After a four-year term beginning in 1924, Machado was elected again in 1928 for six years. The methods used in the 1928 election have long been criticised and few Cubans believe they had anything but a dictatorship during his last year in office, 1933.

The latest system, born of the general strike-revolutionary movement of early March, has none of the characteristics of a democracy. There is no Constitution and no Congress. Governing is done by civilian decree and military edict.

The seat of the civilian government remains in the palace, where President Carlos Mendieta meets with his Cabinet and council of state.

Two sets of courts are functioning throughout the island—the regular civil courts and military councils of war. In most cases of breach of public order, the cases are heard before councils of war composed entirely of army and navy officers. In some cases, however, the defendant is given a hearing in civil courts. No one knows why the distinction is made.

Whatever the form, many Cubans believe the present set-up is stronger than anything Cuba has ever seen. With the army and navy at his side, President Mendieta has been able to weather a whirlwind of opposition activity and he probably will remain solid until his successor is named in the general elections this summer.

SUIT FILED TO BLOCK MERGER OF THREE INVESTMENT TRUSTS

Shareholder Seeks Writ Against Interstate Equities, Alleging Scheme to "Pirate" Holdings.

By the Associated Press.

WILMINGTON, Del., March 25.—A suit to enjoin the proposed merger of the Equity Corporation, the Chain and General Equities, Inc., and Interstate Equities Corporation, all investment trusts, has been filed in Chancery Court by Lawrence A. Rankin of New York, owner of 130 preferred shares of Interstate Equities.

Interstate Equities is named defendant. A restraining order was issued and corporation officers were summoned to appear April 16 to show why a preliminary injunction should not be issued.

Rankin alleges the proposed merger is in furtherance of a scheme of David C. Milton, son-in-law of John D. Rockefeller Jr., and his associates, fraudulently to "pirate" valuable holdings of Interstate Equities to enable them to pay back to the Manufacturers' Trust Co. of New York $2,900,000 they borrowed in an effort to acquire stock control of the Reliance International Corporation, another investment trust.

Milton, "by adroit means," has led the investing public to believe that Rockefeller and his personal fortune are back of the Milton enterprises, whereas neither Rockefeller and his associates nor their money has been interested in them, the bill of complaint says.

SEES BOAT CAPSIZE; HIS WIFE, DAUGHTER, 2 OTHERS DROWNED

West Virginia Man Later Rescued From Island in River by Men on Raft.

By the Associated Press.

LEWISBURG, W. Va., March 25.—Officers rode a log raft down the surging Greenbrier River, a Mountain stream, today and rescued a man marooned on an island after four persons, including his wife and daughter, were drowned.

J. S. McWhorter had been marooned since a cable-drawn boat capsized yesterday while his wife, daughter, and two friends were returning to the mainland from a summer camp. The rescuers found bodies of Mrs. James Quesenberry, 55 years old, of Charleston, and Robert Rutledge. The bodies of Mrs. McWhorter of Rupert, and her 11-year-old daughter, Nancy Davis, have not been found. McWhorter saw the boat capsize.

MISSIONARIES REPORTED KILLED IN CHINA, ARE SAFE

Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Frencham of Australia Arrive at Hangcheng, Disproving Rumor.

The message, from Hangcheng, Shensi Province, read: "Mr. and Mrs. Frencham arrived here safely. All in good order."

A. U. M'GILL FORFEITS BOND IN FRAUD CASE

Arkansan Fails to Appear for Trial Here—In Auto Accident Yesterday.

The $2500 bond of A. U. McGill, once wealthy proprietor of the McGill Bros. Rice Mill of Stuttgart, Ark., was ordered forfeited today by United States District Judge Davis when he failed to appear for trial on an indictment returned three years ago charging him with using the mails in a scheme to defraud.

A lawyer representing McGill told the Court that his client was injured yesterday in an automobile accident at Jonesboro, Ark., and that he had a doctor's certificate that McGill was unable to attend court.

United States Attorney Blanton said, however, that he had investigated, and had learned McGill had suffered only bruises in the accident and was able to be in court. The bond was signed by E. N. Athecourt and George S. Wilson. Judge Davis ordered a capias issued for McGill's arrest.

Little Rock Jury Disagreed.

When McGill was indicted, Assistant United States Attorney Crooks said the Boatmen's National Bank had been defrauded of $139,000, the Bankers' Trust Co. of Little Rock of $135,000 and individual Arkansas rice growers of $300,000 by forged bills of lading issued by McGill.

The proprietor of the mill and his brother, H. T. McGill, were tried in Little Rock in 1932 on a charge of forging bills of lading, but the jury disagreed. A. U. McGill had offered an insanity defense and his brother had pleaded ignorance of the rice mill's affairs.

NO WORD OF AMERICANS HELD BY MEXICAN BANDITS

First Authentic Story of Capture of Mark Fowler; Woman Started On Hunt Alone.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO, D. F., March 25.—The first authentic story of the capture of Mark Fowler, American mining engineer, reached here yesterday. A rebel band, whose chieftains are known, swept down on Fowler's mining camp firing their pistols and seriously wounding one man. They then abducted the American. Fowler is still held.

No news has been received at the American Embassy or in Aguascalientes regarding Mrs. Louise McKinney, who rode alone Saturday into the State of Zacatecas in a single-handed attempt to locate Louis Vremsak, who she says was kidnaped while they were treasure hunting in the Mexican hills 10 days ago. Vremsak is a mining engineer of Santa Barbara, Cal. Mrs. McKinney, 29, is a San Francisco widow.

Federal troops were searching areas in three states for the bandits.

Reports of Fowler's kidnaping, said the engineer and two Mexican assistants, a Mexican cook and two servants, were surprised by a band headed by two chieftains, Simon Solis and Juan Billreal, who attacked La Leonora mining camp in Jalapa.

The group tried to defend themselves but rebel bullets wounded the cook and forced the others to surrender. The attackers took Fowler and his two assistants, leaving the others. The cook is in a serious condition in a hospital here.

HOUSE CRUSHED TO PIECES IN LANDSLIDE, SIX INSIDE

Four Hurt When Dwelling Is Carried Into Valley; Floods in West Virginia, Too.

By the Associated Press.

WILLIAMSON, W. Va., March 25.—Four persons were injured and many were forced from their homes today by landslides and flood waters in a half dozen mountain towns in this area. Torrents pouring down mountain streams washed out a half dozen railroad bridges.

A landslide pushed a mountainside dwelling 40 feet to the valley at Goodman, crushed it to bits. Four of its six occupants were injured seriously.

Traffic on the Norfolk & Western Railroad was halted by the flood waters and all highways leading into Williamson were blocked either by landslides or high water.

At Welch flood waters from the Tug and Elkhorn Rivers flowed into the first floor of the Welch Emergency State Hospital and all patients were removed to the second floor for safety.

NYE SPEAKS ON WAR PROFITS IN OLD SOUTH CHURCH, BOSTON

He Again Urges 100 Per Cent Tax on Incomes of More Than $10,000 During Conflicts.

BOSTON, March 25.—Senator Gerald P. Nye, chairman of the Senate Munitions Investigation Committee, yesterday advocated a 100 per cent tax on incomes of more than $10,000 in time of war.

Speaking in Old South Church, which the British occupied during the Revolutionary War, Senator Nye said:

"America and the whole world has a problem on its hands if it really wants to save itself from war. I am sure it would be unfair for me to say to you if we could destroy the incentive of profit and the chance of profit there would not be any more war. But I do say to you if we can devise a means to destroy the prospect in any mind that anybody can profit out of another war, then the chances are a whole lot less of there being more war than they are right now, with profit so great an incentive."

JULY WHEAT UP AT CLOSE, OTHER GRAINS LOWER

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, March 25.—Wheat futures closed mixed today following an irregular course, July being bid fractionally higher at finish. Corn was lower. The grain trade gave some attention to the dust storm problem late, it was said.

Rain in part of Southwest belt was cited in the selling. Also what was described as the relatively weak Liverpool market.

Winnipeg wheat was down ¼@⅜c in initial trading. The close was net unchanged.

Liverpool came ⅝@1d lower in one cable following ¼d higher start. The close was ⅞ to 1¼d lower.

WHEAT CLOSES MIXED ON CHICAGO MARKET

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 25.—New crop deliveries of wheat developed comparative firmness late today.

Increased attention to reports of dust storms was given at this stage by traders.

Wheat closed irregular, ⅜ off to ½ up compared with Saturday's finish, May 93¾@⅞, corn unchanged to ⅜ lower, May 77⅜@¾, oats unchanged to ¾ off, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 10 cents.

The major part of the arid region, however, was reported as having had moisture relief. Opening unchanged to ¾ lower, May 93½c, wheat then held near these limits. Corn started ½ to 1 cent down, May 77⅛@77¼c, and subsequently altered little.

With next to no rallying power shown, the wheat market afterward went more than a cent a bushel under Saturday's finish. For the time being, reports of further dust storms in sections of Kansas, Oklahoma and Nebraska had hardly any market effect. On the other hand, traders displayed much interest in conferences between British and German representatives today as likely to have far-reaching influence on the European political situation.

Bearish sentiment among wheat traders here was attributed in considerable degree to relative weakness of the Liverpool market. Another bearish influence was talk that Senate acceptance of the Thomas silver amendment providing for one and a half billion dollars currency expansion was only to permit passage of the work relief bill. Traders expected the amendment to be eliminated in conference.

Corn and oats weakened with wheat. Provisions were easy, responsive to grain.

RAIL SHARES, INDUSTRIALS HOLD MARKET DOWN LATE

Irregularly Lower Finish Despite Afternoon Rally in Cotton—Steel Output Is Shaded in Weekly Forecast.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 25.—The stock market tried hard to renounce its retreating attitude today, with a late rally in cotton and other commodities, but rails and industrials hampered the effort and the closing was irregularly lower. Sales aggregated 460,000 shares.

An extremely thin market that was highly sensitive to group movements predominated most of the day. A distinctly heavy appearance in rail shares, the reason for which could not be definitely learned, unsettled the entire list shortly after the opening and with the exception of non-ferrous metals and sugar stocks, leaders showed only nominal resistance to small selling orders.

Some improvement occured when a rally in cotton carried active months more than $1 a bale higher and grain futures picked up, but buying was only half-hearted in all groups except utilities, metals and sugars, and progress was slow and difficult.

Union Pacific sank 2 points early in the session and failed to recover any part of it, but Santa Fe, New York Central, Pennsylvania and Southern Pacific rallied feebly from their low points and closing prices averaged around ½ point lower. Other than revival of some old bearish rumors there was nothing in the day's news especially affecting the carriers.

The industrial section was influenced by a number of developments during the day, including a forecast of still lower steel production during the current week, and losses of around ½ point were well scattered among such shares as General Motors, U. S. Steel, Reynolds Tobacco, Chrysler, Bethlehem, Johns-Manville, Sears Roebuck, du Pont and American Can.

After holding barely even during the forenoon utilities joined metals and sugars in resisting the downward trend. American Telephone, Public Service of New Jersey and Consolidated Gas ended with minor gains along with Anaconda, Cerro de Pasco, Kennecott, Cuban American Sugar preferred and Great Western.

Until mid-day the market was under the influence of light selling pressure and the indifferent performance in commodities as well as a number of week-end developments added to its troubles.

Belgian Exchange Rate Off.

Cotton closed 60c to $1 a bale higher, wheat ended ¾c lower to ⅛c higher and corn unchanged to ⅛c a bushel lower.

In foreign exchange Belgian belgas continued to occupy major attention with a decline of .77 of a point and other gold currencies were inclined to ease. Sterling, however, was firmer and gained ⅞c to $4.78.

Non-ferrous metals showed some resistance at the start, and sugar stocks were a trifle better following a further advance in refined, but industrials were under the handicap of a series of developments. The most important of these were the recommendations of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee that Congress enact a 30-hour work week for industry and the small drop in steel production, forecast for the current week of the American Iron & Steel Institute at 46.1 per cent of capacity, against 46.8 per cent last week.

The statistical position of sugar industry has been on the up grade for several months and quiet accumulation of these shares has been reported from time to time.

Non-ferrous metals received some encouragement from the action of a group of Congressional leaders who announced their intention to insist upon the Thomas silver amendment carried in the work relief bill passed by the Senate Saturday, but selling pressure finally found its way to this group and most of the advances were canceled.

Over Week-End News.

Over week-end developments included:

The 1934 net profit of Anaconda Copper of $1,960,093, or 22 cents a share compared with a net loss of $6,822,115 in 1933.

The report of General Electric showing 1934 net income from sales at 7.1 per cent of total billings, against 5 per cent in 1933.

The statement of Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president of General Motors, that in spite of a 48 per cent sales increase in 1934 the company's profit margin had been reduced by the heavier wage burden. The present wage scale, Sloan said, is the highest in the history of the organization.

The report of the magazine "Steel" that uncertainty prevails throughout the rank and file of steel users.

The belga, weak link in the gold bloc, declined .66 of a cent to 22.56 cents at the opening. The pound sterling was up ¾ of a cent at $4.78, while the French franc at 6.59½ cents was up .00⅛ of a cent.

STEEL PRODUCTION RATE IS SHADE LOWER

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 25.—Steel operating schedules for the current week were estimated by the American Iron & Steel Institute at 46.1 per cent of capacity, a decline of 0.7 of a percentage point from the previous week.

The current rate, as estimated, is nearly two points below the average of a month ago, but is about one-half point above ratio for the corresponding period last year.

"STEEL'S" WEEKLY SUMMARY OF CONDITIONS IN INDUSTRY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CLEVELAND, O., March 25.—"Awards of 53,000 tons of structural shapes, another substantial increase in automobile production and an advance in tinplate output to 97 per cent last week were insufficient to compensate for a general decline in forward buying, the net result being a 2-point drop to 46 per cent in steel works operations," states the magazine "Steel."

Orders, completing the best first quarter since 1931, see a strong probability of an early reversal in the present lull and possibly a new peak in operations this spring as more structural and car work matures. Uncertainty, however, is apparent in the attitude of the bulk of steel consumers.

Shipments of flat rolled steel products are not diminished appreciably so far, but are not receiving replacement orders and their backlogs April 1 will be considerably lighter than three months ago. Some producers nor consumers now have a problem of replenishing stocks. Some sales are apparently are being deferred in anticipation of Government action. The basing point system may be a breaking point for some consumer.

Automobile assemblies last week totaled 90,000, a gain of 3000. One leading manufacturer has finished cars on hand for 60 days, a few for 30 days. New specifications from automobile manufacturers have dropped for the second executive week, present orders for material cannot be delivered before mid-April to eight weeks, and in some instances nine weeks, indicating that the bulk of buying by the industry for the first quarter has been done.

Structural plate, mills still are adding to backlogs from container manufacturers. However, mill capacity were to be disclosed, could be considered as prosperity per cent. Actual output is 60 per cent for March.

Railroad Age reports a broad revival in Brazil has awarded contracts for 1,000 electrification project to Messrs. Vickers, Ltd., England. London correspondent cables that orders have been placed for 33⅓ per cent. Shipments on old orders are holding up well, new demand and prices are firm. Iron releases continue to increase as requirements of the automobile industry, which is the largest consumer of scrap, determine prices. A merchant blast furnace in this district, Pittsburgh is being blown in. Pittsburgh district last week declined 47 per cent at Chicago; Pittsburgh; 2 to 70, Cleveland; Buffalo, 2 to 51, New England, steel 2 points to 60 at Youngstown, up 2, Birmingham 2 points to 70, Pennsylvania 28, and Detroit and steel price composite remains to $32.33, reflecting the fact that finished steel composite advanced at $54, while the scrap composite declined 25 cents to $10.46."

SIRENS SOUND OPENING OF SAFETY CAMPAIGN

2200 City Employes Read Addresses to Children in Schools.

Mayor Dickmann's campaign for traffic safety was begun officially this morning at 9 o'clock when whistles and sirens were sounded throughout the city to mark the start of the campaign.

At the same time 2200 city employes were in the classrooms of the public and parochial schools, delivering prepared talks on the need for increased observance of safety measures. Copies of the talks were left with the teachers who were asked to read them to pupils each morning this week.

White crosses have been painted in the streets at points where 170 persons were killed last year in traffic accidents, and lamp posts at intersections which were the scenes of fatal accidents have been draped with black as reminders of the campaign and its purpose.

The Mayor has directed all city officials that there is to be no more "fixing" of traffic violation cases, and has instructed Police Judges Vest and Simpson to try all cases in open court. This action followed disclosure that 347 cases were disposed of the week before last without open court hearings.

HOUSE SUB-COMMITTEE VOTES FOR SOIL EROSION MEASURE

Dust Storms Cited to Group As Cause for Quick Action on Broad Program.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—A comprehensive program to protect the land resources of the nation against ravages of soil erosion was approved today by a House public lands sub-committee.

"The destructive dust storms which have swept the West have emphasized to the committee the necessity for immediate action," said Representative Dempsey (Dem.), New Mexico. "Even those members who are not from states which have the eroded areas realize lands far distant may be despoiled unless remedial measures are adopted at once."

The soil erosion bill empowers the Secretary of the Interior to carry out the program but an executive order last week transferred the soil erosion service to the Agriculture Department and this work will be under the direction of the Secretary of Agriculture.

EVEN MINISTERS NEGLECT FAMILY PRAYERS, ONE SAYS

The Rev. Dr. A. H. Kenna of Union Methodist Church Decries "Deadening Indifference."

Family prayers, once a fairly general practice among church adherents, are now neglected by church officers and even by many ministers, the Rev. Dr. A. H. Kenna said in his sermon at Union Methodist Church yesterday.

Dr. Kenna told of a State gathering of a large denomination where the ministers and church officers were polled on this matter, the poll showing that 25 per cent of the ministers and 75 per cent of the church officers did not have prayers in their homes. Dr. Kenna decried the tendency to "deadening indifference, if not actual disbelief."

NAME OF CYRIL CLEMENS IN BRITISH WHO'S WHO

The 1935 issue of Who's Who, British edition, which has been received in St. Louis, contains the name of Cyril Clemens of Webster Groves, president of the International Mark Twain Society. A 32-line biographical sketch of Clemens is given, including his telephone number.

Few Americans are listed in the British Who's Who. In past years, the late Bishop Tuttle was one of the few St. Louisans to whom this distinction was accorded. This year's volume lists Dwight F. Davis, who has business interests in St. Louis and formerly resided here, but who now resides in Florida and Washington. Col Charles A. Lindbergh is listed, but his address is no longer given as St. Louis. Temple Bailey, author, formerly of St. Louis, is listed as a resident of Washington.

A search of the new volume for names of several of the best known educators, lawyers and clergymen of St. Luis has failed to show them. All are lised in Who's Who In America, 1934-35 edition. Cyril Clemens, however, does not appear in the last Who's Who in America, though his father, Dr. James R. Clemens, is listed there.

PROSECUTOR FILES MURDER CHARGE AGAINST GUARDSMAN

"No Justification" for Shooting Woman, Dunklin County Official Says.

By the Associated Press.

KENNETT, Mo., March 25.—Murder charges were filed by Prosecuting Attorney Elbert L. Ford today against Ray Bixler, 20 years old, of Caruthersville, a member of the National Guard, for the fatal shooting of Miss Harriet Hasty, 40, of Paraguold, Ark., near Hopkins' Bridge last Thursday night. Ford said he would ask that Bixler be arrested when released by militia officers.

"There was no justification in the shooting of that woman," Ford said. "There was no emergency that would call even for firing a gun into the air, as I understand guardsmen on duty during the flood in this country had orders to do. The guardsmen were sent here to help the residents and not to terrorize or shoot them."

Military authorities, Ford said, had refused to turn Bixler over to Dunklin County authorities. "I do not know what jurisdiction I have, but I do know I can pick Bixler up when he is released," he said.

CORPORATION TO HANDLE TAX DELINQUENCY PROPOSED

Minnesota State Consultant Calls Attention to Unpaid County Levies of $82,000,000.

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 25.—Minnesota legislators, facing the greatest tax delinquency in the State's history, today were urged to organize a huge state corporation to facilitate loans to counties nearly bankrupt.

The recommendation was made in an analysis by Harry Fiterman of Minneapolis, consultant of the State Emergency Relief Administration who said that some such move was mandatory if counties were to continue carrying their share of the relief load.

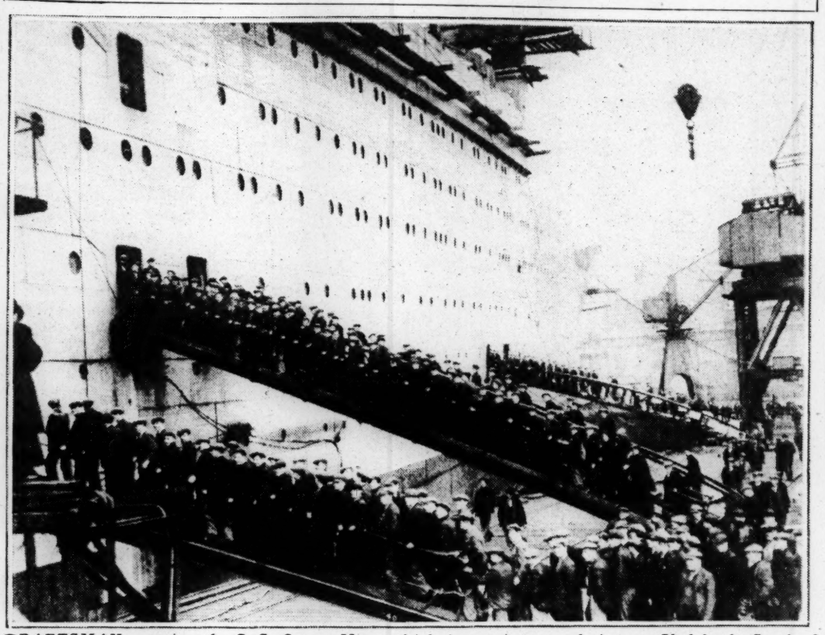

The State Corporation, according to Fiterman's plan, would finance its loans by issuing "tax delinquency bonds," accepting tax delinquency certificates from counties as security.

Fiterman said the State's 87 counties have an accrued tax delinquency of $82,712,718, a 14.7 per cent increase over 1933.

JOBLESS SCOTS CRY "DOWN WITH KING" IN DEMONSTRATION

Crowd of 70,000 Marches in Glasgow With Red Flags.

By the Associated Press.

GLASGOW, March 25.—Seventy thousand persons, many women and children among them, shouting "Down with the King," marched to Gdasgow Green yesterday waving red banners and flags in the largest demonstration against the Unemployment Act this city has seen.

"Down with the National Government!" "Down wth Ramsay Macdonald and his parasites!" they cried.

The shouts, which were nothing new among the Communistic elements of Glasgow, were the nearest approach to disorder. The demonstration passed off without violence, under the eyes of 1900 police.

Three thousands of the demonstrators came from all parts of Scotland. Many of them walked to Glasgow. The visitors were accommodated overnight in various public halls belonging to the city corporation, which has a Socialist majority. It was the first time in the city's history that such a concession had been made.

Before proceeding to Glasgow Green the marchers paused at Church Square, which is near the Town Chambers, waving red flags and banners. No arrests were made.

JUDGE CALLS LIPTON ESTATE SUIT 'TISSUE OF FALSEHOODS'

London Court Orders Engineer Who Filed $50,000 Claim to Pay Costs of Action.

LONDON, March 25.—An attempt by Hugh Nicholson, an engineer, to collect £10,000 (about $50,000) from the estate of Sir Thomas Lipton, British sportsman, failed today when Justice MacNaughton of the King's Bench declared Nicholson's story was "a tissue of falsehoods" and ordered him to pay the costs of the litigation.

Nicholson alleged that between 1906 and 1927, Sir Thomas broke four promises to pay him £10,000. He said that late one night in 1927, when he was playing dominoes aboard the yacht Shamrock with which Sir Thomas failed to win the America's Cup, the latter had finally agreed to give him an "I O U" for the discharge of all claims and that this had been received several weeks later. The hearing lasted a week.

He went to Hudson as factory manager in 1910, and was elected president in 1929. Last December he was made president of Hupp, but resigned because of ill health in February.

CARD-BRAVE TRADE BREWING; BROWNS' STREAK IS STOPPED

Orsatti and Gelbert For Randy Moore and Pitcher, Reported Deal

By J. Roy Stockton.
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

BRADENTON, Fla., March 25.—Manager Frank Frisch and Coach Mike Gonzales were called to St. Petersburg this afternoon for a conference with Branch Rickey and it was rumored that a trade was brewing between the world champion Cardinals and the Boston Braves, whereby the Redbirds were to give up Ernie Orsatti and Charley Gelbert for a pitcher and Randy Moore, utility first baseman and outfielder.

Orsatti conferred this morning with President Sam Breadon, but as Orsatti had begun his negotiations with Rickey, Breadon said he preferred not to take over the job of signing the outfielder. Orsatti will see Rickey tonight and probably will sign at the clubs' terms, unless a trade is arranged before the conference.

The Cardinals had one workout today, from 9:30 to 12, after which they were told they could do as they please for the rest of the day. Manager Frisch said he would give Roy Harrell another test in tomorrow's game with the Columbus club at Avon Park.

Copeland Impresses Frisch.

Mays Copeland, sandy-haired freckled-face son of Arkansas, was a long time doing it, but he has joined the ranks of the young pitchers seriously bidding for places on the 1935 roster of the world champion Cardinals. Copeland, who won 16 and lost 10 for the Houston club of the Texas League last year, made his Grapefruit League bow yesterday afternoon and while he pitched only three innings, he showed one of the best jug-handle curves seen this spring.

Copeland went to the hill in the sixth inning, after the Phillies of Jimmy Wilson had gained a commanding lead at the expense of Henry Pippen. Pippen's work was disappointing. But Copeland's fine performanee made up for it. He yielded two hits, a double by Ethan Allen and a double by Al Todd, but he struck out three batters and held the enemy scoreless.

Was Highly Rated.

Branch Rickey has rated Copeland near the top among the recruits and had advised Frisch not to overlook the boy. It would have been early to overlook him. He developed a sore arm early during the training trip and subsequently did little throwing. However, during recent batting practice sessions, he has been throwing to the hitters and the word went around that Copeland "had something."

Persons who saw him pitch in the Texas League said today that he did not display a a fast ball, and if he has a fast ball to pair with the crackling curve that he broke for the Phillies, it will be hard to keep him off the Redbird staff.

Copeland was in trouble in each of his three innings on the hill, so he proved his courage as well as his skill as he turned back Jimmy Wilson's men, who were hustling and eager for their victory over the world champions.

The first man to face Copeland reached first on an error by Durocher, but the Arkansas boy threw a curve to Mickey Haslin and a double play nullified the error. He then struck out George Watkins to end the inning.

Allen, leading off in the next frame, slashed a double down the left field line and advanced to third on a sacrifice, but Copeland retired Camilli on a pop fly and then curved over a third strike for Johnny Vergez. Vergez started away from the pitch, only to have it crackle out and down through the strike zone. With one out in the eighth, Copeland's third on the hill, Todd doubled to left, but Copeland struck out the pitcher, Johnson, and retired Haslin on a fly to center.

Undoubtedly Copeland will get another chance soon and many of them during the remaining exhibition games.

Four Promising Hurlers.

Whereas a week ago it would have been easy to be discouraged about the new pitchers on the roster, they now are very promising. Harrell, Tinning, Copeland and Ward have done the best work of the new men—Malone, of course, not being counted among the newcomers, because he has established himself as a big-league pitcher over a period of years.

Pippen was pounded for 10 hits and seven runs in five innings, and the lead was enough to give the Phillies a decision by a one-run margin. Pippen is young at the business and needs coaching in the art of concealing what he is about to pitch. He goes through a violent preliminary motion when he is throwing his fast ball, and the Phillies quickly caught the idea and were punching the young man's offerings to all fields.

Curt Davis, the Phillies' pitching find of 1934, was on the hill for five innings and he held the Cardinals well in check, yielding only three hits and one run. In the sixth, however, Sylvester Johnson, the rubber-armed Scandinavian, went to the mound, and the Cardinals put on a batting storm. Medwick tripled; so did Collins, and DeLancey singled. In the seventh, Martin tripled, Medwick doubled, Collins singled and DeLancey tripled. With a count of three balls and one strike on Gene Moore, Manager Wilson called a halt and John Pezzullo, a lefthander with an acrobatic wind-up and delivery, went to the mound. Before the Cardinals became accustomed to his picturesque style, he had protected the Phillies' remaining one-run lead through the rest of the game.

RED BIRD NOTES

The game with the Phillies attracted 1264 cash customers, the largest crowd ever to see a baseball contest at Winter Haven.

Charley Barrett, the Cardinal scout here, on his way to Houston, says a young player named Maurice Sturdy from Kirkwood, will be a star in the major league, with the Redbirds, within three years. He is an infielder.

According to Branch Rickey, who has been inspecting young talent at trial camps at Avon Park and Bartow, the Cardinals have enough playing material to last them for 10 years, without doing any scouting or searching. But the work will go on. And many of the phenoms of the camps of today will be back on the farm, riding up a corn row, within two years. You have to admire that enthusiasm, however.

Phils Look Better.

Jimmy Wilson likes his ball club and the Phillies certainly look several hundred per cent better than the outfit Jim had at Winter Haven a year ago.

The men's first group title was almost as close, with John Falnidzki, North St. Louis outscoring Herman Fehr, Concordia, 53.30 to 53.00. The men's second group title was another close victory, with Elmer Spilker, North St. Louis having 54.00 points to 53.60 points for Walter Florida, Tower Grove.

The men did optional and obligatory exercises on the parallel and horizontal bars, optional exercises on the side horse, and an obligatory one on the long horse. The women did optional turns and twists on the parallel bars and side horse and obligatory exercises on the same apparatus.

STELLA WALSH AND HELEN STEPHENS WILL LIKELY MEET AGAIN

Prospects for a series of match races between Stella Walsh of Cleveland and Helen Stephens of Fulton, Mo., as a feature of the St. Louis Relays, April 5, are bright. The races, if held, will be at 50, 60 and 220 yards.

Miss Walsh challenged the Missouri girl to the series of races Saturday night, after Miss Stephens had unexpectedly won from her the night before at the Arena for the National indoor 50-meter title. Miss Walsh declared her rival had beaten the gun.

Marvin Plake, promoter of the Relays, which will be run in conjunction with the Ozark A. A. U. championships at the Coliseum, will make the formal announcement of the race as soon as he receives written acceptance from both stars.

Training Camp Briefs

Leiber One of Giants' Batting Leaders—Grimm Has Gone Hitless on 17 Consecutive Trips to Plate—More Work for Tiger Pitchers.

By the Associated Press.

ORLANDO, Fla.—Manuel Onis, young catcher recommended by Al Lopez, may catch on in his first bid for a place in the major leagues. Onis has come along so fast this spring that Casey Stengel is seriously considering carrying him as third-string catcher for the Brooklyn Dodgers. Lopez and Gordon Phelps are the ranking receivers.

Leiber Leads Sluggers.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla.—Hank Leiber, young outfielder, conducted a lengthy holdout campaign before he could be persuaded to sign a New York Giant contract this year. Events since he signed indicate he was justified in asking for more money. Leiber has been one of the Giants' leading sluggers so far and a fleet ballhawk as well.

Special Work for Selkirk.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—The New York Yankees' "brain trust" is working hard on George Selkirk's batting. Selkirk is definitely slated to take Babe Ruth's place in right field, but the Canadian will have to get over a weakness against left-handed pitching. Yankee coaches have discovered a fault in his batting style, however, and expect to iron it out shortly.

Grimm Is Not Hitting.

LOS ANGELES.—Vice-President Charlie Grimm of the Chicago Cubs is beginning to wonder when Manager and First Baseman Charlie Grimm will start hitting. He had a string of 17 consecutive fruitless times at bat against his spring training record today. However, the misery in Grimm's back which kept him out of many games last season, apparently has disappeared, for he has done his share of first-basing, including a nine-inning stretch yesterday.

Young Hafey Hits Homer.

PASADENA, Cal.—With the arrival of Al Simmons' annual spring batting slump, Manager Jimmy Dykes is giving his spare Chicago White Sox outfielders chances to show off. As long as Simmons remains out of the lineup, Mule Haas, Jocko and Bud Hafey will take turns in center field. Hafey made the most of his chance yesterday, peeling off a home run with two on to drive in the winning runs against Pittsburgh.

More Work for Pitchers.

LAKELAND, Fla.—Mickey Cochrane, more pained than indignant at the three beatings his champion Detroit Tigers have taken from the Brooklyn Dodgers, today attributed the blame to the pitching staff. The Dodgers beat the Tigers, 12 to 6, yesterday. Mickey indicated he would do something about it. Hard work and plenty of it is on the schedule for the pitching staff. Nobody seems able to get anybody out except Schoolboy Rowe and General Crowder, the Tiger manager complained. "I guess there is only one thing to do—see that everybody gets in shape."

Mize Is Ordered to Rest.

TAMPA, Fla.—Johnny Mize, potential first-sacker, had orders from Manager Charlie Dressen of the Cincinnati Reds, to "take it easy" today as the Reds prepared for a game with the Toronto Maple Leafs. An old leg injury has been bothering Mize. The Reds yesterday snowed under the Boston Red Sox, 10 to 4.

Young Catcher Is Star.

MOBILE, Ala.—Jack Redmond, young backstop, was the apple of the Washington management's eye today. Getting only two trips to the plate after relieving Catcher Bolton in the Senators' exhibition with Kansas City here yesterday, Redmond did about as well as he could. He doubled to right in the seventh and started a rally in the ninth with a triple to the same field. But the Blues pounded out 10 hits to Washington's seven and, winning, 6 to 4, avenged a previous drubbing.

NEW LEADERS IN TWO EVENTS OF K. C. PIN MEET

By the Associated Press.

PEORIA, Ill., March 25. — R. Welch of Terre Haute, Ind., rolled into first place with a 684 performance, and H. Krebethka of Chicago produced an all-events total of 1901 yesterday for the only leadership changes in the thirteenth annual Knights of Columbus national bowling tournament.

Welch's total shoved P. Bauman of Detroit, whose 666 stood at the top mark for several weeks, out of first place in the singles. Welch had two games of 203 and finished up with 278, the high individual game of the tournament.

Krebethka rolled 614 in the team event, 684 in the doubles and 602 in the singles. Krebethka and his doubles partner, J. Peifer, went into second place with 1238. W. Pasperski and J. Jilik of Chicago continued to lead the doubles with 1416.

The Schneider Auditors No. 1 of Detroit held the five-man leadership through a heavy week-end of firing with their 2970.

E. J. O'Brien, Chicago, was one of five persons named to the board of national directors at a meeting yesterday. Others named were M. J. McGlennon, Springfield; Gus Wagner, Cincinnati; Charles Minich, St. Louis, and Dan Reardon, St. Louis.

131 SWIMMERS TO COMPETE IN OZARK CARNIVAL

The annual Ozark A. A. U. swimming meet will begin tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock in Wilson Memorial Pool, Washington University, with preliminaries in both men's and women's events. Finals are scheduled for Wednesday night. The meet is sponsored by the Meramec River Patrol.

Washington University's squad and the one representing the Downtown Y. M. C. A. are the favorites in the men's division. Other teams entered are the North Side Y. M. C. A., Hannibal (Mo.); Y. M. C. A. and Y. M. H. A., both from St. Louis; Westborough Country Club, Western Military Academy and St. Louis University.

There are 131 individual entries in the 12 men's events.

In the five women's events there are 27 individual entries, with the Forest Park Highlands team and the Y. W. H. A. squad the favorites for the championship.

VETERANS WIN IN BILLIKENS' GAME, 24 TO 6

In the first practice game of the St. Louis University spring football season, veteran players of the squad, banded under the "Blue" banner, defeated a younger combination playing under the "White" flag, 24 to 6, yesterday on the Walsh Stadium practice field.

The veteran Blues with Lou Drone at quarter, Capt. Hudson and Harris at the halves and Kloepper at full, showed power in straight football plays, but developed no great deception in their attack. They scored single touchdowns in the first and second periods, went scoreless in the third quarter and pushed over a pair of touchdowns in the final period. The Whites' single score came in the third period.

In general, play was good for this time of the year though the plays given the two teams were of the simplest and afforded no opportunity to judge the planned 1935 style of the Billiken attack. The players of both squads worked hard and the enthusiasm shown was in marked contrast to the rather lackadaisical spirit of 1934.

Work on fundamentals will be continued this week with a game planned for next Sunday.

Miller Totals 1359 to Score Over Brunsman

Joe Miller, former bowling champion of the world, closed his St. Louis tour under the auspices of the National Bowling Proprietors' Association yesterday afternoon by defeating Ervin Brunsman at the Arway alleys, 4923 Arsenal, before a packed house. Miller totaled 1359, while Brunsman rolled 1104.

Miller opened with a game of 184, jumped to 189 and followed through with 236-222-249 and a whirlwind finish of 279. Brunsman ran 173-187-177-204-286—177.

Miller's entire performance took three hours, finishing off with a two-game match against Mrs. Lucille Wilson, stellar St. Louis woman bowler. The visiting ace coasted along with 190 and 163 for a 353 total, while Mrs. Wilson crashed the maples for 202-193 and a total of 395.

The next and last star on the list of National Tour will be Hank Marino, brilliant Milwaukee (Wis.) bowler. Harry R. Feuser, first vice-president of the National Bowling Proprietors' Association, is expected to announce the date for Marino's appearance some time this week.

F. R. O. Rugby Team Wins.

The F. R. O. Athletic Club's rugby team won from the West End Ramblers, 11-5, yesterday afternoon at the Public Schools Stadium. Both teams belong to the Missouri Rugby Union.

Buffalo Team "Pins Newsom's Ears Back" To Earn 4-1 Victory

By John E. Wray.
Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 25.—"Say, try and get Ros to let me pitch that Sunday game for the Browns against Dizzy Dean, will yuh?"

Buck Newsom was the broadcaster. He had paused before the press box screen at Fort Lauderdale to voice his request to this writer, just before the start of yesterday's game with Buffalo.

"I'll give you something to write about if you do," and he swaggered out to the mound to face the thundering herd of Ray Schalk. Buck didn't wait until April 7. He gave us something to write about then and there—all bad.

Three innings later the herd had pinned Buck's ears back against the bone—homers, doubles, singles, hit batsmen and bases on balls figuring in the disaster, whereby Buffalo rang up four tallies.

Bad for Buck.

It was a terrible showing for the club's leading pitcher during three innings; and only Lady Luck, in later periods, helped it from being worse. In the fourth, a Buffalo man tripled with one out; in the fifth a single and a base on balls put two men on, with none out; in the sixth two walks and a single gave Buffalo another grand chance; but not a run scored. That was the end of Buck's grief for the day.

"Shall I bring up that matter with Hornsby tonight, Buck?" we kidded.

"That's all right with me," he contended stoutly. "Rog knows I can't pitch and play the outfield too," was the rejoinder.

It was Heine Mueller's misjudgment of two flies, one on the very first Buffalo batter that went for a double, which started Buck downhill.

"No, I don't mean that, either. The sun got Heine, I guess. Besides I didn't have all my stuff. I guess I wasn't so hot. But you know that game wasn't my speed at all.

"You get that game against Dizzy for me and I'll still give you something to write about—all good."

The second game with the Bisons, which the Buffalo men annexed, 4-1, not only found Buck out of form but all the rest of the club. Just mark it off the record.

The players couldn't hit in a pinch. The Browns had men on base time and again; they couldn't field. Cliff manhandled a couple that should have been outs. Mueller didn't get close to two high flies and Burnett bounced a throw off the ground for an error. There was an amateurish, butter-finger atmosphere about the play all afternoon.

Even Rog Was Sour.

Even the presence of Hornsby himself on first failed to inspire the men. Hornsby faced the pitcher four times and the best result was a base on ball. On his last effort he struck out and the shade of sun-red on his jaw deepened as he tried to grin away the jeers of the Fort Lauderdale's faithful 500.

We're never too old or too tough to feel the barb of the old Bronx cheer.

That impotency at bat, however, worried Hornsby far more than the loss of the game, although the defeat broke the Browns' run of consecutive victories at six and makes their Grapefruit League standing eight victories out of 10 games played.

That weakness at the plate is getting under Hornsby's skin, for the men show little improvement, considering the fact that they have been looking over curve ball pitching for two weeks and getting no better fast. If the hitting doesn't improve, there isn't much chance for the club to better last year's record, even though it in other respects really looks better.

This Newsom is just a boy. Everything seems to get under his skin when he's pitching, and that's not always so good for general results.

As he stepped to the mound in the first inning, he yelled, "Where's that rawsin bag—I need it?" None was forthcoming, so Buck began pitching, anyway. Two doubles and a walk followed.

As the umpire waved McGowan to first base on the walk, Buck offered: "What's the matter, Mister Lohr, did you forget your specs?"

When he walked the first man up in the third, he raved some more for the "rawsin" bag, which still was not forthcoming, and this time McGowan hoisted the ball over the left field fence for a homer. Left-hand hitter knocking a four-baser over the left field fence is one for the book, but it scored a couple of runs. Buck hit the next batter and then stopped the game.

"Bring out that rawsin," he yelled.

Sure enough, out it came. And, believe it or not, with its arrival came the end of Buffalo's scoring. It may have been just coincidence—but that's just what happened.

Browns Get Batting Practice.

The batting cages again furnished the bulk of the practice work by Hornsby's men today, an off day in training camp contests. Hornsby permitted the men to let up a little in their strenuous efforts, which have continued without intermission for one month.

Tomorrow the team will again face the Buffalo Bisons here in the third game of their series and Dick Cofman and Paul Andrews are slated for duty. Whichever starts will be allowed to go the route if he feels strong enough.

Hornsby is gradually extending the duration of the pitching time in games. Newsom pitched six innings Sunday, which was the most asked of any hurler heretofore this season.

Coach Grover Hartley, while catching Jimmy Walkup's practice shoots, was hit on the big toe and temporarily disabled, this afternoon.

Pitchers George Mills and Easley will depart for San Antonio when the team starts North, next Monday.

The next game will be here with Buffalo tomorrow.

Schmeling Has Chance to Beat Any Heavy In World, Hamas Says

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, March 25.—"After the way he beat me, Schmeling has a chance to beat anybody in the world," Steve Hamas said yesterday when asked what he thought of Max Schmeling's chances against Max Baer.

Hamas, who, according to experts at the ringside, took one of the worst beatings a man could take in the ring, added:

"Schmeling is a lot smarter and better fighter than when we met in Philadelphia. Champions are always hard to beat on points because judges always give them a slight edge, but if Schmeling goes out for a knockout I think he will succeed. It's the only way to beat Baer, take it from me.

"Schmeling is staging a most successful comeback. I hope he succeeds, but wait till we meet again. That is my most fervent desire."

The Passaic puncher states that he is not thinking or worrying about his defeat. He declared:

"I hope I can lose just as well as win. I'm forgetting it until we fight again."

Asked about his injuries, Hamas said they were grossly exaggerated. He added:

"My eye was hurt and my left leg, in which I tore a tendon when I fell in the ring, is still limp, but I don't think it will interfere with my fighting future. I expect to fight in England shortly. I do not know yet against whom."

Hamas is going to London next week for three weeks and then back to the United States.

CENTRALS WIN WESTERN FINAL OPENER FROM WIEBOLDTS, 2-1

BERT PATENAUDE IS RESPONSIBLE FOR GOALS; 3725 PAY AT "GATE"

By Dent McSkimming.

Two brilliant efforts by Bert Patenaude, America's greatest soccer center forward, made possible a 2 to 1 victory for the Central Club over the Chicago Wieboldts in the first game of the Western final series of the national challenge cup competition, played at Sportsmans Park yesterday afternoon. A crowd of 3725 paid to see the game.

Patenaude's remarkable recovery of a ball that was within inches of going over the Chicago goal line, and his perfectly placed cross to McLean in the goal mouth accounted for the first goal, and his sensational hook shot, executed when he had his back to his opponent's goal scored the second. Both were scored in the first half of an exciting match.

Chicago's one score was made by Captain Bob Thompson, whose free kick from the center line fooled Goaltender Hamm and trickled over the tips of his outstretched fingers, just four minutes before the close of the game. The Centrals, sure of victory with a two-goal advantage, disappointed the fans by resorting to a dull, listless defensive game in the last half.

The victory gives the St. Louis team a jump on their opponents which it is quite possible that the Wieboldts will tie the count in a game at Chicago next Sunday.

Tough Day for Watson.

Bill Watson, center halfback genius who was not so prominent as he was a year ago when he helped the Ben Millers Club to a national title. Chief reason was that he had two super stars to contend with, Billy Gonsalves and Bert Patenaude.

Hamm's clearances and goal kicks were positively weak, and on several occasions the ball came right back at the Central goal. The latter could use someone who can give the ball to center on goal kicks.

Referee Harry Sinclair's insistence on penalizing every infraction, no matter how trivial, brought a storm of protest from players of both sides and before the close of the match, he was in several tight spots.

On the whole his officiating was good, but it appeared that he hesitated after whistling for fouls against Tomich in the first half. The ball was handled in the box, but the referee placed the ball outside the area for the free kick instead of on the penalty spot. Themselves was chosen for the free kick, but when he stubbed his toe an uncomfortable moment passed for the referee.

The Sportsmans Park Stockyards had the field looking more as a dance floor and as soon as the final whistle sounded his assistants resumed their work in repairing the sod for baseball.

Each Side Misses Star.

Jimmie Lillie, regular outside left, was out of the Wieboldt lineup because of an injury, his absence being felt to compensate for Roe's loss to the Centrals. Roe's father died last Friday.

Except for the fact that he was forced to back up instead of coming forward to meet a high ball, Ollie Behman proved a capable substitute. His zooming left foot passes to Patenaude and McNab bothered the Chicago defense no little.

Scotty Nilsen didn't get a clear kicking all afternoon, which is the best possible proof of the efficiency of the Central defense. Cuthbert, Hill and Coutts took the only generous shots for Chicago.

Hamm is a bricklayer and he has a bricklayer's hands. His fingers enabled him to hold hard drives by Hill and Coutts in the second half.

No Chance to Save.

Nilsen were twins and both of them had a hockey stick to help, he couldn't have stopped either of the successful Central shots by McLean and Patenaude.

For an all-Scotch team (except Nilsen, Tomich and Hjulian, all foreign born), the Wieboldts kept the ball in the air a surprising lot. Not good football as the Scots know it.

McNab and Cuthbert got into a scrap in which there were threats of boxing but the referee and others quelled the disturbance.

Tom Scott and Willie McLean had their series of bouts, as expected, and Scott looked very uncomfortable for it. He found that the way to keep Patenaude from scoring was to knock him down before he got the ball. The system worked the first time he tried it but after that big Tom had to brush his own pants off a couple of times.

The Chicago players felt that their attack did not get going, but it is likewise true that the Central forward line can do a lot more damage than it did yesterday.

Kane was not a bad understudy for Roe at inside left, although he made no attempt to engage in such a short passing combination as McLean and Roe have perfected.

Lehman Plays Fine Game.

Bill Lehman, fully aware that great things were demanded of him, came through with his most effective game of the season. He was never far away from Nilsen, yet he found time to give Gonsalves and Kane valuable aid.

PAWTUCKET VS. NEWARK IN EASTERN CUP FINAL

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FALL RIVER, Mass., March 25.—Pawtucket Rangers, soccer cup finalists of last season, fought their way to the eastern final by defeating the Liberals of this city in a two-game series concluded here yesterday. They will play a two-game series with the Scots-Americans of Newark next Saturday and Sunday, the victor to oppose the Western survivor, Centrals of St. Louis or Wieboldts of Chicago. Pawtucket is expected to overcome the Newark club.

Seven Goals for Smith.

LOS ANGELES, March 25.—The Texas Rangers won the third and deciding game of their polo series yesterday with the Riviera four, 12 to 11. Cecil Smith, international star with the Texans, had a great day, scoring seven goals.

A Squeeze Play In Soccer—Centrals Put the Pressure on Hjulian

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

$300,000 Needed to Send U. S. Team to Olympic Games

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 25.

GUSTAVUS T. KIRBY of New York, Olympic treasurer, told the American Olympic Committee yesterday that $300,000 would be needed to send a complete team to the 1936 Olympics, including the winter sports at Garmisch-Partenkirchen and the main program at Berlin.

"The raising of this sum," Kirby said, "will prove more difficult than heretofore. We can expect to raise a maximum of $100,000 from sources other than contributions; that is to say, from the tryouts. Perhaps we will obtain no more than $50,000 from this source. From local finance committees we can expect $50,000. That leaves $200,000 to be raised by the "Games Committee themselves."

The committee indicated that for the first time in the 44-year history of the modern Olympic games, the United States will demand a share of the gate receipts of post-Olympic competition in Europe to help finance the cost of sending the American team to Berlin.

Begley's Goal Enables Village Eleven to Defeat His Old Team In Municipal Soccer Final 1-0

If you happen to run across Elmer Dowling today don't speak to him about soccer, unless you are a good runner.

Elmer owns and manages the Alpen Brau club. He started the season with a team of star players, among whom was Eddie Begley, center halfback, generally considered the best player in the Municipal League. Begley was out of work and Dowling, not being a magician, couldn't get him a job. But one William P. "Mickey" Clawsey, manager of the Irish Village team, and a good friend of Dowling's, is one of those fellows who 'finds you wurruk whin there is no wurruk." Mickey needed a center halfback and Begley needed work. Mickey provided the job and bighearted Mr. Dowling released his best player to the magician Mickey so that Begley could go to work.

Today, Clawsey's Irish Village team is champion of the Municipal Soccer League by reason of Begley's goal, the only score made in the third and final match of the series with the Alpen Braus, played before a crowd of 5000 at Fairground Park yesterday afternoon. If Dowling is still an altruist he's one man in a million.

The champions appeared formidable enough at the start, with Joie Doyle at center forward and John Macken at center halfback. However, Doyle could not finish the first half and Macken had to hobble off shortly after the second period started, both suffering injuries.

Few Blows Are Struck.

Police and volunteer "peace makers" (if you're on my side of the argument) swooped over the field to break up a general fight when "Googie" Rudloff and Vince O'Toole put a match to the powder keg. Few blows struck, no one ejected by the referee.

Ed Begley made frequent use of a hitch-kick, whereby he is able to clear a ball instead of heading it or trapping it when crowded. Many spectators have cried "foul" at this kick, but it is perfectly legitimate so long as the referee does not consider it "dangerous play." There is no rule against hitch-kicking, it just happens that few players are able to use the kick effectively.

Under the pressure of "final" excitement, players of both sides forgot their A B C's of position play. The wing men of both teams bore in toward center, making it quite easy for the defense to cover them. Kavanaugh and Scheer of the victors were just as guilty as the losers in this respect.

The ball was in the air too much. That didn't hurt the Villagers much, but the Alpen Braus should have done their very utmost to keep the ball on the ground, their best chance to go through the fast, sturdy Village defense.

Best Shots Fail to Tally.

Bill Fogarty and Bub Dennis took the best shots of the day, but neither scored.

Kavanaugh was again deadly accurate with his corner kicks and came within inches of repeating his feat of the week previous in scoring from the flag, unaided.

Stratmann and Scheer worked well together at times, but on the whole there was a shocking absence of pass work. Both teams are capable of better football.

McAndrew could not possibly be blamed for not reaching Begley's shot, but the fact remains that the Village goalie proved himself the better of the two for the series. McAndrew has a fatal weakness in not being able to get distance on his clearances.

Holy Rosary Wins Again.

Scoring their second straight victory over the clever young Spanish Caballeros, the Holy Rosary team retained its Junior Municipal Soccer League championship. The game was played at Fairground Park, immediately following the Irish Village-Alpen Brau match.

Bears' Swimming Star to Compete In Collegiate Meet

FRED VARNEY, Washington University's 19-year-old six-feet-tall sophomore sprint swimmer, will enter the national collegiate swimming meet at Harvard next Friday and Saturday. Varney, former Western Military Academy swimmer, set two records last Saturday in the Missouri Valley Conference meet in the 100 and 220 yard free style events.

Coach Artie Eilers of Washington does not expect Varney to win any titles or set any records in the national meet, but he does think that the experience will enable Fred to place high in the meet in the next two years.

Varney was captain of three teams at Western, leading the football, baseball and swimming squads in his senior year, and was also on the track team. At Washington, Fred has concentrated on speed swimming, although he used to be a fancy diver.

LOCAL BOWLER TOTALS 614 IN A. B. C. SINGLES

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., March 25.—Poor first games, an annual habit, prevents not only five-man teams, but often pairs and single shooters from going places in the American Bowling Congress tournaments.

Lemmy Coffey of St. Louis, was off on the wrong foot yesterday, or the Mound City kegler would now be enjoying a choice berth among the solo leaders in the classic, now entering the final stretch here.

Coffey started his singles event with a poor 129 game and then bounced back to chalk up 232 and 253 for a 614 total.

The Monarchs of Chicago opened with only 889 late last night and then pounded out scores of 1026 and 1013 to roll into fourth place in the team standings.

Collingdale Millwoods, Philadelphia, crashed into second place earlier in the evening with 2946, marking the fifth change among the "Big Ten" of the day.

Casmir Czarnecki, Toledo, after opening with 194, came back with 235 and 254 to vault into second place in the singles with 683. Don Jackson, Racine, Wis., moved into a tie for third with Joe Norwick, Detroit, 682.

Tommy Zavakos of Dayton, O., rolled into second place in the all events with a total of 1892. After a 596 performance in the team event Saturday night, Zavakos came back with 671 in the doubles and 625 in the singles to compile his nine game total.

MELILLO CALLED HOME BY DAUGHTER'S ILLNESS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 25.—Oscar Melillo, key man of the St. Louis Brown's infield defense, was called home to Chicago today by a telegram announcing that his daughter had been taken ill with scarlet fever.

Melillo will not rejoin the club during its remaining days in the South but will meet the team in St. Louis in time for the spring series if possible.

The absence of Melillo will afford Manager Hornsby a chance to give Ollie Bejma and himself, utility infielders, a chance to get in needed practice at the keystone job.

Hornsby is eager to play this year and hopes to get into the game frequently during the early months of the season. Thus far he has been compelled to remain out of the lineup except in two instances, in order to give his young men, and especially Burnett, a chance to show their wares.

INDOOR TENNIS TITLE MEET IN SECOND ROUND

By Davison Obear.

Play in the ninth annual St. Louis District indoor tennis championship will be resumed tonight on the Washington University Field House courts. Second-round matches in the men's singles and first-round contests in the men's doubles event are scheduled.

Ned Simmons and Bert Lambert, two of the St. Louis Country Club entrants, will meet in what is expected to be the feature of the second-round singles matches. Both men are experienced tournament players and a close battle is expected.

Kaltenbach vs. Smith.

Another St. Louis Country Club player will be seen in action when Henry Kaltenbach Jr. opposes McNeill Smith, East St. Louis star. Smith was runner-up to Karl Hodge last year. Kaltenbach, a former national indoor junior champion, has confined his game more to doubles than singles during the past several years.

Ray Wiese, second seeded player, opposes George Prelutzky in another second-round encounter. This match should produce some close playing, as Prelutzky has shown steady improvement.

The entry in the men's doubles reached an even bracket of 16 teams. Karl Kammann and Charles Barnes, defending champions, were seeded No. 1, while the next three seeded teams were Ray Wiese and McNeill Smith, Wayne Smith and Ward Parker, and Herbert Weinstock and Joyce Portnoy.

The seeded teams in the upper bracket are Wiese and McNeill Smith and Weinstock and Portnoy, while the champions are in the lower bracket, with Wayne Smith and Parker.

In one of the doubles matches scheduled for play tonight, Bert Lambert will be on the opposite side of the net from Ned Simmons for the second time. Lambert is paired with Kaltenbach and they will play Hodge and Simmons.

Frank Keaney and Bill Kreuger will meet Joe Petrik and Elmer Rehmer in a first-round doubles match, which is likely to go into extra sets. Kammann and Barnes, defending champions, play Langdon Carton and Edgar Taylor Jr., in their opening match of the tournament.

Women's Singles.

Additional entries received Saturday will probably make it possible for a women's singles event to be held, according to Russell Hadden, tournament chairman.

Tonight's Schedule.

MEN'S SINGLES.
SECOND ROUND.

MEN'S DOUBLES.
FIRST ROUND.

Louis Opposes Washington Heavy In Bout, Friday

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 25.—While Harry Wills tends to his business interests in Harlem and George Godfrey tries to eke out a living as a wrestler abroad, the latest "black menace" of the heavyweights, Young Joe Louis of Detroit, seems headed straight for an eventual match for the world championship.

Into a division sadly lacking hitting power, Louis has carried a pair of explosive fists and a string of knockout victories that entitle him to more than passing consideration in any discussion of possible opponents for champion Max Baer. There remain many ifs and buts, before Louis gets his big chance. Baer, however, has removed one of the biggest of them—he has said he will not draw the "color line." The promoters and boxing commissions may.

Louis has hung up five victories in the last four months, winning four of them by knockouts, technical or actual. He stopped Lee Ramage, clever San Diego heavyweight, in eight rounds and then knocked him out in two. He outpointed Patsy Perroni in 10; stopped Hans Birkie in 10 and Red Barry in three.

The Detroit slugger, keeping busy while most of the other heavyweights mark time, meets Nate Brown, trial horse from Washington, in a 10-rounder at Detroit Friday night. He can regard that, perhaps, as a tune up for his forthcoming Eastern invasion. Louis has signed for three outdoor engagements under the auspices of Mike Jacobs and the Twentieth Century Club. One of them, if all goes well, will take him against Primo Carnera in the Yankee Stadium June 19.

Although the heavyweight situation still is in a snarl, some fight experts believe the most probable lineup will find Baer defending his championship against Max Schmeling for Madison Square Garden in June and then, if he gets past the Teuton, facing the winner of the Louis-Carnera bout in September.

WRAY'S COLVMN

Nothing to Worry Hornsby.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 25.

ONCE upon a time big league managers in charge of spring training squads worried about what to do with all the material on hand. They had to choose from 40 or more players which ones to retain and where to send the residue for safe keeping until they ripened.

The reduction in the number of players teams may carry, necessity for retrenchment and the building up of chain store farms have simplified this problem.

Even so, many managers are hard pressed to choose, sometimes. But there'll be no furrows on Rogers Hornsby's brow, as the team is at present constituted. Unless new talent is bought or traded in, only two choices remain to be made before the reduction to 23 players takes place—and that is a long time away.

As it stands today Hornsby has only 24 men under consideration, not counting himself and only two discards are possible.

Only One Pitcher to Go.

HORNSBY plans to keep all three catchers—Heath, Grube and Hemsley.

He will keep seven infielders, including himself—Burns, Melillo (if not traded), Strange, Clift, Burnett and Bejma being the others.

At present the only debate as to the five outfielders lies between Bettencourt and Mueller. Hornsby has been hoping this situation would solve itself through a trade he had contemplated, but which now is more than doubtful. He will probably open the season with Pepper, Garms, West, Bell and Bettencourt.

The pitching staff will have only one doubt—the choice as to which pitcher to discard as between Howard Mills and Elton Walkup—with Walkup having made far the better showing thus far.

Walkup, in fact, is almost a sure shot to get a trial in the big time this year. The others apparently sure of jobs are Newsom, Coffman, Blaeholder, Knott, Thomas and Weiland.

And that's the outfit with which Hornsby will have to face major league contention during the coming season—unless unexpected trades or purchases develop.

And, bear in mind, purchases are about as likely to occur as a ski-jumping contest in Timbuctoo.

Right From the Shoulder.

OUTSPOKEN is only a mild word, when Rogers Hornsby is considered. When somebody "asks for it" he gets it bluntly—player, official, newspaperman or owner.

Bill Terry of the Giants found out that much in a recent game here. That was the day Carl Hubbell was on the hill. With a man on first, Hubbell suddenly threw to base to catch the runner.

Hornsby immediately yelled at Umpire Pfirman: "Hey, that's a balk! That motion was illegal!"

Pfirman agreed, and the Brownie baserunner advanced to second.

After the game, Terry said to Hornsby: "When you called that play to Pfirman and he declared it a balk, that wasted almost a month's practice."

"What do you mean?" Hornsby asked.

"Hubbell has been working on that play for weeks and thought it was O K."

"Why didn't YOU tell him it was illegal and that he was wasting his time?"

Only Hornsby saw Bill's blushes.

About Hemsley's Contract.

DURING the winter months, a widely published story told how Hemsley was signed to a contract according to which he was to "fine himself."

"Somebody got that twisted," Hornsby said. "Hemsley's contract is no different from the others. What I told one reporter who asked me about Hemsley was just what I told Rollie. I said: 'This club doesn't want to fine you. It wants you to get every cent of your salary. And also to earn it.

"This club doesn't fine anybody. There are certain rules of conduct which must be followed. If they are not, a fine automatically applies. If you break the rules you automatically fine yourself.'

"That's true of every member of the club," Hornsby added.

Hemsley has been progressing well this year, and he should be one of the outstanding players of the league if he hews to the line throughout the season.

It's a great chance for him, and many observers believe he could become the leading catcher of the year.

No Kid Gloves Used.

HORNSBY'S handling of his players strikes the happy medium between severity and backslapping. Players are like a bunch of frolicking pups. They will play and fool around if not watched.

Hornsby tolerates a certain amount of this, but when he gives an order and somebody tries to shirk it, those little fans of grin wrinkles at the corners of the eyes fade away, the cheek dimples disappear and the blue eyes grow cold and an edge creeps into the Hornsby voice. Then see the men hop to it!

Probably no upcoming manager brings to the job as many valuable assets as Hornsby. His wonderful baseball background assures him the respect and attention of all his players, old and young. What Rogers tells them is gospel. Today such a thing as doubting his judgment, as has happened in case of previous St. Louis managers, doesn't exist.

Having been a baseball player himself under several leaders, he knows the players' manner of thinking and how to handle them. He has an iron will and an outspoken manner that leaves no doubt at all about where he stands on any subject.

30 QUINTETS BEGIN PLAY IN NATIONAL WOMEN'S BASKET MEET

By the Associated Press.

WICHITA, Kan., March 25.—The Tulsa (Ok.) Stenos, upholding what is left of the Oklahoma oil center's basketball prestige, open defense of their title here today in the women's National A. A. U. basketball tournament.

Hoping to avoid the fate that befell the Tulsa Oilers, the National men's champions, who lost their chance for another title last week at Denver, the Stenos found their championship sought by 29 other teams from the Atlantic seaboard to Salt Lake City, Utah.

Several teams have defeated the champions this season, and several others loom as threats. In the first round today, the Stenos are matched against a Meade (Kan.) sextet.

One of the outstanding contenders is Shreveport, La., now under the direction of Coach Sam Babb, who has piloted two teams to the National title.

Referee—Cameron and MacKinnon and Paddy Farrell.

By W. J. McGoogan.

Alex McPherson, coach of the Flyers and leading scorer of the American Hockey Association, is the chief reason why his club today is one up on the Tulsa Oilers in the playoff for the league championship. He counted two goals and had an assist at the Winter Garden last night as the Flyers trimmed the Oilers, 4 to 1, in the first of a five-game series.

It was a rough battle, Leo Carbol, St. Louis defense man suffered a match penalty in the first period for striking Referee Paddy Farrell, while Pete Palangio and Roy Powley got into a fist fight in the third period and were banished for 5 minutes each.

But McPherson, pint-sized leader, left the battling to his bigger mates and tended to the business at hand — winning the contest. And in that he succeeded admirably for not only did he show the way in scoring, but his clever poke checking was a big factor in the Flyer defense. The Oiler forwards found it very difficult to get past Alex as he swung his stick all over the ice breaking up their rushes.

Paddy Paddon counted one goal for the Flyers and Radley got the other, while Paddon was credited with three assists.

Carbol Punches Referee.

Carbol, usually quiet and self-contained, became incensed at Farrell because the referee permitted Curly Headley, Tulsa defense man, to get away with what Leo thought was an illegal check. He hit Carbol a hard jolt at center ice and a few minutes later, as Chouinard skated down the wing, Carbol dumped him into the boards. Chouinard swung his stick as he bounced back and hit Carbol.

Farrell skated up with the command to both of them to get out but Carbol struck the referee with his fist and then his stick. It appeared that Carbol had misunderstood the referee and thought he was the only one banished. Later, however, Leo said that was not the case, that all he wanted was an excuse to take a crack at Farrell for not penalizing Headley.

There was considerable milling about as Carbol was chased from the ice for five minutes and then the rest of the game, which meant that while Leo was ineligible for the rest of the contest, his place could be taken on the ice at the end of five minutes.

In addition to Farrell, Cameran MacKinnon refereed and with 12 hockey players and two referees on the small surface of the Winter Garden the place was rather crowded, resulting in much bell ringing.

Joe Matte Penalized.

Joe Matte was penalized shortly after the start of hostilities, but the Oilers were unable to do anything about it. Hardly had he returned to the ice when Chouinard was sent to the box and Paddon put the Flyers one up with an unassisted goal. Carbol suffered his first penalty, but no harm resulted. Then came the double penalty, with neither side able to count. The period ended with the Flyers leading, 1 to 0.

Palangio, De Paul and Scott made a clever raid on the Tulsa goal shortly after the start of the second session, but quick work by Tony Christello, in the Oiler net in place of the ill Karakas, prevented a score as first one, then the other fired the disc at him.

Mickey Murray, too, had a couple of hard shots to stop before McPherson scored his first goal to put the Flyers two to the good. This happened just 20 seconds before the finish of play and resulted from a drive by the coach, Gordon Teel, and Paddon.

McPherson took the puck into Oiler territory and passed to Peel, who missed the disc, but retrieved it in time to give it back to McPherson, via Paddon, for the score.

Palangio and Powley Mix.

McPherson and Paddon drove into the Oiler net at the beginning of the third period and knocked Christello down with a shot, but he managed to clear, then Kucher was banished for a trip and shortly afterward Palangio and Powley became embroiled and were both sent to the box, leaving St. Louis with four men in front of their goalie and Tulsa with three.

The Flyers were unable to count until just after Kucher returned, when Radley drove the disc home on passes from Paddon and McPherson.

Later Radley was penalized, then Paddon, leaving the Flyers two men shy, and it was at this point that Tulsa managed to get its only score after McPherson had managed to do a clever bit of stalling to chew up time. Five Tulsans worked into the Flyers' territory and finally Bailey counted on a pass from Des Jardin.

Second Game Tomorrow.

The second game of the series is to be played tomorrow night at the Winter Garden, after which the teams move to Tulsa for games Thursday and Friday. If the fifth game is necessary, it will be played here next Sunday night.

Players share in the receipts of three games, receiving 40 per cent of the pool after certain expenses are deducted. If five games are played the clubs and the league split up the gate receipts.

Baseball Is Revived.

St. John's College of Annapolis has a basball team again, seven years after the sport was dropped.

BEAUMONT NINE BEGINS SEASON WITH NORMANDY HIGH THURSDAY

By Harold Tuthill.

Coach Victor H. Kirk doesn't rate his 1935 Beaumont High School baseball model very highly in spite of the fact that he will have four veterans from last year on the squad. The Blue Jackets will open the season with two games away from home this week.

Normandy will be Beaumont's first opponent, for the Vikings will be host to Beaumont Thursday afternoon. Saturday, the Blue Jackets go to Valmeyer, Ill.

Included among Kirk's veterans are Danny Krueger and Richard Tichacek who probably will form the starting battery this year. Last season Charley Gould was behind the plate and Tichacek in centerfield, but Kirk believes Tichacek is a better catcher than an outfielder. Krueger is a righthander.

Two Veteran Infielders.

Two infielders complete the veteran group. They are Bill Marsden, third baseman, and Casimir Strycharz, second baseman. Now all Kirk has to do is to pluck two more infielders and three toutfielders from a list of 60-odd aspirants. Originally the squad numbered 90, but by last Friday Kirk had pruned the number down by 30 and he states there will be another wholesale cut within the next day or so.

Assisting Kirk in the development of the team are two ex-Beaumont stars. One is Charley Mueller, shortstop, who last year missed by only a small margin the honor of receiving one of the two Phil Ball memorial awards offered by the St. Louis Browns. Pete Chulick of McKinley and Elmer Serb of the championship Central team won the traveling scholarship, a trip around the American League circuit with the Browns. This award is an annual one, so two more boys will be selected this year.

Season Begins April 6.

The coaches of the league made a trip to the Public Schools Stadium last week to look over the grounds. They were dismayed to find that the football field had been plowed under. However, it is understood that the ground will be rolled and a backstop erected in time for the opening of the league season, April 6. If not then the opening tripleheader will have to be played in the "cow pasture" (as one coach dubbed it) to the north of the stadium proper until the regular field is made fit for play.

Last year McKinley and Central finished the season tied for final honors. In a play-off game at Sportsman's Park, the mid-city nine came out on top, 7 to 6.

Beaumont vs. McKinley, 10 a. m.
Soldan vs. Blewett, 1 p. m.
Cleveland vs. Central, 3 p. m.
Roosevelt, bye.

GROTHA SCORES 893 TO CAPTURE JUDGE BECK SWEEPSTAKES

The Saratoga Recreation supplied two of the five winners in the Judge Beck handicap bowling sweepstakes at the Virginia Recreation concluded yesterday, Clarence Grotha scoring 893 to take first prize and the diamond medal and Clarence Stein, manager of the alleys, fifth prize with 875.

In winning the medal, Grotha defeated a field of 80 bowlers, rolling 809 scratch and receiving a handicap of 84 pins. Clarence Kaley placed second with 884, which included a handicap of 32 pins. Ambrose Nathe, Hermann star, rolled a 288-game in his second effort but received a handicap of only 24 pins and landed third with 882.

H. Laumann took fifth with a gross total of 876 while E. Hance, Edwardsville, Ill., took down high handicap single with 279. He scored 249 scratch.

NEW YORK, March 25.—The Boston Bruins and New York Rangers, first and third respectively in the National Hockey League's American division, forged to the front as the playoffs for the 1935 league title and the Stanley Cup got under way during the weekend.

The margins were so slim in each case, however, that the ultimate decisions were left for future encounters.

A third of the opening round duels, involving the second-place Montreal Maroons and Chicago Blackhawks, was tossed directly into the lap of the gods who will govern the second games tomorrow when their first contest ended in a scoreless tie Saturday.

Boston, battling the Toronto Mapleleafs for the League title and a place in the finals, won the opening encounter of the best three-out-of-five series, 1 to 0, in a long overtime encounter Saturday.

Rangers Trim Canadiens.

The Rangers took a 2—1 edge over the Montreal Canadiens last night in their third-place playoff after surviving one of the bloodiest and most exciting stick and fist battles seen here in years.

The second conests of all three series will be played tomorrow in Boston, Chicago and Montreal. The Maroons and Blackhawks start theirs all square while the Rangers carry over a one-goal margin as the two-game second and third place duels are decided on total goals for the round.

History repeated itself in the first Boston-Toronto clash. The same clubs that wound up a similar series two years ago with an all-time record game that went more than 100 minutes overtime, had to play a half hour extra Saturday to reach a decision. Then the burly Alberta agrarian, Eddie Shore, tore down the ice, fought off two Toronto players and laid a pass on Dit Clapper's stick for the only goal.

Bill Cook Is Injured.

Playing surprisingly fast and rough hockey from the start, the Rangers and Canadiens abandoned the puck for fists and sticks in the middle of the second period after a high sticking affray between Bill Cook, Ranger captain, and young Nels Crutchfield. As they were motioned toward the penalty box, Cook smacked his opponent with his stick and Crutchfield retaliated with a swooping stick blow that laid the New Yorker's head open.

Immediately all the members of both teams, even the goalies, jumped in and a half dozen two-somes squared off. After two or three minutes of fighting and 10 more of arguing it developed that Referee A. G. Smith already had turned to face the puck when the affair started and had looked around just in time to see Crutchfield's wallop.

During the 22 minutes the habitants were short handed the Ranger ace retired to the dressing room to have eight stitched taken in his scalp then returned to action to score the odd goal of the three.

Busy Dictators.
Hitler, Peace Angel.
Kemal Speaks Up.
Women at 50.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.
(Copyright, 1935.)

EUROPE'S dictators borrow ideas from each other. Mussolini, perhaps unconsciously copied Rienzi, who ended violently. Hitler saw how well Mussolini's idea worked, and adopted it. Dolfuss tried it in Vienna, ended badly.

Kemal Pasha has made a success of it thus far in Turkey, throwing Sultans overboard, Mohammed, the fez, veils for women also. Kemal says "If Hitler can defy the League and kick over the Versailles treaty, so can I." He will fortify the Dardanelles, in spite of the treaty, which created a neutral zone, adjoining the narrow water passage that separates Europe from Asia, at Constantinople.

Hitler, turning with a rapidity that would startle any worm, now declares himself guardian angel of Europe, offering to start a world peace guaranteed to last 20 years. That would depend on Japan and Russia.

France sends 30,000 men closer to the German border, and Mussolini, probably annoyed by imitation dictators forcing themselves into the limelight, announces that he has raised Italy's regular army to 600,000, and will probably increase it to 2,000,000.

Two million soldiers would eat a good deal of food that other Italians would have to supply, and fire off much ammunition that would not hit anybody in particular.

President Roosevelt is "advised by his highest naval and military advisers" that "no immediate war is likely."

That must comfort the President, knowing as he does that this nation is absolutely unprepared for war, with an air force that the British Air Minister somewhat "top-loftily" but accurately describes as negligible.

Clarence Darrow, able criminal lawyer, earnest and sincere, thinks we ought to have free trade. He would change his mind if Japanese criminal lawyers could imitate Darrow as well as they can imitate our American workmen, come here and defend Leopold and Loeb, for $250 instead of the amount paid to Mr. Darrow for saving the lives of the horrible young murderers.

Darrow is more like himself in describing some of our new fangled methods of "distribution" that do not distribute.

"We are paying people not to work, not to produce, in order to produce a scarcity so we can get wealthy because we are poor."

Mrs. Isabella Greenway, representing Arizona in Congress, celebrates her forty-ninth birthday, having as principal guest, her only grandchild, a small baby.

Young and good looking as ever, "Congressman" Greenway will not worry as some women do, about the "approaching fifties." The fiftieth birthday is the beginning of the best period in a woman's life the period of highest intelligence and charm, lasting from 50 to 80, and longer. Wise providence postpones full development of woman's intellect until after 50 because, until that age, she should not concentrate too seriously on anything except the production of good children.

A CIVIL LIBERTIES PROTEST

'Reactionary Interests' Trying to Enact 'Sedition Law.'

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—Opposition to "the drive by reactionary interests to restrict the civil and political liberties of the American people" is urged in a communication sent to President Roosevelt and members of Congress by the American Civil Liberties Union.

The communication, signed by 26 attorneys, professors and writers, charged that "commercial, so-called patriotic and military forces are urging a united campaign to enact a Federal sedition law and to bring back into the Department of Justice the Federal secret police force which marked two former regimes." Among those signing the letter of protest were the Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick of New York; W. A. Neilson, president of Smith College; Zechariah Chafee Jr., Harvard law professor, and Frank P. Walsh, New York attorney.

THE MARCH OF FASHION

By Sylvia Stiles

CLOTHES and popularity are good companions on a university campus. The girl who attends a school where there are no men among the students may wear any old sweater outfit when she goes to classes, but the one who has chosen a co-educational institution is as careful of her classroom attire as she is her formal costumes.

Eyes at Washington University recently have been focused on the girls whose popularity decreed that they should be candidates for hatchet queen, so what they have been wearing on the campus proves to be fashion news. All have been appearing in attractive spring attire, the majority in various interpretations of the suit mode. Knitted sports outfits and the sweater and skirt costume also have ranked as favorite costumes.

Miss Winona Gunn, the winner of the hatchet queen race, has been wearing a striking blue and white checked suit. Over the short fitted jacket she adds, on cool days, a swagger topcoat of plain dark blue woolen. The jacket of this suit fastens with one button, has little pockets and the Clark Gable back. The skirt is plainly tailored. The topcoat is of the three-quarter length that is in vogue at present and is a very practical garment as it may be worn with one-piece dresses. To complete her costume Miss Gunn has selected a dark blue felt hat of the sailor type and blue and white sports oxfords.

The preference for navy blue as a background color for spring also is expressed by Miss Virginia de Haven in her swagger type of suit. The three-quarter length coat of this suit has raglan shoulders. The sleeves have little turned-back cuffs. A standing collar fastens with three navy blue frogs. The skirt is straight of line. Miss de Haven's favorite blouse for this suit is of navy blue and white polka dotted silk. Her tailored hat and her spectator sports oxfords are navy.

MISS VIRGINIA KERWIN is an exponent of the cape theme for spring. She has been a stunning figure in a gray wool cape suit. The novelty woolen of her suit has rust colored threads in large square designs so that the gray forms a blocked effect. The cape is of the military type and fastens at either side of the front with a straight band of the fabric. It is lined with bright green silk pique and the same vivid fabric is used for a blouse. Another interesting feature of this suit is a cleverly styled wool vest that is quite mannish in its cut. Little slit pockets and pointed front sections are noteworthy. The skirt of this suit has the appearance of being wrapped and has three fabric buttons holding in place a deep pleat at the side. The hat which Miss Kerwin wears with this suit is of the Robin Hood type and matches the green of the coat lining and blouse. Her high-cut ties are of gray kid.

A DARK green wool knitted suit is among the attractive costumes of Miss Marli Rossiter. It is of the two-piece type, the blouse of which is finished with a wide band at the waistline. This band crosses and fastens with buttons and there is a similar fastening at the neckline. Four large buttons made of polished Brazil nuts are ornamental on the front of the blouse. A heavy vertical ribbing distinguishes the blouse while the skirt is plain. A brown felt hat that turns up at the back and down in the front and brown leather sports shoes are harmonious accessories.

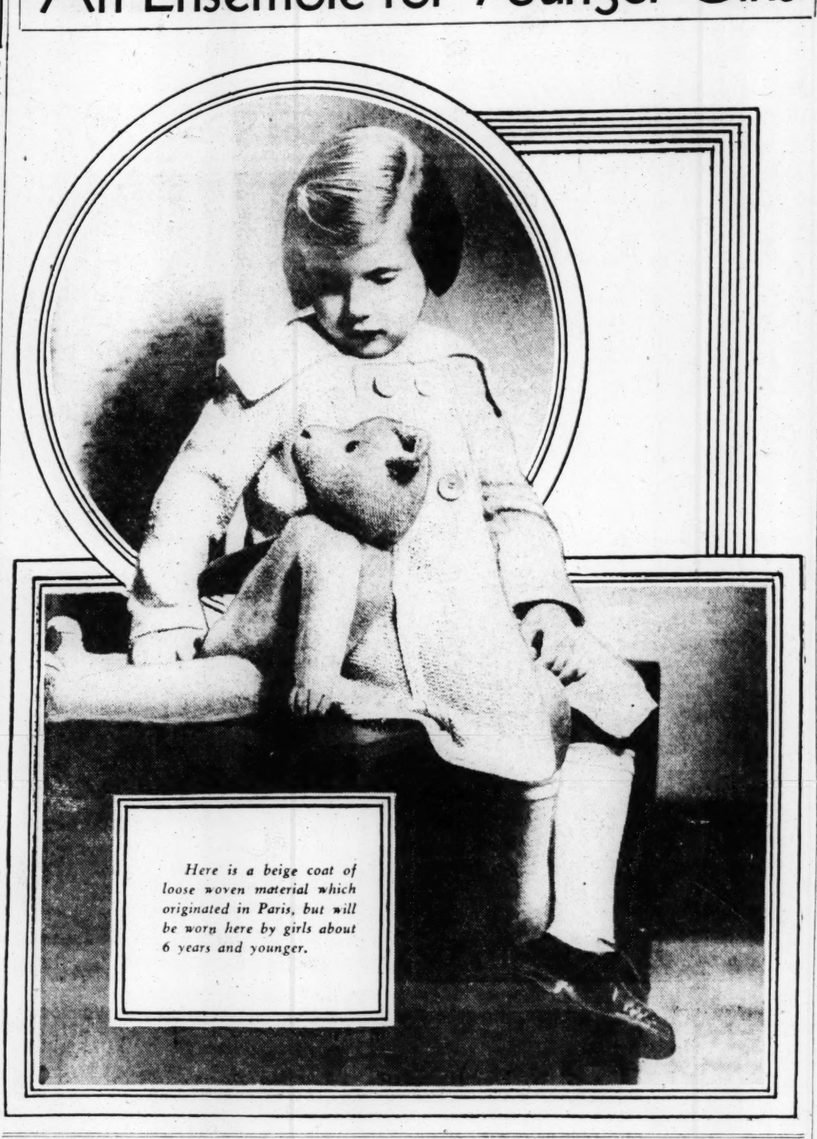

The sweater and skirt costume is a popular one at Washington University as it is on many other campuses. Miss Helen Worrall, who was special maid of honor to the queen prefers this casual type of outfit. Her newest version consists of a brown tweed skirt that is flecked with white and twin sweaters of white cashmere wool. The sweaters are of the accepted style, one being a tailored cardigan and the othr a short-sleeved slip-on. Miss Worrall's hat is of brown felt and her oxfords are also brown.

Methods That Add to Natural Color of Hair

By Edna K. Forbes.

WE TALKED about bleaching the hair to a golden color, when it was a drab, unbecoming shade. Today let's see what can be done to make the light shades richer. A drab blonde can go golden or ash blonde with peroxide, or rich red blonde with henna. A light brunette can go a coppery brown, which is most becoming, with henna, or a good golden blonde with peroxide. These are the only home bleaching or tinting methods I advise. For other colorings, go to a shop every six weeks and have your hair properly done. As I said, dyes are harmless these days, but they must be put on by someone who knows how, otherwise you'll come out a new color each time, and, worse, a streaky color. Be as artificial as you please, but make the artificiality more becoming than naturalness.

We have already talked about the peroxide. Now, to darken the hair with henna, or to make grayish brown coppery is equally simple. Have a shop do it the first time. Then you buy a couple of ounces of powdered Egyptian henna. You make an ounce of it or an ounce and a half, into a paste with hot water—it works up and becomes quite a lot in quantity. It should be the thickness of mayonnaise, and should be kept in a bowl standing in hot water, so the henna itself is hot. For a re-touch, part the hair, apply along each parting with an old toothbrush. Cover the scalp this way, and keep it on five to 10 minutes. Wash off with clear, warm water, a hose being a good way to use the water. Then shampoo with three soapings of liquid soap and a lot of water.

Or make the powder into a soap mixture, which does not color so quickly. One ounce of henna, two ounces of powdered castile soap. Make a thin, syrupy mixture, work over the scalp and rub and rub this through the hair for five minutes or more. This colors a little and also washes, so when you rinse off, your hair is coppery and also clean.

Carrot and Cheese Salad.

Blend one cake of cream cheese with a little sweet cream to form a paste. Work into the paste grated raw carrots. Season with a little lemon juice and a few drops of onion juice. Shape into small balls and serve on beds of crisp lettuce. Serve French dressing separately.

Chocolate Mousse.

A delightful change from ice cream for a fussy dessert. Whip one quart of cream until stiff. Stir in two-thirds cup confectioners' sugar. Mix carefully and then add two ounces melted chocolate. Flavor with one teaspoon vanilla and pour into a mold. Seal tightly and pack in ice and salt for four hours.

If the only lemon you have in the house seems a little dried out, place it in very hot water for a little while and then use. It will help tremendously.

Black-Bottom Pie

Two cups milk.
Five tablespoons cake flour.
One-half cup granulated sugar.
One-half teaspoon salt.
Four egg yolks.
Two teaspoons vanilla.
One large unbaked pie shell.
One-half cup milk or dipping chocolate, grated.
One-half cup whipping cream.
One tablespoon powdered sugar.

Scald the milk in a double boiler. Mix the flour, sugar, and salt and slowly add some of the hot milk. Return to rest of milk in double boiler and cook for 20 minutes, stirring frequently. Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon-colored. Slowly pour the hot mixture over them. Cool and add vanilla. Bake the pie shell in a very hot oven (450 degrees F.) for 12 minutes or until slightly browned. While pie shell is still hot, cover with a thick layer of grated chocolate and allow to melt. Chill until chocolate is firm. Pour in the cream filling. Spread over top a layer of cream, whipped until stiff and sweetened with powdered sugar. This makes eight servings.

Avacado Pear Salad.

Eight slices pineapple
Eight slices avacado
Sixteen pieces grapefruit
Two tablespoons lime or lemon juice
One-third cup French dressing

Mix fruits and dressing. Chill. Arrange on lettuce and prinkle with lime juice.

Beat the blankets gently after washing aand drying to make them soft and fluffy.

Women's Desire To Keep From Showing Age

A Discussion of Feminine Efforts Never to Look Past 30 Years Old.

By Elsie Robinson

THERE is—as you may know to your sorrow—a certain pernicious institution in our stores, known as "Size 20." On the face of it, Size 20 seems innocent enough. It merely states the oldest, and therefore largest, girl model available in current fashions. And, since 20-year-old girls abound in merry measure, American shops are filled with delectable racks of such fluffy-ruffly exhibits.

Elsie Robinson

All of which seems quite as it should be. But now comes the joker.

Suppose you're NOT a 20-year-old girl—

Suppose you've long since passed the inches and interests of that palpitating period and are qualified, both by girth and mental development, to wear the staid and stout Size 40's, 42's and moreso's of mature years—

And suppose, not being a nudist, you dash into the average store in search of a dress—

Then what? Why, then, lady, you're just Out of Luck! You might as well ask for a round trip ticket to Mars as expect the average store to supply you with anything over Size 20.

But aren't there lots more ladies in this country OVER Size 20 than under it? There are. But just try and get 'em to admit it. Or, if they admit it, try to coax the shopkeepers to consider that fact.

"But there ARE larger sizes in the stores!" you protest.

Yes, there are. But to all intents and purposes they are still Size 20. Reluctant inches may have been added to the waistline and hem. But in every coy bow-knot, tricky necktie and challenging button, the garment still insists on being a Sweet Young Thing.

The sinister truth is this — Size 20 is not only a dress measurement; it is a STATE OF MIND. A state of mind largely confined to American females.

Until the last 15 years—more or less—American matrons accepted their years pretty much as their mothers and grandmothers accepted them. Probably they weren't keen on Growing Up, but life was like that and what could anyone do about it?

Moreover, there were definite social penalties for ladies who tried to buck the system. Thirty years ago, any wife or mother who expressed a desire to look "younger than her years" was promptly classed with the village nit-wit. And females who defied nature with girlish giggles and gadgets were frankly considered "no better than they should be."

For, after all, what need had a woman for beauty after she was wedded? Marriage was a serious business with no time for levity. And a platinum bleach was of no assistance whatever in the grim job of bearing babies, making homes and settling the frontier. So Gramma let Father Time do his darnedest—and left the consequences to God.

But nobody's going to hand such a ghastly fate on any Modern Miss or Mrs.—whether she be 6, 16 or 60. Nowdays it's firmly agreed that no smart female should ever think, look or act a day over Size 20. And heaven help you if you want to dress your age, sister, for it's a cinch the merchant won't!

"Something suitable for a matron, please," sez you, with a wistful glance at your graying hair and billowy curves.

Promptly you'll be met with a withering smile or coy tut-tut! After which they'll dangle some chiffon wisps and a couple of daisies in front of you and coo—"Now here, dearie, is something that will be simp-lee a-door-ibble on you. Why, you won't look a Day Over 30 in it!"

No, lady—not on ME! Not unless you use ether.

For why—may I inquire in my nastiest tone—why should I wish NOT to look "A Day Over 30"? I am, as a matter of fact, almost 52. What's more, I look every day of it and am proud of the fact.

I've worked hard to accumulate those years. I've taken some nasty wallops, but I've also put over some Swift Ones, and I have no intention of letting anyone cover up that record with any Size 20 camouflage. And any time you think you're going to make THIS old battle-axe look like a sunbonnet baby—GUESS AGAIN!

Whole cloves sprinkled liberally throughout the clothes that are packed away will answer the same purpose as moth balls.

Cut the thread on the bias and you will find the needle easier to thread.

Q. and A. DEPARTMENT

Dear Sympathetic Aunt Bella:

Ten years ago, on account of financial reverses, my mother started sewing and taking in washing. But I'm afraid this work is having a very bad effect on her, as she is getting so nervous and irritable we girls can hardly stand it. She gives way to her feelings all the time and is continually fussing about trifles. What do you suppose we could do to make her easier to live with, as she is certainly becoming a trial.

Worried Daughter.

HOW TO GET STRONG
Home Gymnastics For The Human Husk

(Note—The following excerpt from "How To Get Strong," published in 1884, is presented for the benefit of softies who think that bending the elbow, with a glass in the hand, and suddenly tilting the head backward, will keep them fit. We join with the author of H. T. G. S. in his eloquent reply which is, in effect, "Fiddlesticks!")

ALL you need for indoor gymnastics is apparatus. Buy two pitchfork handles at the agricultural store. Cut one off so it is a quarter of an inch shorter than the distance between the jambs of the door leading from kitchen to dining room. Onto jambs fasten hardwood cleats into which bar fits neatly. Place second pitchfork handle into bored holes and pound into studding. Then saw off bars permitting room enough to get in and out of door. Procure a set of dumb-bells one twenty-fifth of user's weight. Also fit up pulley-weights and place box of sawdust to receive weights so they will not bang floor. Hook trapeze to top jamb and suspend striking bag likewise. Now you have a compact home gymnasium, rent free.*

FAMOUS LAST WORDS

Burnt Sugar Dessert

Two and one-half tablespoons cornstarch.
Two tablespoons cold water.
Two cups boiling water.
One cup granulated sugar.
One-half cup chopped walnuts.
Dash of salt.
Whipping cream.

Blend cornstarch and cold water. Gradually add the boiling water, then cook, stirring frequently until thickened, about 20 minutes. Place the sugar in a heavy frying pan and heat slowly, stirring constantly, until an amber colored syrup is formed. Do not allow to become brown. Pour first mixture slowly over the syrup and stir until thoroughly dissolved. Remove from heat and add the nuts and salt. Chill and serve with whipped cream. This makes six servings.

Brass Trimmings.

When polishing brass trimmings on wooden doors it is well to hold a heavy piece of paper alongside of the brass so the polish does not get on the wood and cause discoloration. Knobs are more simple as the paper may be slipped right over the knob, protecting the wood on all sides.

Uncanny Tale Which Bridge Addict Told

Phenomenal Card Reading and Play on an Expert's Table.

By P. Hal Sims

"AS YOU know," said a rye and ginger ale, after we had listened in respectful silence to the tale of the intelligent retriever, "I am not a bridge expert."

We agreed silently.

P. Hal Sims

"Quite the contrary," continued the rye and ginger ale. "Besides making the wrong play on all possible occasions, I am strictly a 2 per cent guesser. Give me a finesse that can be taken two ways and I will invariably take the wrong way. However, I like the game. I play for my own enjoyment.

'Moreover, I have an incurable weakness for gadgets. My home is full of mechanical shufflers, electric tables and rotating disks telling you how to bid. Recently I attended an auction sale—another habit of mine. Naturally the minute they put up an unusual bridge table I succumbed. It was knocked down to me for $5.25 after some spiritless bidding. I carted it home in my roadster, and that evening, since some friends were coming in to play, I set it up.

"Gentlemen, the minute I sat down at the table, I felt an uncanny feeling—a feeling of power. Nothing could go wrong for me. Game after game, I bid and made. My opening leads were inspirational. Why, for instance, on the following hand,

S. K-10-x-x	S. A-J-x
H. x-x	H. A-K-x-x-x
D. K-Q-x-x-x	D. A-x
C. A-x	C. K-10-x-x

I made six no trumps. I guessed the location of the queen of spades. I also felt sure of the fact that the spade suit would break three-three. I decided that the diamonds were split four, three, but that the hearts were divided four, two; all of which turned out to be perfectly correct.

"My opponents were friends of old standing. Had it been otherwise, I might have been accused of using marked decks. The game broke up in an awed silence. My card reading had been so phenomenal as to transcend the bounds of ordinary expertness. It seemed as if the devil himself were guiding me.

"A few weeks later I happened to be passing the same auction room where I had purchased my table. A thought struck Me. I hurried in, and asking the proprietor if he could tell me the origin of that table. He was quite surly, but when I hinted that I would pay him well for his trouble, he finally investigated musty old records.

"Gentlemen, that table belonged to the late Joseph Elwell."

IF YOU ASK MY OPINION

By Martha Carr

My Dear Mrs. Carr:

MY MOTHER died three years ago, leaving a flat to me and my sister, jointly. In this time, I have always paid my sister the rent for the downstairs part of it. And, as you know, when you have a home there are always repairs to be made; both our husbands are handy enough to take care of part of these. But this generally causes trouble. We think we do more than our share of this and when we ask them to give a hand, but they put it off months.

We just keep on doing the necessary things, of course, but it really is not fair to my husband and he is beginning to rebel. I know my husband is in the right, but blood is pretty thick where my sister and I are concerned, and I feel very sorry for her. I made a promise to my mother that I would see that my sister's part be used to the best advantage. But how can I do this if they do not co-operate.

We have the means to buy her share of the home, but I am afraid they will just use up the money; then after awhile have nothing. We could fix up the house right too, but she cannot afford to do her part.

MRS. J. L. S.

I do not quite understand why, if the house was left half to you, that it is necessary for you to pay her rent for your half. It seems to me this should not be necessary where you own your own property.

There is always difficulty in jointly-owned property, if one is disposed to be negligent about money management and lacks the conscientiousness to adhere to a fair agreement.

While I think it right for you to feel some responsibility about the promise you made to your mother, I believe it will not be possible to coerce, and perhaps even persuade this grown-up couple to think as you do. As long as you carry the burden (and one cannot blame your husband for growing tired of shouldering the work and the burden of expense), you probably will be allowed to do so by a brother-in-law who doesn't make the proper effort and a sister who is indifferent to her duty in this respect. And neither can you keep them from being improvident; either about their budget or about taking care of what they have.

I believe it would be better for you to move out, if you do not care to buy her out, and rent your part to someone else, who might demand from them a more business-like running of the place. You can buy them out and suggest to your sister that she may best invest the money, that is all you can do and still keep the peace—and the house in the right repair.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

THERE is a very special girl who sings in the same choir I do. After I was introduced to her two weeks ago, I asked if I could take her home. She agreed, and since then I have taken her home after every practice. The difficulty is this:

I have a job which keeps me out nearly every night, week ends, and she is not allowed to have dates any other time. Although she seems to like me well enough, I am afraid to ask her for a date on these nights, for fear I might have to break it at the last moment. I know she goes with me enough anyway, and asking her would not be doing her any favor.

Would she understand the situation, Mrs. Carr, if I could put it to her, or would I better skip the whole thing?

PERPLEXED PETE.

I am afraid you are not rating her intelligence very high; why should she understand, if you explain it to her? If you feel doubtful you might get your employer to testify in writing that you are telling the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth."

My Dear Mrs. Carr:

My daughter, who is 13 years old, and who has an olive complexion, in the past year has developed regular moles and brown freckles all over her face and body. They seem to be spreading. I am at a loss as to the cause, thinking possibly it might be something in her diet. Will appreciate your advice.

ANXIOUS MOTHER.

The only thing to do is to consult your regular physician or a skin specialist as to her diet and for the remedy, if there is one.

As this column states, I do not give medical or legal advice.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I WANT very much to become an air stewardess and wish you would answer my questions:

1—Do you have to have a high school education or nurse's training?

2—Is there a certain age or size?

3—Where can one secure such a position in St. Louis?

DAILY READER.

I should think a high school education, at least, would be desirable if not absolutely required. And it is necessary also, to know something about first aid treatment.

2—The position is one which a young, inexperienced girl, who in an emergency would not keep steady nerves, could not fill. Moreover, the girls must know something about the construction of the plane, and the country over which it travels. They must, also, know a little about providing entertainment for the passengers.

3—I understand that the air transportation companies here do not employ stewardesses.

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis, Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

Home Nursing Of Sick Needs To Be Studied

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

SINCE there are courses in domestic science in high schools, I think there should also be a course on domestic nursing of the sick. This would in no way be intended to take the regular trained nurse's place in the event of serious illness. But there are many little minor illnesses that have to be nursed at home, and can be so nursed without very elaborate training. Even in families that can afford the present prices of nursing, it is not always desirable to have in a trained nurse for every case of illness.

Dr. Clendening

Just as a patient is more comfortable in his own home than in a hospital, he is more peaceful with the administrations of a member of the household than with those of a stranger. And in so many communities, the nursing profession has insisted on eight-hour duty so that you have to have three nurses in the course of the 24 hours. The result is that trained nursing is for most people a prohibitive luxury.

What should this course in domestic nursing comprehend? The ordinary high school course in human physiology should be a required preliminary. A review of anatomy and physiology should come first, using such a text as Martin's "The Human Body" or one of the excellent manuals on anatomy and physiology for nurses. (Such as Williams' "Textbook of Anatomy and Physiology"—published by Saunders.)

Then a review of the signs and symptoms and course of the common diseases, using Emerson's "Essentials of Medicine" or Cabot's "Layman's Handbook of Medicine" as a text.

In practical work, the information contained in a splendid little book called "The Home Care of the Sick" by Clara D. Noyes (published by Funk & Wagnalls) is sufficiently comprehensive. It costs only 30 cents. I am using it as a suggestion for some of the articles this week. There should be available the more complete manuals on the practice of nursing used in training schools. (Such as Sanders' "Modern Methods of Nursing," published by Saunders.)

There should also be available a book on diet, such as Sherman's "Food and Health" or Proudfit's "Dietetics for Nurses," published by Macmillan.

For practical work, the student should learn how to make a bed, with an actual bed and bed clothes at hand, and should learn how to change the bed clothes with a patient in bed, using a dummy figure to represent the patient (or better, another member of the class, in fact, each member of the class should act as the patient, so she will know how it feels to be one).

Taking the temperature, reading the thermometer, taking the pulse, the proper method of giving an enema, giving a patient a bath in bed, the sponge bath, the care of the skin, eyes, nose and mouth—all these simple things can be learned by practical experience, to be done the right way.

The principles of infection and sterilization should be taught, so that the nurse's hands can be kept clean in the surgical sense.

Instruction in the proper performance of common emergency measures will be a part of the course—one of these is the best way to give artificial respiration. Also the application of a tourniquet or a compress for hemorrhage. Those who have been Camp Fire Girls will not need this, but it should be included anyway.

The preparation of food for the sick and simple measures of the treatment of illness with water—heat and cold—are properly parts of the course.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a 3-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

QUILTED CLOTHES

By Sylvia Stiles

THE old-fashioned quilting bee may be revived, but not because of quilts. Collars, cuffs, jackets, hats and even skirts have begun to copy the padded and stitched designs of the humble coverlet with such a zest that neighborhood gatherings may be necessary to keep up with this fashion vogue.

Whether the pronounced interest in colorful quilts which has been apparent during the last few years has anything to do with the trend in women's clothes is one of those style mysteries. But there is evidence everywhere that women who became skillful in sewing fine seams in bed coverings now can put their art into use in creating individual spring costumes.

This mode of trimming for clothes started in a very modest sort of way. A few tufted rolls appeared at the neckline and sleeves of winter frocks. An occasional evening coat could proudly display a quilted edge to its collar. Stitched bands that looked slightly padded decorated some of our hats. Matelasse fabrics and others that had a puffy surface became decidedly stylish.

Who could have guessed that these bits of decoration could lead to the extreme of a completely quilted suit? Not many designers have gone to the trouble to decorate two complete garments such as a jacket and skirt, so such a costume is limited to exclusive circles. However, a clever needlewoman can get into the exclusive classification by diligently plying her needles. One of these suits is sketched at extreme left as an illustration of the method. The jacket is extremely fitted, gored sections making this possible. The pattern of the jacket goes around the figure while that of the skirt is vertical. An old-fashioned black material figured with white is quaint and appropriate.

Almost as elaborate as the suit, are the quilted evening coats. Most of these are made of taffeta, but length and design vary. Since any evening wrap is regarded as a rather frivolous garment, fancy designs are emphasized. Floral and leaf motifs predominate, but scroll patterns and interlaced circles are effective. Some of these coats are swagger length and others end abruptly at the waistline.

The quilted jacket of a daytime costume is another illustration of the extent of this vogue. Not only silk suits, but wool ones are adorned with intricate designs. Boxy coats lend themselves to this style of elaboration so are seen most frequently. Some which do not have the entire surface stitched, display yokes or bands that are decorative.

The gilet which is sketched shows one of the most inetresting methods of handling the quilted theme in the decoration of dresses. This gilet is of taffeta and offers so much coverage that it reminds of the old-fashioned jumper. The diamond-shaped design is repeated in finishing the edges of the pockets.

Quilted collars, cuffs and revers appear so often in the trimming of both dresses and suits that they may be deemed one of the most popular notes of the season. Occasionally a scarf is substituted for the collar. Heavy and sheer fabrics are used alike, but as the spring advances there is greater evidence of the sheer materials. That organdie can be treated in this novel manner is proved by the sketch of the organdie lapels. A double thickness of the material is used and instead of padding with cotton, the designer has a padding of wool. This permits the design to stand out more impressively.

Millinery accesories are falling into line with apparel in the endorsement of the quilting. Sports hats of fabric employ novelty stitching in various ways, and some of the formal chapeaux also introduce padded rolls that remind of the borders of quilts and comforters. The hat which is sketched is typical of the trend in daytime millinery.

The most excitement concerning the introduction of the quilted theme into accessories has to do with bags, and leather ones, at that. Glove calf is popular this season and is adapted to this form of handiwork. One of the many styles is illustrated. It is of black leather and of the favored large size. Some very new white leather bags are an indication that the vogue will continue through the summer. Taffeta models in pastel tints illustrate how it is affecting evening accessories.

Belts assume a new importance among accessories this spring so it is not surprising ot find that they also are being quilted. Illustrated is a model of patent leather. Fabric belts that accompany many of the ready-made dresses carry out this theme.

After seeing what can be done with springtime silks, woolens and leathers, designers next will try their luck with summer cottons. So don't overlook the significance of quilting in planning a warm weather wardrobe. No one will want to go about in padded garments, but trimmings can't be handled.

Miscellaneous Problems of Social Usage

Courtesy to Husband's Friends—Violin Music Before Wedding Ceremony.

By Emily Post

Dear Mrs. Post:

MY husband has kept up a written friendship for years with an old school friend in his home town. I never met this friend nor his wife. In his last letter to my husband he said they were coming through our town on the way to the West, and I feel that even though I don't know these people, the letter inviting them to stop off at our home should go from me. Don't you agree?

Emily Post

Answer: I do, entirely.

Dear Mrs. Post: It isn't possible for me to have organ music—not even a phonograph—at my wedding which will be at home, and we have no piano. A friend who plays the violin would like to play softly before the ceremony. Is this out of order?

Answer: Not at all out of order—taking it for granted, of course, that your friend plays well.

Dear Mrs. Post: I am planning to give my first piano recital, but unfortunately I am a poor girl who has gone this far by much hard work and sacrifice and I cannot afford to send out invitations, which do not include a price for admission. How can I word the invitation to make the price of the ticket seem negligible?

Answer:

Miss Mary Brown
requests the honor of your company at her first piano recital on Saturday evening the fifteenth of May at nine o'clock in Crane Auditorium

And with each invitation enclose a slip with a ticket order blank, which gives the time, the place and the price of the ticket.

Dear Mrs. Post: What is meant by an "Individual cover?"

Answer: "Cover" is a pseudo-elegant word for a single place-setting at table.

Dear Mrs. Post: Is there any special kind of engraved announcements that may be sent out when a marriage has been kept a secret for over six months?

Answer: The same form is used after six months as that which should have been mailed immediately after the ceremony. The only change in the conventional form is that the date will be over six months old.

Enforced Rest Important After Injury to Child

By Mrs. Brooke P. Church

HENRY was knocked down and dragged along by a car. That he was not killed was a miracle, but, more miraculous still, he emerged from the accident unhurt save for a few minor scratches and bruises.

His family, wishing to make light of the occurrence in Henry's eyes, so that he would forget the terror and shock he had undergone, sent him to school next day and in every way permitted him to lead his life as usual. Six months later they were startled at his unaccountable nervousness which finally reached the proportions of a definite breakdown and necessitated months of rest and care. The doctor laid the blame on the shock he had received when he was struck by the car.

It is all very well to practice self-control in such a contingency and not to allow the child to be overexcited by the behavior of those about it. But it must always be remembered that in every accident of such proportions, whether any injuries are apparent or not, there is both a physical and a mental shock.

That the sufferer does not at once show the effects of them is not surprising. He is still feeling relief at escape, and the body is slow in any event to respond to nerve strain. But months later the results may show in a dozen unexpected ways, some of which seem to have no relation at all to the original cause.

After a serious accident there should always be a period of enforced rest and quiet. Even if the child is not put to bed it should be guarded from excitement and kept at home or out in the open until the physician is sure that as far as possible the likelihood of danger from shock is passed. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, in this case as in so many others where health is concerned.

Peanut butter, creamed and combined with cottage cheese, is a good filling for graham or Boston brown bread sandwiches.

Potato Souffle.

Make a thick cream sauce of three tablespoons of butter, three tablespoons flour and one cup milk. As soon as thickened add one cup hot mashed potatoes, salt, pepper and the beaten yolks of three eggs. Cool, fold in the beaten whites of eggs and bake for a half hour in a moderate oven. Serve as soon as done to prevent falling.

NEW YORK, March 23.

THE animal kingdom stages a comeback this spring in the jewelry kingdom. Women are now wearing small coral ladybugs with diamond eyes pinned to the stems of their shoulder corsages. Pursuing the theme, there are jade grasshoppers studded with diamonds that perch impudently on the shoulder of an evening, or poise for flight on the front of a black felt turban in the daytime.

The Scotties and their jewelled canine friends are still carrying on, but they're put in the shade this season by the bug-and-insect school.

Bees on your bonnet are new and smart—especially if they're golden bees with amethyst eyes, adding their decorative touch to a new poke bonnet. You also may wear a golden bee to match clipped to the cuff of your slip-on glove.

Glove jewelry is one of the headlines of the season. There are cuff bracelets of prystal and such to wear over your glove, and there is a whole procession of clips for the cuff.

Watch-fobs in the grandmother manner also are being seen pinned to the belt and matched by old-fashioned gold bracelets and brooches.

THE GAME OF LIFE

A Serial Romance

By PRISCILLA WAYNE

CHAPTER SEVEN.

IN the weeks that followed, Ellen was to remember this brief honeymoon tenderly—but not happily. Full realization of the step she had taken came to her when the bell boy closed the hotel door upon her and her brand new husband.

Like an avenging Nemesis the note she had signed that very morning kept flashing into her memory. Mr. Applequist, the banker, had been quite firm about it. Perhaps because he was an old man and she was just a young girl starting out in the business world he felt he had the right to caution her sternly.

"Make your payments on time, Miss Mallory. Keep your interest up. That's the way to make your credit good. Your mother's a fine lady but she hasn't any business sense. Guess she thought principal and interest would just take care of themselves."

And Ellen had signed the note, determined to make good at it, to show the bank and Mr. Applequist that she could be trusted; that her word was good.

And now, less than 24 hours later, she wasn't Ellen Mallory at all, but Ellen Dale, married to a man who sternly believed that a woman's place was in the home. If she could only go on with her work; if Mike would permit that much, then it might be easy enough, but to ask her husband to assume those obligations—that was unthinkable.

A spiteful little demon in her brain taunted her. "Well, this is a pretty time, Ellen Mallory, to be thinking of such things. You married Mike, didn't you? And you knew how he thought of such things?—well?"

Michael, tenderly sympathetic, sensed the mental woe Ellen was enduring. "Listen, Darlin'," his loving arms around her, holding her close, "put all the worry out of your pretty head. We aren't obliged to settle every problem that worries us right now. We'll take 'em one at a time."

But again Ellen had tried to tell him about debts. And Mike refused to make a very good listener. "I know all about debts, Ellen," he laughed. "Don't forget that my dad's the village doctor. I guess the family doctor knows as much about debts as the next one."

"But people owe him—he doesn't owe everybody."

Mike chuckled. Held her even closer if such a thing could be possible. Then sternly. "Now, listen, Mrs. Dale. You're on your honeymoon. On my honeymoon, too."

Gently Ellen stroked his cheek. "Poor Mike"—softly.

"Poor Mike nothing! Lucky Mike! And I'm not going to have you worry, Mrs. Dale. I told you before that we'd settle our problems when we got to them."

"No," his hand over her mouth. "No you don't. I don't want to hear the horrible debt details tonight, tomorrow either, or maybe even the next day. Tonight I just want you to know, Mrs. Dale, that you're the dearest and the sweetest and cutest little wife"——

Yes, in Mike's arms it was easy enough to forget.

Ellen thought that if she lived to be a hundred years old she would never forget the tender intimacy of those hours with Mike.

"We'll start driving home slowly, darlin'," Mike said, "so that we'll get to Fairhaven in the early evening. Then we can set up our housekeeping. When I called Chuck I told him to send up what we'd actually need from the furniture store and that we'd probably want to exchange some of the things. But anyway, it will be a lark to go into our own house, won't it, sweet? I thought it would be terrible to go to your home or mine, or even to a hotel—with our own little house waiting."

"And heavenly to go to the little house—our home," Ellen whispered, and her kisses must have been more than satisfactory.

SUNDAY dinner at Indianola—less than 40 miles from home.

"Drive faster," Ellen said after they got into the car again. "Now that we're going to our home, actually going to our home, I just can't wait, Michael dear. I want to see if it's just as sweet as I thought it was. It's been days since I've been down there."

Mike was doing a satisfactory job of one-arm driving. "I didn't have much co-operation from you about building that house, Mrs. Dale. So if there are things you don't like about it, then it's your own fault. Sometimes I got so blue, because you wouldn't take an interest in it, Darlin', that I could have chucked the whole business."

"That I didn't take an interest, Mike? I did take an interest. But I was just scared to show how big an interest I took—it seemed to me that I had to go there every time with my fingers crossed because if I actually acted as though the little house would ever be finished and that we'd be living in it together, I'd wake up and find that it was all a dream. No, Mike, I didn't dare take the little house seriously."

"Well, you're going to take the little house seriously now, Mrs. Dale, don't think that you aren't, and you're going to live there for a good long time—until we get a better place to live, anyway."

"There couldn't be a better place to live, Michael."

"Well, there could be a bigger place," Michael laughed. "And if you don't like it"——

"Like it? I'll love it, dear." It was joy, sheer joy, to cuddle close to Mike's shoulder.

"Well," trying to be stern, "if you don't like it, then it's just your own fault, Mrs. Dale. You could have been watching every plank and every brick go into place, you know."

Ellen was thinking back, over six months now, to the time when the little house had been started. She had gone out with Michael that first day when the workmen had staked it out just before they'd begun the excavation for the basement, and Michael had led her through the imaginary rooms.

"This is the living room, Ellen," he had said, "and this the dining room. Right here will be the big bay window that you said we must have, in a southern exposure, so your flowers will grow in winter."

"And the fireplace, Michael. Where did you say that would be?"

"Right here, Darlin'. You say you wanted easy chairs on either side of it. One, I suppose, will be for you and the other for me—huh, or will it be?"

And Ellen had laughed and told him that they'd sit on the same side of the fireplace in the same chair, for that matter. They had been very happy and gay but that was before she had realized what a decided and determined resentment her mother had to her engagement with Mike.

Mike had been patient. He'd waited more than three years for her and all that time he'd been ready and financially able to take care of her. Maybe Aunt Ellen was right when she said that nothing mattered but taking love when it came, taking it eagerly and gratefully and not stopping to count the consequences.

She tried to tell this to her young husband now, put into words all the things she had been thinking—that, even if it wasn't all easy sailing, it was best to go ahead, get married and do exactly as he had been telling her, face one problem at a time.

Michael nodded gravely as he listened. "I know that's right, dear," he told her. "I'm 26, you're 22. We're both old enough to know our own minds. You love me—how it happens I don't know, and I love you. You're the only girl in all the world——".

ELLEN could not resist a wistful question. "And Marjory Hutton—you never cared about her?"

Michael laughed long and loud. He had been so fearful of ever winning this elusive little sweetheart of his that it gave him a thrill to imagine that she might be just a touch jealous. "I liked her. She's a nice girl—but not in your class, honey—not a little darlin'."

"Michael, will there ever be a time when you aren't as sweet to me as you are right now?"

"Of course not, Darlin'—" holding her hand tightly.

Then the exquisite tenderness of this arrival at the little, new and waiting home.

It stood there in the soft gathering gloom—that home of theirs—even lovelier than they had visioned it.

A rather plain little home of colonial type with wide, white painted boards and neat shutters at the big, low windows. Plain colonnades outlined the front doorway and the stepping stones that fashioned the floor of the entrance way were irregular in shape and pastel in color. Bright flower boxes over the stoop canopy, crowded gracefully with blooming geraniums and petunias and soft, drooping foliage.

Ellen clapped her hands in sheer joy at the sight of them. "Michael, you didn't tell me you had flower boxes—all blooming and everything."

"They're out your bedroom window, Mrs. Dale, and I didn't have a chance to tell you. I did them last week and got the plants from the florist's. You, if you will kindly recall, were making the family famous by winning the tennis meet, and I was here—all alone."

"Michael, that seems years ago. I can't believe that I ever wanted to go traipsing across the country trying to win tennis meets and stupid old loving cups when I could have this darling little home—and you."

"Take it easy, honey, he warned when she would have followed. "Sit right there where you are, until I get the front door unlocked. You're going to ride into your new home in style. I'm going to carry my bride across the threshold of her new home. That means good luck, doesn't it, Mrs. Dale?"

But before he could get the door unlocked a shadow loomed before the car coming from among the other shadows at the side of the house.

"Bob!" Ellen half screamed, already sensing that something had happened.

The shadow quickly resolved itself into the form of Bob Mallory, Ellen's 14-year-old brother. He said, "I've been waiting for you, Sis. I just had a hunch you'd come here first."

Ellen's hand went to her throat in apprehension. "Why, Bob—how did you guess?"

"Huh! That was easy enough. Chuck down at the furniture store has told all over town that you and Michael went away to get married and that he promised to get a lot of things over here, sure, yesterday afternoon, because you'd be home tonight. And you'd better come right away, Sis; Mom's taking on something awful."

BEGIN HERE TODAY:

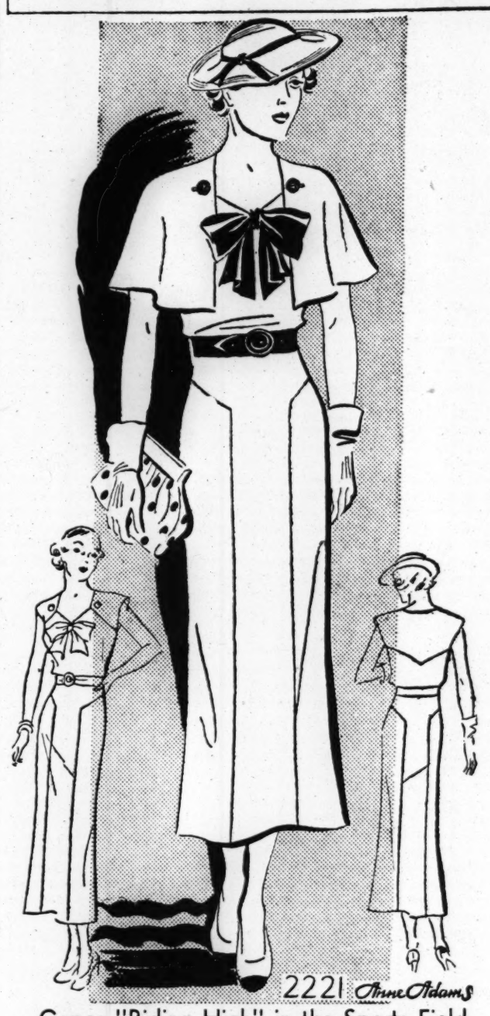

ELLEN MALLORY, stenographer in a real estate office, is the sole support of her mother and brother, ROB. MRS. MALLORY encourages Ellen to develop her tennis ability, and the girl is elated when she wins a sectional tournament. When she tells her fiance, MICHAEL DALE, of her plans to enter national competition, he insists that she keep her promise to marry him at once and give up tennis.

They quarrel, much to Mrs. Mallory's secret pleasure. Her chief concern is that Ellen will marry and stop supporting the family. When Ellen finds that her mother has withheld a phone call and letter from Mike the day after the quarrel, she announces that she is going to marry him the minute he returns from a business trip. Seeing that Ellen is determined, Mrs. Mallory airs her debts amounting to $2700, which she has no way of paying. Ellen can't let her family down completely, so signs a note at the bank and promises to pay $20 a month.

Upon his return, Mike whisks Ellen away to Bethany, Mo., and tells her they are to be married. Ellen's protests are in vain, and the ceremony is performed.

The paneled skirt gives the hips that most desirable "trimmed-down" look. The Necessity Of Vision in Everyday Life

By the Rev. J. F. Newton.

FRANK KENT says that Secretary Wallace has more soul than anyone seen in politics for a long time; "a bit too much, perhaps, for a game in which the soulless are more numerous and more successful.

"High-minded, candid, cultured," he continues, "Wallace is a man of ability and character. Righteous without being smug, sincere without being silly, he thinks the big thoughts and has the great visions. There are times when his intellectual processes border on the cosmic—times when he is not on the ground at all."

No doubt. But we have seen what ground-hog politics brings us to in the end, and what visionless thinking means. Events have shown that the hard-headed, "practical" business man is in fact a soft-headed bungler, and a helpless whimpering infant in face of facts.

If the depression has done nothing else, it has destroyed the legend of the "business mind," if by that we mean the mind that thinks in terms of profits alone, and forgets or ignores human values. It is blind as a bat, and it has brought us to a bankrupt world.

Mercy of heaven! How we need a few men who do think the big thoughts and see the great visions! We have followed mole-eyed stupidity until we have little heart or hope left. As a result we have science without soul and politics for place, power and pelf!

Of old it was said, "Where there is no vision the people perish"—or more literally, they become a mob. The vision of a visionless world is fulfilled before our eyes, in a hideous herd-mindedness, which is so horrible an aspect of American life in our day!

How can we have a great country if we honor the men who think little thoughts and follow little visions? It is this appalling cynicism that is poisoning the life of the people and paralyzing the nation.

Let us have done belittling big thoughts and sneering at seer-like men. The tragedy is that we have lost our soul in our efforts to gain the world, and now we have lost what we gained.

RESTLESSNESS in the psychological ether today; take a trip if you can and want to; if you want to and it isn't so convenient to do so, read along some new and unfamiliar line—thus taking a mental journey. You might learn a lot.

Grief.

Few are they who recognize grief as a sin. We are told by the ancient wise that when a friend dies he is prevented from continuing his progress by any and all who seek to call him back to this sphere. This, as well as any other, form of interfering with the development or progress of another is a violation of nature's laws. It is related to misapplying the moon's vibrations.

Your Year Ahead.

If this is your birthday your year ahead indicates increasing harmony and opportunity, especially from Oct. 31, when romance will also be important, or affectional relations. Danger: Oct. 27-Dec. 7; Feb. 16 to April 2.

Christopher Crow And Top Notch Have a Battle

By Mary Graham Bonner

CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS CROW was in a great rage with Top Notch, the rooster, for having played such a prank on him. Top Notch had filled Christopher's little toy bank with pebbles.

"The idea of watching while Willy Nilly broke open the bank for me!" exclaimed Christopher angrily. "You didn't say a word, and all the time you knew you had filled it full of pebbles."

Christopher whacked Top Notch again with his strong wings, and Top Notch tried to hit Christopher with his wings.

"Stop fighting!" cried Willy Nilly. But the rooster and the crow would not stop.

"If you don't stop," cried Willy Nilly, "I'll spread some pepper."

Top Notch started to sneeze. Then Christopher began to sneeze, and soon they were sneezing too hard to fight.

Willy Nilly had only scattered a little bit of pepper about, and in a short time they stopped sneezing.

"I am not excusing Top Notch," said Willy Nilly, "but I am surprised at your becoming so angry over a prank. You have played plenty of pranks in your time, you know."

That was true, but it was quite a different story to have a prank played on the best prank player of all. However, Christopher began to feel a certain admiration for Top Notch. He put out his foot and asked Top Notch to shake.

"I have to hand it to you," he cawed, "or perhaps I should say 'foot' it to you."

Let's EXPLORE Your MIND

By ALBERT EDWARD WIGGAM, D. Sc.

See Whether His Opinions Agree With Your Own

AUTHOR'S NOTE: These answers are given from the scientific point of view. Science puts the rights of organized society above the rights of individuals.

1. —Everything you do is both natural and acquired. Some women have a finer sense of color, line, size and form than others and acquire the art of wearing clothes much easier and in the end much better than others do or ever can acquire it. The feminine world would be far more beautiful if every woman would here take Prof. E. L. Thorndike's advice about all education—"Learn when not to think—and when to get a wiser person to do your thinking for you."

2. —Henrietta Ripperger argues that science has decreased the number of food faddists. She points to Fletcherism—"chew your food." This was a religion, but either its devotees have died or been converted. Then vegetarianism with huge amounts of "bulkage," but this extreme doctrine has been modified by the more moderate low protein students, Chittenden of Yale, Mendel of Yale, McCullom of Johns Hopkins, Sherman of Columbia and others. Recently the one-piece diet in reference to the good old time emetic has swept the country. Some of its devotees have pulled through alive. Then we have had the "count-your-calories" craze. This got out of leash from its scientific students and became a fad. But scientific knowledge of nutrition is steadily advancing and food extremists are either dying off by taking their own diet or else regaining their common sense.

3. —Henry "The Trembler," of France, shook so violently with fright before going into battle that his soldiers had to help him on to his horse, but once in the battle he fought like a demon. This was bravery. It takes moral courage to be brave, but fearlessness is the absense of fear and I think often the absence of imagination.

Country Crisis

By Cecelia McCabe

MARY stared dully at the kitchen floor which she had already washed three times today and noticed the dust tracks which permanently decorated her linoleum through the hot summer. Oh, to see a rain-soaked field again—to see trees, their leaves sparkling drops of water in the sun—to see trees even!

Sometimes Mary thought she might go mad when she looked out through her kitchen door and saw the fields Alan had so proudly shown to her when she came three years ago as a bride. The fields that then lay newly seeded were now dry and scorched, the air dancing over them in shimmering heat waves.

She had been so thrilled at the idea of coming out West to marry Alan that spring. She hadn't minded the funny little town nor the bumping road leading out to their "home," as Alan proudly put it.

She'd even overlook the fact that she could never make their square frame house, built for withstanding winds, look like the colonial cottages in the magazines. She had been so ecstatic over the fact that Alan had finally saved enough money to send for her to get married that she had gaily accepted all hardships as a new adventure.

And he'd been so dear about warning her about the discomforts of living out here in the plains. Well, she hadn't minded it much—the old rattly car had been fun; the radio had kept her amused; she'd been excited to death when she had planted her first garden. "A postage stamp," Alan had laughingly called it, and averted his loving gaze to stretches of plower field extending beyond the house as far as the eye could reach. They had expected so much, the two of them. And now for the third summer the sun had risen relentlessly every day, blazing hot at 4 in the morning, moved across the sky, parching and scorching hourly as it went.

And, in addition to the sun, a constant wind, hot as the blast from a furnace, blew unceasingly, swirling circles of dust into every corner of Mary's immaculate house—piling up in the ditches like snow after a sudden storm—coating even the sparse blades of grass a somber gray.

Dust! How Mary loathed it. In your hair—your skin—your eyes. She had a fantastic idea that soon she would look a dusty gray like everything about her. And Alan had changed, too. He no longer came in cheerfully to relate each night how his south field looked. He looked exhausted, beaten; his brown hair bleached by the sun, his face haggard from the desperate attempts to irrigate just a little of his vast acres. Mary looked again at her dusty floor, her dusty shoes. Suddenly she became panicky.

Why, she was young, and here she was letting herself be buried in a dried-up hole where nothing green ever flourished. How could she expect to retain youth and beauty with hot sun and dust fighting her continually

The dust which hung outside like a pall suddenly became a personal enemy to Mary. She wouldn't stay to fight it any longer. She'd leave, and if Alan had good sense he'd follow her when he found her note.

Her small suitcase would hold enough. She couldn't face Alan to say good-by. Maybe she was a quitter; but there were some limits. Maybe Alan would miss her immediately—but what if he didn't? He did hate to admit defeat. She refused to think of life ahead without Alan.

SUDDENLY she stopped pulling open drawers and boxes. What was that ominous hum? She glanced out her bedroom window. Surely the wind was rising; and the sky had darkened suddenly. Quick fear clutched at Mary's heart. Where was Alan? What if this should become one of those ferocious dust storms she'd heard about? Alan could take care of himself under most circumstances.

Another fear: per precious tomato plants that she'd labored so long over every morning, watering by hand. . . . why should she worry about the garden now? She wouldn't be here to see it. But, darned if she'd let this country ruin her precious tomato plants. She'd cover them with canvas anyway, as a final gesture of defiance to the elements. She ran into the garage and emerged struggling against the wind with her long piece of canvas.

All at once Alan appeared in the yard. His face was ecstatic. "Isn't this swell, Mary?" he shouted above the wind. "What in the world are you doing with that canvas? Your plants? Mary, dear, this is going to be rain, not dust! Look!" And even as he spoke a large drop spattered on Mary's upturned face.

In a second the rain was coming in torrents. Not a gentle rain—nothing was gentle in this country. But Mary felt for the first time a fierce joy in being a part of this turbulent struggle. She stood in the driving rain, her head back, laughing. This was all she'd needed, just to get good and wet. She was so glad she hadn't written that note yet or packed her bag. Why, if it would rain like this just once in a while it was worth staying to see it. She could hear Alan urging her inside, "Mary, you're soaked. Come in here!"

But she shook her head and shouted, "No, I'm loving it!" She could feel the months of dryness and dust being washed away from her. Alan ran and took her in his arms and the two of them stood there laughing in the rainstorm.

EXPLANATION OF LAST SATURDAY'S CARTOON

CHAMPION COOK AND FASTER—Guilleaume Tirel Taillevent (1315-1395) was chef de cuisine (chief cook) to King Charles V and King Philip VI of France. He wrote the first cook book in the French language and is considered the father of French food. Oddly enough he was not only the high priest of the royal table, but a champion faster. He died and was buried in St. Germain-en-Laye, near Paris. His tombstone, which is preserved at the Museum of St. Germain, enumerates several amazing fasting feats of the Grand Chef. According to this tombstone, he once lived on an exclusive diet of water for 90 days, and a year later he sustained himself on an exclusive diet of oil for two months. He lived to the advanced age of 80.

Might Try a Tariff on Ideas

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

THE imported intellectual crackpots are over here talking about the Utopia that is going to arrive on four flat tires.

• • •

We know how the hay gets into town hall. But we don't know how they got in.

If their theories were any good they wouldn't be theories. They would be facts.

If they were facts we would have known them years ago.

Nobody wants a foreign lecturer buzzing around with a lot of half-baked ideas that have already flopped in Europe. So shovel out the alien propagandist and shovel in the hay.
